CHARITIES OPPOSE WELFARE MEASURES; WOMEN'S BILLS LOST

Albany Senators Are Told That New York's Child Welfare Board Spends Too Much.

REALTY MEN ALSO COMPLAIN

Former Senator McCue and Sophie Irene Loeb Urge Extension of Board's Work.

EQUAL RIGHTS BILLS KILLED

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—Strong opposition to a dozen welfare bills developed at a hearing this afternoon before the Senate Judiciary Committee. Opponents of the measures declared enough of the State's money was being spent in child welfare work at present without opening the way for additional expenditure. The New York City Board of Child Welfare was taken to task for being too liberal in such work by representatives of charitable organizations and taxpayers' associations. Widows, it was declared, were getting to that point where they believed they were entitled to a "pension" from the Child Welfare Board the minute their husband died.

"Extension of the work of the Child Welfare boards, as provided in the various bills now pending before the Legislature, is an unnecessary encroachment upon the Charities Departments in the various cities," Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Charities of New York City declared.

"I am afraid that we can go so far in child welfare work that it will encourage professional begging.

Says State Can't Raise Babies.

"Talk as you may, and pension as you may, the State cannot raise a baby left upon the doorstep. Such a baby has to be raised by some one who has some idea of God and creation. Charity workers, of course, want all children to be cared for by their mothers, if possible, but there is a limit to child welfare work."

Stewart Browne, representing the Real Estate Owners' Association, opened the attack on the New York City Board of Child Welfare by asserting that last year the board exceeded its appropriation by several hundred thousand dollars.

"The taxpayers of New York City are gorgons tired of paying for all of these things. Pensions, pensions, pensions—that is about the only thing we hear," he exclaimed.

Former Senator Martin McCue asked Mr. Browne, "How could the Child Welfare Board spend money when they didn't have it?"

"I don't know just how they did it, but I know that it was done," Mr. Browne replied.

"You are talking so much about the Welfare Board exceeding the appropriation, maybe the people of New York City would like to know when the real estate owners are going to stop raising rents," said Mr. McCue.

"My answer to that remark is that the real estate men are in favor of the rent laws," Mr. Browne answered.

Admits Exceeding Appropriation.

Conrad Engel, a member of the New York Child Welfare Board, admitted, in opposing the bills, that the board exceeded its appropriation last year by about $900,000. He said he did not think there was any occasion to grant the Welfare boards any further extension of power, and even now the New York City Board was spending between $4,700,000 and $5,000,000 a year.

J. E. Tarbox, representing the New York City Corporation Counsel's office, opposed the bills on the ground that they would throw additional expense on the city. He asserted they would encourage local welfare boards to spend more money.

"The boards are spending enough at present without permitting them to increase their expenditures. These measures are bad enough, but they are simply the entering wedge for something worse," he concluded.

Leo Doody, Commissioner of Charities of Albany, protested against further extension of child welfare work until thorough experiments were made throughout the State. Too many people, he said, felt that the allowances granted by these boards were pensions.

Former Senator McCue defended the work of the New York City board. The only fault he had to find with it, he said, was that it had not been liberal enough.

"I am glad that I can stand here today and defend our child welfare laws when any one opens an attack on them," declared Mr. McCue. "The New York City Child Welfare Board and other like boards throughout the State are doing a wonderful work, and they should be encouraged and not hampered by a few who are afraid the work of the boards will encroach upon their jobs.

"Don't talk to me about placing children in institutions, because when we investigated these institutions some years ago we found them rotten—rotten to the core."

Sophie Irene Loeb, Chairman of the New York City board, defended its work. She said many misstatements had been made about it.

LONDON, March 7.—Lord Balfour has given notice that in the House of Lords tomorrow he will call attention to the misunderstanding that has arisen respecting his note on international indebtedness of Aug. 1, 1922.

This is the note of which Ambassador Harvey virtually demanded a retraction at a dinner given by the Pilgrims in London on Feb. 28 to Stanley Baldwin, on the return of the Chancellor of the Exchequer from Washington, where he negotiated the terms of the British debt settlement.

SAYS PARIS ACTRESS HID NAME TO WED

Lawyer for Ex-Wife of S. C. Millett of New York Raises a Question of Identity.

SUIT BEGUN IN PARIS COURT

Former Wife, Seeking Control of Children, Says Irene Lorenz Married as "Irene MacNeal."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—In the First Civil Court here today the question was raised whether Mrs. Stephen C. Millett, wife of the senior member of the firm of Millett, Roe & Hagen of New York was "Miss Irene MacNeal, daughter of the late Robert James MacNeal," as stated at the time of her marriage two years ago, or whether she was Miss Irene Frederika Lorenz, a former French actress.

In 1920 Mr. Millett's first wife, who before her marriage was Miss Thalia Wescott, divorced him and later married Donald C. Malcolm, with whom she now lives at 13 Boulevard des Invalides, Paris. There were two children by Millett's first marriage, Thalia and Betty, who for a while after the divorce lived with their father at 640 Park Avenue, New York City. Later they came to Paris and were placed by their mother in school at Château Grosiais, near Paris.

Mrs. Malcom wishes complete control of her daughters and has brought suit to obtain the right to cut them off from all communication with their father.

In court today Maire Henri Robert, dean of the Paris Bar, said that after divorce Millett, "an excellent man but a weak character," had married "an adventuress, Irene Fredericka Lorenz, who called herself Miss MacNeal." The lawyer said she was born in London Jan. 12, 1888, and her father was Rudolf Lorenz, a small merchant of German nationality.

According to Maître Robert, she became well known in certain quarters in Paris and from time to time played in the theatres of the French capital, notably in "La Marche Nuptiale" at the Vaudeville under the late Henri Bataille.

In an extensive speech the lawyer painted an uncomplimentary picture of Mrs. Millett, and appeared to wish to make the impression that Mr. Millett was confident he had married "Miss Macneal." The lawyer said that the mother of Mrs. Millett now lived at 24 Rue Vergniaud, Levallois-Perret.

The next hearing in the case takes place in eight days, when Albert Salle, an advocate representing Mrs. Millett, will reply. Mr. and Mrs. Millett are not believed to be in Paris.

Mr. Malcom, who is a banker, would not discuss the case tonight except to say the purpose of his wife was to remove her children from "improper influences."

Investigation shows that nine years ago a Miss Irene Lorenz played at the vaudeville theatre here. A Mrs. Lorenz was found this afternoon at 24 Rue Vergniaud, Levallois-Perret, a suburb of Paris, which Henri Robert said was the residence of the mother of Mrs. Millett. The woman, who is 65 years old and evidently in great material misfortune, said she had a daughter named Irene Frederika, who was born in London in 1888. Her father, she said, was a German possessing a certain amount of wealth, but, she said, he lost it at

75 TRAPPED BY FIRE IN PITTSBURGH HALL; SEVERAL MISSING

Many Leap From the Windows, but Some Are Caught in Ruins of Collapsing Building.

20 ARE TAKEN TO HOSPITALS

CAUSE IS STILL UNKNOWN

Spiritualist Gathering and Union Meeting Were Being Held in Building at the Time.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, March 7.—Seventy-five or more men, women and children were trapped by fire tonight in Shelton Hall, South Diamond Street, after three explosions converted the building into a fiery furnace. Many of the unfortunate occupants leaped from windows and of these twenty were taken to hospitals suffering from burns and injuries and firemen continued late tonight to pour streams of water into the building, which is believed to contain several victims.

Two meetings were being held in the building when the explosions occurred. One was a gathering of spiritualists and the other a meeting of the Stone Cutters' Union. Men, women and children leaped from the second and third floor windows without waiting for the firemen to spread life nets. Pedestrians, firemen and police rescued many by entering the second floor of the building where the crowd was herded and carrying them along window ledges to the building of the Dollar Savings and Trust Company on one side and the Diamond Coffee House Building on the other. A dozen or more leaped from the windows into nets spread in Diamond Street by firemen. Others, crazed by the heat and smoke, could be seen by the light of the fire running aimlessly about the room just before the second floor of the building sagged and collapsed.

Explosions Cut Off Lights.

The streets and alleys of the neighborhood were choked with thousands of persons who rushed to the scene and were lighted only by the dull red glow of the fire. All lights in the district went out as the force of the explosion tore down every wire in South Diamont Street.

Gust Bickel, who leaped from the third story of the building died in the Allegheny General Hospital at 11:10 o'clock tonight from a fractured skull, internal injuries and burns.

The police believe that several persons were unable to escape from the auditorium where the spiritualists were holding their meeting and were burned to death.

So great was the force of the explosions that every window within several hundred yards of the scene was broken. Every window in the big Boggs & Buhl department store on Federal Street directly opposite was smashed. None of those who were able to make their way from the building, or who were rescued, have so far been able to give a clear, connected story of their experience.

When the first explosion occurred and the side of the lodge room in which they were holding their meeting became enveloped in flames, more than 30 members of the Stone Cutters' Union hurried toward safety. The majority of them escaped uninjured, although several were burned and others were slightly injured in leaping to safety. Gust Bickel, a member, later died in the Allegheny General Hospital.

Shelton Hall and Young's shoe store were completely destroyed by the flames, and several surrounding buildings damaged. No estimate of the damage can be had at this hour.

Pinchot Opposes Coal Tax Repeal.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 7.—Governor Pinchot today indicated to a delegation of Scranton citizens interested in the repeal of the anthracite coal tax that he was opposed to the repeal. He said that the State needed the money and that four-fifths of the tax was paid by residents outside the State.

Two Navy Airmen Perish in River After Hard Battle With High Wind

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Attempting to buffet a high wind, the seaplane of Lieutenant Robert Morse Farrar, naval aviator, and Stephen F. Sullivan, mechanic, plunged into the Delaware River, opposite Tinicum Island, seven miles below the Philadelphia Navy Yard, this morning, carrying both men to their death.

The bodies of the men were recovered two hours afterward. They were strapped to their seats in the plane and apparently had been unable to free themselves from the safety belts when the plane left into the water.

Lieutenant Farrar was taking the plane from the navy yard to the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, near Washington, where experimentation would have been conducted with the special type of engine with which it was equipped.

With Sullivan, he left the navy yard at 10:55 o'clock this morning. His course was directly down the Delaware River. He followed it in the face of the wind as best he could.

The machine was observed flying about 600 feet in the air when it reached the upper end of Tinicum Island, opposite Hog Island, by Frank Mills, chief instructor of the Essington Aviation School, who was at work on a machine of his own along the waterfront.

"I saw the seaplane was having a rough time of it against the wind," Mr. Mills said later. "It was squally at the best, the kind of day I like to be on the ground, and I have been flying for more than nine years.

"Suddenly a gust from the west struck the plane. I knew from experience exactly what the pilot was up against. He did the right thing and took a nose dive for about fifty feet to get a better level.

"But the gale from the west was as bad there as it had been at the 600-foot level. He turned his nose downward for another fifty-foot drop.

"In the meantime the wind was getting wild. It was almost impossible to stand up straight, much less fly. The airman could not do a thing. The wind tossed him about like a cork. After another battle he dove for a third time. That was his last.

"He fell for about 300 feet straight into the water. Whether he had been unable to right the plane after the last dive I do not know."

Boats were dispatched instantly from the navy yard and from du Pont's to the wreck of the plane, which was floating partly submerged down stream. Less than two hours afterward the wrecked machine and the bodies of the two aviators were brought to the shore.

An inquiry will be held at the navy yard tomorrow, when the plane will be brought from the scene of the accident.

Lieutenant Farrar was regarded as one of the most skillful pilots in the navy. He was 28 years old and was a member of the Annapolis graduating class of 1915.

'Enemy' Art Works Held Here Six Years To Be Given Back; May Be Sold in America

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Works of art belonging to noted Austrian and Hungarian sculptors and painters, now held by the Alien Property Custodian, will be returned to their owners at an early date. Communications are now passing between the Austrian and Hungarian Governments and the State Department arranging the details of the transfer.

The pictures, marbles, tapestries, medallions, china and other articles included in what it was said was a splendid collection, were originally loaned by the artists and other individuals in Austria-Hungary to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at the solicitation of officials of that enterprise. They were brought to this country under a moral obligation that they be returned. This was in 1915, two years before this country entered the war, and the United States Government gave a promise that the works of art would be sent back in good condition to the persons who loaned them and without any expense.

President Harding has advised the return of the works of art, and if sent abroad they will probably be carried on a naval transport. However, it is not yet certain whether the Austrian and Hungarian artists would prefer to have their creations sent to them or sold in this country. The collection, which was loaned by 108 individuals, was originally valued at $215,000, but if sold in the American market it is believed it would be worth very many times that sum, and, in addition, the owners would obtain good American dollars in return instead of the depreciated currency of their own countries.

It would take seven or eight freight cars to move the collection across the continent to an Atlantic port, but if taken direct from San Francisco on a transport, this freight charge would be eliminated.

MRS. SALUDES GUILTY TRIES 3 TIMES TO DIE

Resisting Guard After Second-Degree Murder Verdict, She First Takes Poison.

THEN SLASHES AT THROAT

Dashes Head Against Tombs Wall as Last Effort—Has Yet to Be Sentenced.

Mrs. Paulette A. Saludes thrice tried to kill herself late yesterday afternoon after a jury in Judge Koenig's part of General Sessions had found her guilty of murder in the second degree for shooting Oscar Martellière, an insurance broker, in his office at 100 William Street on Oct. 16 last.

At the Tombs Prison early this morning Mrs. Saludes' condition was described as serious.

She swallowed poison which she had concealed in a vanity case as she was being led from the court to the prisoners' pen on the first mezzanine floor of the Criminal Courts Building, and while three deputy sheriffs, including Mrs. Elisabeth McDonald, who had her in custody during the trial, were struggling to take the case from her she tore it apart and attempted to gash her throat with the mirror. Her life was saved by the prompt action of Deputy Sheriff George Levy, who stuffed a handkerchief in her mouth as an absorbent.

Then, after she had been carried across the Bridge of Sighs to the Tombs and a stomach pump used on her by Dr. Perry M. Lichtenstein, the prison physician, she broke away from her guard and tried to end her life by dashing her head several times against the prison wall.

Eventually her guard got her to her cell and placed her in a straitjacket. Warden John Hanlon then assigned three women keepers to watch over her and prevent her from making another attempt on her life. From the moment she took the poison, Mrs. Saludes kept screaming, "I want to die! I want to die!"

Investigation developed that the woman had been permitted to carry the vanity case containing the poison during all of the trial, in the belief that the paste was rouge. After Dr. Lichtenstein had satisfied himself that the woman would not suffer ill effects from the poison, he expressed the belief that the stuff was brass polish, containing a strong mixture of arsenic. Mrs. McDonald said that she was certain that the vanity case contained rouge when the woman was brought to court earlier in the day to be present at Judge Koenig's charge to the jury, and expressed surprise when she was informed of the physician's statement.

Poison Residue to Be Analyzed.

Dr. Lichtenstein said that the part of the vanity case containing the remainder of the poison was in the possession of Deputy Sheriff Levy, but that it would be sent to the city's chemical laboratories at 125 Worth Street, for analysis.

Mrs. Saludes, who is 30 years old, showed no inclination to end her life when she heard the verdict of the jury, which carried with it imprisonment for from twenty years to life. She remained calm after Judge Koenig had ordered the jury polled, with her hands resting lightly on the rail before her.

When, however, the clerk of the court started to take her pedigree, in accordance with the law, she evinced contempt for the verdict and refused to answer, except to give her age. Then she closed her eyes, an attitude she had assumed during Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers's summation to the jury the day before.

After repeated attempts by the clerk to get her to answer the questions, Judge Koenig announced that he would sentence the woman on March 14 and ordered that her full pedigree be taken at that time.

Because of frequent threats made by Mrs. Saludes to Mrs. McDonald during the trial, Sheriff Percival Nagle had ordered that Deputy Sheriffs Levy and Libertino be present when the verdict was announced. Judge Koenig began his charge to the jury shortly after 11 A.M. and finished an hour and forty minutes later.

The jury then retired, and Mrs. Saludes was taken to the matron's room on the first mezzanine floor and placed in charge of Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Esther Livingston, matron of the Criminal Courts Building. She had eaten very little during the trial, and when offered lunch declined it. She was taken back to the courtroom at 3:50 P. M., when the jury filed in and requested Judge Koenig again to define the various degrees of murder.

She was calm for a while, then began to sob. When the jury retired this time

MOONSHINER SLAYS 2 DEPUTY SHERIFFS

Murderer Confesses and Leads Posse to the Bodies He Had Buried in a Creek.

KILLED THEM AFTER ARREST

Louisiana Mob Threatens Lynching, but Cools Off on a Promise of Speedy Justice.

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKLINTON, La., March 7.—Through confessions said to have been made by two alleged moonshiners, the bodies of two murdered Deputy Sheriffs, Robert W. Crain and Wiley Pierce, for whom a posse of 1,000 men had searched since Saturday, were found today.

Bullet-pierced, partly dismembered with an axe, and trampled by booted feet, the bodies were taken from shallow graves in a mud bank near the location of a moonshine still about eight miles from here in Washington Parish. The still had been discovered by the deputies and destroyed last Saturday, its ruins being found by the posse which started searching for the deputies when they failed to return here.

The confessions of the alleged moonshiners will be handed to the Grand Jury tomorrow, a special session having been hurriedly summoned by Judge Prentiss B. Carter of the Circuit Court, when threats of mob action against the two accused began to circulate today.

The two who are said to have confessed, John Murphy and Gideon Rester, who lived near the scene of the raided still, were seized yesterday by the posse as suspects. Murphy is said to have confessed that on Saturday the deputies appeared at his still, within a few hundred yards of the murder scene. Placing him and Rester, under arrest they started single file along the path out of the swamp, with Murphy in the lead. In the search of the prisoners the deputies had failed to discover a .32 calibre automatic pistol in Murphy's pocket, and after walking to a point within a few feet of the creek crossing, marked by the body of a dead cow, Murphy says he turned, drew his pistol and fired two shots at Crain and killed him.

Puny Man Killed Both Deputies.

Pierce in the meantime had drawn his pistol and was firing, but Murphy fired four shots more and the second Deputy fell. Rester had fled.

Murphy, who weighs a bare 125 pounds, declared that he carried Pierce's 210-pound body to the burial spot, covered it with muck, and repeated the procedure with the body of Crain.

"I did not drag them, I carried them," he said.

Covering the bodies carefully, and hiding the traces of disturbance with blades of grass, and the body of a dead cow, Murphy says he then went to Franklinton, where he told "Old-Man" Mack Little of the killing. Little told his son "Jap" the following day. Both men kept their knowledge secret. Murphy failed to explain the axe wound in the back of Crain's head.

Rester, the second man in the moonshine gang to confess, declares he had no part in the shooting. On the road back to town after the deputies had arrested him and Murphy, he said that Murphy did the shooting and he only ran away. Murphy confirmed him in this.

The bodies of the two victims were buried this afternoon.

The town went into a rage when news of the murders was received. Only an impassioned plea for law and order by State Senator Doles R. Johnson and a promise of speedy justice for the murderers by Judge Carter averted drastic action.

Leads Posse to the Bodies.

It was just before dawn when the party arrived at Betsy Creek, in the Dismal Swamp, where the murdered deputies were hidden. Murphy, handcuffed and bound with a rope to Rester, showed the way, lighted by electric torches of the posse. The moment for a lynching was ideal, and the posse threatened, but its leader, Senator Johnson, pleaded with it to keep faith with the law.

At the body of the dead cow Murphy stopped. Under the decaying carcass in the black slime of the creek bed, the posse found the body of Crain, pierced by two bullets. Ten feet away, under a log, was found the body of Pierce. A bullet hole was in the abdomen, another in the leg and two in the back.

Murphy today repeated his confession. "I am sorry, and I am willing to pay the penalty," he said.

Twelve men now are held in connection with the moonshine activities and killing of the deputies, and more arrests are expected tomorrow, according to Sheriff J. E. Bateman. The prisoners are: Murphy, Rester, Kelley Rester, Pete Little, Jeffray Smith, John McGurk, M. F. Little, Young Williams, B. J. Williams, Dameris Rester, Jap Little and Frank Carter.

The double murder was in fulfillment of a threat by members of the moonshine band of the backwoods that "any one who bothers us will be killed," said Sheriff Bateman this afternoon.

ARRESTS NIP A PLOT TO PLACE RUPPRECHT ON BAVARIAN THRONE

Kingdom to Be Set Up Was Intended as a Nucleus of a New German Empire.

BOTHMER, KINGMAKER, HELD

ONE SUSPECT A SUICIDE

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 7.—Arrests of conspirators against the present form of the Bavarian Government caused great excitement in Munich today. An unofficial Bavarian announcement says:

"At the end of February it became known to the authorities that a number of persons who stand outside political circles had decided to bring about a forcible change. In consequence fifteen arrests were made. Seven persons were held for trial and the others discharged.

"The leaders of the conspiracy are Professor Fuchs and Musical Leader Hugo Machaus, both of Munich. On Feb. 28 Counsellor Dr. Kuehles was arrested in connection with the same charge but after a thorough examination was dismissed for lack of evidence. Yesterday Dr. Kuehles shot and killed himself in his country house near Munich."

This is all the information which the Bavarian authorities have vouchsafed so far. From a Monarchist source, which is not above the suspicion of trying to obliterate evidence, a version is being spread that the men named had entered into a conspiracy with a coal dealer from Prague, who pretended that he could induce the Czechoslovakian Government to invade Bavaria. It was agreed, according to this version, that in the general upheaval following the desired change of government should take place.

In connection with this version, it should be noted that the Bavarian Government takes special pains to disavow a political character for the men arrested. It is quite likely that Professor Fuchs, a theatrical manager and writer, and musical leader Machaus did not belong to any of the parties represented in the Bavarian Diet, but they have certainly been known for their activity in monarchist circles.

If Dr. Kuehles had not committed suicide, perhaps nothing at all might have been heard of this conspiracy, which, it is stated, was to culminate in an open rebellion on March 12. Kuehles was a brother-in-law of Count Bothmer, called the would-be kingmaker of Munich, and is known as having shared the latter's political ideas. In his capacity of Counselor to the Association of Munich Wholesale Coal Dealers Kuehles, it is alleged, made the acquaintance of the Prague coal dealer mentioned above, and the two, together with Count Bothmer and others, hatched a plan of making Crown Prince Rupprecht King of South Bavaria, which was to form a nucleus for a new German Empire.

Professor Fuchs, who was supposed to have great influence with the press, having been part owner of the biggest Bavarian paper, The Muenchener Neueste Nachrichten, was to act as Prime Minister of the new Bavarian State.

According to later telegrams Count Bothmer was also arrested. From papers discovered in Kuehles's villa it is believed that he was to have acted as a sort of economic dictator and his friend, the coal dealer, pledged that he and his Prague friends would supply provisions, arms and coal in case Bavaria should be separated from the rest of Germany.

In the lobby of the Reichstag this evening, the Munich conspiracy was widely discussed. There was a rumor that Chancellor Cuno's sudden decision to abandon his Munich trip was due to information received by the Federal Government concerning the discovery of the conspiracy, because his presence in the Bavarian capital at such a time might compromise his position in the eyes of the world.

The Bavarian Government is trying its best to minimize the affair by stating tonight that none of the conspirators had been able to interest serious political circles in their scheme.

Paris Hears Germany Orders Ruhr Employes Back to Work

PARIS, Thursday, March 8.—Employes of the post and telegraph offices at Coblenz, Diez and Lassau returned to work yesterday under orders from Berlin, it is stated here.

The greatest importance is attached to the move as indicating that Germany is finding her policy of passive resistance too prejudicial to her interests.

The postal employes at Mayence are waiting impatiently for similar orders, it is said, and general abandoning by the Reich of certain phases of resistance in the near future is expected.

BRITISH SEE NEW SITUATION RISING

Meanwhile Will Stand on Their Rights and Keep Silent Till It Develops.

WON'T COMMIT THEMSELVES

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 7.—With characteristic bluntness Premier Bonar Law told the House of Commons yesterday that with regard to the Ruhr the Government had nothing to propose, and went on to remark that to have a policy which could not succeed was worse than to have no policy at all.

His remarks have called forth the usual attacks from his press opponents and there is no doubt that as the recent by-elections showed the Government has lost a great deal of popularity among those of its supporters who are swayed by the Rothermere press by persisting in its policy of watching. For it has a very definite policy if an unsensational one.

It is believed a new situation is developing in Europe that forces impossible to turn from their course or even to measure are at work, and that until they have gone further it would be useless and dangerous to intervene. France has entered on a line of action and is determined to carry it out. Great Britain believes it disastrous, but she can do nothing to alter it. She must stand aside for the moment and let the French follow out their desires, always supposing they do not infringe on British rights.

Britain Jealous of Her Rights.

Great Britain has her rights, and her Government will insist on them as soon as they are seriously threatened. The French are well aware of that, and the silence of the British Government is giving them much concern. When Downing Street will assert itself and in what way they cannot foresee, and so while Mr. Poincaré and the French Government are silent, various publicists are suggesting all kinds of developments of the present situation, most of them unpleasant to England—apparently with the intention of drawing forth some expression of authoritative British opinion. That, at any rate, is the view in well-informed quarters here.

One French writer of reputation proposes a Continental bloc; another extols an alliance with Russia, and a third expatiates on the value of a close association with Italy, but it is considered here that semi-official inspiration is behind them all, not because the Quai d'Orsay believes any of these things practical politics today, but because it deems it wise to release ballons d'essai to find out how the wind is blowing in England.

So far they have been quite unsuccessful. The British Government says nothing, and the London press is far too busy discussing the Ruhr problem from purely party points of view to have room to deal with phantoms of vast European combinations of the future.

The only point thus raised by the Paris press to which any serious consideration has been given is the possibility of France trying to negotiate a separate treaty with Germany. Against that THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is in the position to say the British Government would be unalterably opposed. It realises, of course, that to get out of the present mess there must be a separate conversation between Paris and Berlin.

Will Germany talk reparations once more with France in the Ruhr without conditions, or must France withdraw her troops before any advance to a settlement is made? Purely preliminary questions such as these obviously concern only France and Belgium, unless the intervention of a third party is invited, but as soon as negotiations get so far as to affect the Treaty of Versailles, England will exert

American Negroes to Work Ruhr Mines Contracted For by France, Detective Says

The French Government will import American negro miners to work the seized coal mines in the Ruhr district of Germany, according to Harry V. Dougherty, of the detective agency bearing his name, who announced yesterday that he had completed negotiations with the French to supply the labor. Mr. Dougherty, who arrived on the White Star Liner Majestic, said that from 2,500 to 5,000 West Virginia negro miners would be sent to the Ruhr. The first contingent is to sail on the Orduna on March 15, he said.

"I conducted negotiations with Louis Jevesu, French Commissioner in charge of labor in the Ruhr," Mr. Dougherty said. "Under the terms the Americans are to receive $7 a day net with food and lodging and compensation in the event of injuries. At least 500 will leave on the 15th to be followed by other details until enough men have been supplied. I plan to send 2,500 but it may be that 5,000 will be necessary."

Mr. Dougherty said that Arabian labor had been tried with unfavorable results, not being fitted for the work. He said George S. Dougherty, his brother, had taken up the question of sending miners from here with Ambassador Jusserand, and that the latter had been in touch with Secretary of State Hughes in order that no international complications might ensue.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Secretary Hughes authorized a statement tonight that he never had heard of a plan to transport American negroes to Europe to work in coal mines in the Ruhr. He did this after being informed that Harry V. Dougherty had announced he intended to carry out such a project; that Ambassador Jusserand of France had discussed the matter with Mr. Hughes and that the Secretary of State had given assurances that no international complications would result. It was stated that no such proposition or any of a similar nature had been discussed with Mr. Hughes by any one.

At the French Embassy it was declared that nothing was known of the Dougherty plan or of Dougherty. A statement was authorized that any announcement by Dougherty that the project had been laid before Secretary Hughes by the French Ambassador was "pure fabrication."

REICHSTAG CHIEFS SOLIDLY BACK CUNO; BAR ANY OVERTURES

David Says France Can Have Reparations and Peace, but Not Annexation.

STRESEMANN FOR ACCORD

But Declares Paris Must Show the Way—Industrialists Accept Sacrifices.

PUBLIC WITH CHANCELLOR

Even the Vossische Zeitung Praises Him — French Say His Stand Prolongs Severe Measures.

BERLIN, March 7 (Associated Press).—The Reichstag today debated Chancellor Cuno's speech made to that body yesterday. The discussion revealed general unanimity in support of the Government's statement, while in the corridors the talk chiefly concerned itself with the effect of the Chancellor's speech abroad.

In the debate Dr. Eduard David, for the Socialists, said that the French ought to understand that an agreement was always possible with France desiring only reparations and peace, but with France wanting to annex the Rhineland and the Ruhr, never.

Herr Horst, Conservative, regretted that Chancellor Cuno had not announced a rupture of diplomatic relations and a policy of reprisals.

Herr Stresemann of the People's Party said:

"No reasonable-minded person will oppose an understanding with France, but in her procedure it is now up to France to create prerequisites for such an understanding."

Herr Stresemann added that the signatories of the Versailles Treaty and its intellectual instigators, even if they did not sign, were morally pledged to protect Germany against territorial aggression or annexations under whatever pretext these might be attempted. He deprecated the practice of spreading irresponsible rumors in the present national situation and alluded specifically to a report that the Krupp plant had hoisted the American flag in an attempt to establish an American protectorate.

"These troublous times," he continued, "have demonstrated that the business is capable of subordinating private mercantile interests to the patriotic needs of the hour."

Public Opinion With Cuno.

Public opinion, if it be truly reflected by the press, stands whole-heartedly by the Chancellor in this attitude of keeping the country amenable to a reasonable approach and yet solidly opposed to initiating overtures for new pourparlers.

Some of the newspapers take pleasure in the fact that the address seemed to carry an appeal to foreign countries for mediation, although some of them do not construe it in just that way.

"An appeal? Certainly," says the Lokal-Anzeiger, "but not to foreign countries. It was an appeal to us Germans."

"The paper expresses the conviction, nevertheless, that if the address indirectly operated to give the outside world a plain, ungarnished picture of things as they actually are on the Rhine "it will not be a bad arrow in Germany's quiver."

The Tages Zeitung says that it cannot be Germany which in this situation will again make a move toward negotiation by extending her hand. "She has had to pull it back after it had been spat upon all too often," the newspaper remarks.

The Tageblatt thinks that the speech, "which began with an outcry against the physical overwhelming of millions of Germans by the French and ended with the declaration of a fundamental willingness for an agreement, may serve to clear the European atmosphere overhead."

Reference to Republic Praised.

The Vossische Zeitung, which of late has been rather cool toward the Government, expresses pleasure that the Chancellor, "for the first time since assuming office, saw fit to refer to the country as 'the German Republic,' and it declares that the address should dissipate the fears generally aroused recently through sensational reports.

The Berliner Boersenkurier says that if Chancellor Cuno's listeners and those who read his speech found his long recital of French violence in the Ruhr tedious, it must be remembered that it was Germany's duty to tell what she was suffering and that the protest was necessary.

"But it will hardly reach the ears of foreign countries," adds the newspaper. "The world, however, it declares, "must learn to appreciate what so far it has been reluctant to appreciate—that it is not the duty of the maltreated but of the maltreater to say what is the purpose of the maltreatment. * * * What has happened has happened not because we did not wish to negotiate, but rather because France has not wanted to negotiate. Every possibility of 'agreement' brings as a reply the preliminary question: 'What does France want?'"

The Rote Fahne, the Communist organ, while apparently agreeing with the protest against the alleged brutality of the French, says that only the proletariat is in a position to speak for those who have been wronged.

Party Leaders' Views Met.

The aloofness with which the Chancellor's pronouncement referred to the prospects of foreign mediation or the initiation of direct negotiations with France meets with the positive approval of the party leaders, who believe that the situation in the occupied territories has now drifted into such a hopeless impasse that overtures must emanate from the invading powers.

The United Socialists are pleased with the sections of Herr Cuno's speech dealing with the foreign political aspect of the situation, and are inclined to tolerate a non-committal attitude on the issue of negotiations.

Contrary to general expectations, the Chancellor omitted all specific reference to the German reparation proposals sent to Paris on Jan. 1, but which did not come up for consideration at the meeting of the Entente Premiers. There is a pronounced feeling in Reichstag quarters that Herr Cuno neglected a strategic advantage by failing to make these known immediately after the French marched into Essen.

Neutral diplomatic circles here are divided on the question whether the Chancellor's speech is a useful contribution in the current situation. They profess to see no present practical purpose served in his obvious desire to steer a middle course, despite the statement that the German Government is ready to enter negotiations which give it a status of complete equality.

Socialist Support Won.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 7.—The German press almost without any exception comments favorably today on Chancellor Cuno's speech in the Reichstag yesterday, though the organs of the Right avoid reference to his expression of faith in the republic, while the republican organs miss his outspoken warning against monarchist intrigues.

On the whole, the speech seems to have strengthened Herr Cuno's position considerably with all parties, even the Socialists, who bear the brunt of resistance in the Ruhr district. Their organ, Vorwärts, says:

"The Chancellor emphasized peremptorily the German people's determination to continue passive resistance against France's high-handed proceedings and regarding the ever-growing firmness of this determination there cannot be the slightest doubt, but he entirely ignored the wishes of the extreme Right to employ hostile methods, which, indeed, could not possibly lead to anything good. This must be noted, although we do not think that Herr Cuno deserves any special credit for it. No statesman with any feeling of responsibility would permit himself to be thus influenced by passionate outsiders.

Doubts on Offering a Program Now.

"The Chancellor saw fit to disclose a comprehensive program. Opinions differ as to whether this was a mistake. Such a German reparation program, made public at this moment, would surely influence those in our favor who are of good will, but on the other hand who are?

"Doubtless a reparation program paying conscientious attention to Germany's actual solvency could not stand as feebly against a contentious press campaign as against sober discussion around a green table. Besides, it is yet a question whether the present German Government is really prepared to negotiate.

"Five times Herr Cuno referred in his speech to the preparedness of his Government to come to an understanding with France, and then suddenly he spoke as follows:

"'Away with talk of negotiations! No more admonitions to come to an understanding! Such appeals should be directed to the French Government.'

"In connection with Herr Cuno's preceding sentences, these words could only be interpreted as meaning that the German Government has always been prepared to negotiate, but France would not permit. Therefore a false impression would be caused if this call for negotiation is addressed to Germany instead of France. However, when Herr Cuno pronounced the words, 'Away with talk of negotiations!' there was a wild outburst of applause by the Right.

Relies on Public Opinion.

"Unhappily, this incident is bound to open a dispute as to whether the present German Government is at all prepared to negotiate. Still we must insist that this is not all-important. In the present circumstances the policy of the Government will be directed under the pressure of the will of the masses in one or another direction, and this or any future Government will only be a tool of this will of the masses.

"This much must be said: Any Government capitulating to French imperialism would be impossible in Germany today. We cannot submit to an impossible reparation program or continued occupation of German territory by French troops. Nevertheless, a German Government that would refuse reparation in money and goods as far as possible would be equally unthinkable.

"The Chancellor spoke of the necessity of making sacrifices. Doubtless our wealthy classes have not done their share yet. But the Entente's policy is furnishing our shirkers with their best excuse. They say it is like pouring water into a bottomless barrel as long as the Entente refuses to fix reparations on reasonable terms.

"Once that is done we shall have strength enough to make the shirkers pay. Until that time the Social Democracy is ready to fight the battle in the front line."

The opinion of Vorwärts is of especial importance now because it the Socialists desert Cuno the Ruhr resistance would unfailingly collapse.

Gives Encouragement in Ruhr.

ESSEN, March 7 (Associated Press).—Chancellor Cuno's speech in the Reichstag has had a decided effect in stimulating the passive resistance among the hundreds of thousands of workmen in the Ruhr as well as the heads of industry, according to German sources here.

The French, on the contrary, declare that the speech was disappointing to the population, which had hoped to find in it a more definite declaration that might lead to negotiations with France.

German trade union leaders here are almost unanimous in the statement that the speech will make the factory workers and coal miners more determined than ever to maintain their resistance to occupation.

DUESSELDORF, March 7.—The Nachrichten says that Chancellor Cuno's speech was a masterpiece and that it constituted a solid cornerstone upon which German freedom of the future will be built.

The Mitteg declares that the speech has further united all parties in the Ruhr.

INCITEMENT VAIN, PARIS SAYS.

View Is Held That Cuno Has Not Changed the Situation.

PARIS, March 7 (Associated Press).—Chancellor Cuno in his speech before the Reichstag yesterday showed that the German Government was making vain efforts to stir up public opinion and incite the Ruhr workmen against the occupational forces, it was declared at the Foreign Office today. By the very charges he made concerning French atrocities, he showed that his policy had not met with success, it was added.

The world was now aware, the statement set forth, of the restraint placed upon the French troops, who were purposely avoiding conflicts with the workmen. Further, with the elimination of the German security police, the number of untoward incidents was rapidly diminishing with the majority of the population maintaining an attitude of indifference.

The semi-official Temps says that the Cuno speech does not modify the situation, and that "France can only continue the struggle she was obliged to undertake."

The Journal des Débats holds that the Chancellor's speech was, above all, an appeal to President Harding and Premier Bonar Law. "But," adds the paper, "the Prime Minister declared yesterday that he did not want to intervene, because France is behind M. Poincaré, and the American Cabinet is equally resolved not to mix in the Franco-German conflict."

La Liberté finds both Cuno's and Bonar Law's speeches entirely negative, the only thing outstanding from the Chancellor's remarks being the declaration that it is not for the Germans to make an offer.

"Kushman, shortly before the final breakdown of Germany's military resistance," adds the paper, "said that the Germans would never ask for peace. Cuno's 'never' may also precede an early backdown."

LLOYD GEORGE OFFER SPURNED BY ASQUITH

Liberal Reunion Means Returning to the Liberal Fold, He Replies to the Independents.

HE WANTS NO CENTRE PARTY

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 7.—Former Premier Asquith, speaking at Cambridge tonight, made a reply to Mr. Lloyd George's recent appeal for Liberal reunion but gave no direct response to the latter's suggestion that the Liberal leaders should confer together to this end. Mr. Asquith declared that he was all for Liberal reunion in the only sense in which he understood the term—that was co-operation of all Liberals in the pursuit of Liberal principles through the agency of a Liberal Party. He was entitled, however, to ask those who were now urging the paramount and immediate necessity of some drastic work to hasten liberal union whether they looked upon it as a stepping-stone toward a Centre Party or whether the idea of a Centre Party had been definitely abandoned.

Quoting from the speech delivered by Mr. Lloyd George last November, in which he suggested that one outcome of the election might be the formation of a Centre Party made up of the moderate men of many parties, Mr. Asquith said this meant in fact a coalition under an alias, and in such a party there was no place for him or, he believed, for many of his friends.

As regards the leadership of the Liberal Party, Mr. Asquith said he was elected its leader fifteen years ago. He had not yet resigned that post, and as far as he knew he had not been deposed from it. He quoted from the reply he has sent to George Lambert, who had informed him that Liberal members of both groups proposed holding a meeting to discuss the situation. In that reply Mr. Asquith suggested that the most promising road to Liberal unity appeared to him to be by co-operation in debate and in the division lobby in Parliament.

"And yet," he said, "tonight an analysis of the votes in parliamentary divisions recorded by the fifty-three Lloyd Georgean or National Liberal members shows that twenty-six of them voted more often with the Government than with the opposition."

Mr. Asquith said he did not agree with Lloyd George's attack on the Labor Party, which had been pilloried by the ex-Premier as "the common enemy."

"Liberals have no quarrel with labor as such," he said. "They even shared many aims with the more responsible factions of what is called the Labor Party."

The Daily Chronicle interprets Mr. Asquith's speech as a "blank refusal" to confer with Lloyd George.

Lloyd George Book Again Delayed.

The Central News Agency says: "The movement toward Liberal unity is likely to postpone still further the publication of Mr. Lloyd George's book on the war, and if the gestures toward unity which have been made appear likely to bring success the whole plan of the book will probably be remodeled.

"Mr. Lloyd George's intention was to deal critically with the conduct of the war under the Asquith administration, to repudiate the suggestions which had common currency as to the methods which were alleged to have caused the fall of the Asquith Government, and to emphasize the efficiency of the Lloyd George Government in conducting the war.

"When it became clear that the Conservatives had definitely broken away from the Coalition, and when Liberal reunion began to be talked about immediately after the election, the danger of permanently alienating the Independent Liberals by criticism of Mr. Asquith's administration became apparent, since the necessity for postponing publication to admit of a treatment of the subject least calculated to cause offence to Mr. Asquith's colleagues and friends.

"The date of publication of the book has not yet been fixed, and indeed, in the form in which it will ultimately appear, it is not yet written."

MUSSOLINI SENDS DEMAND.

Wants Atonement for Attack on Italians in Bavaria.

ROME, March 7 (Associated Press).—Premier Mussolini today telegraphed to the Italian Ambassador in Berlin and the Italian Consul in Munich instructing them to enter strong protests against an attack which has been made on seventeen Italian workmen in Bavaria.

It is reported that the workmen, accompanied by a priest, were passing through Germany on their way to Belgium and were forced to leave the train at Rosenheim, where a crowd manhandled them in the belief that they were bound for the Ruhr.

Premier Mussolini in his telegram instructed the Ambassador and the Consul to demand exemplary punishment of the ringleaders of the attack and compensation for the victims. He also informed the German and Bavarian Governments in the strongest terms that Italy will not permit maltreatment of her subjects and will defend them, whatever the consequences.

Monte Carlo before he died twenty years ago.

As for her daughter, Mrs. Lorens said she had heard nothing from her since three years ago, when she received a postal card saying the young woman was going abroad. She had come to believe her daughter dead. For some years after she had begun to play on the Paris stage under the sponsorship of Bataille, she said her daughter had sent 50 francs monthly, but this stopped five years ago. She was unable to say whether her daughter had married an American or married at all.

A friend of Mr. Millett, reached last night by telephone, expressed surprise at the statements made in the French court and said that although he had been abroad at the time of Mr. Millett's second marriage, he had always believed the bride of Scotch parentage. Members of the firm of Millett, Roe & Hagen refused to comment after the dispatch had been read to them by telephone. At Mr. Millett's apartment, 810 Park Avenue, it was said that he was in Europe. His mother, Mrs. Stephen Millett, 20 West Forty-ninth Street, at whose home Mr. Millett and Miss Rose Neal were married in 1921, was also said to be in Europe.

BERLIN HEARS FRENCH PLAN BIG ADVANCE

Talk of Occupation of Frankfort, Munich and Other South German Cities.

BERLIN, March 7 (Associated Press).—A dispatch from Karlsruhe says that French troops in motor lorries have crossed the Maxau bridge, apparently with the object of reinforcing the French customs lines. The railway line between Karlsruhe and Kehl was occupied by the French this morning. They ejected the German officials and seized a number of railway wagons, some of them loaded, and dispatched them in the direction of Alsace.

The Tageblatt reports that 100 men and three officers of the occupying forces have entered Kniellingen, a few miles from Karlsruhe.

The Munich correspondent of the Acht Uhr Abendblatt in a dispatch to his paper says he has learned from a "visiting diplomat" that the French intend to occupy Frankfort next week, and that the occupation of Munich and other points in South Germany is to occur in about three weeks. Belgian troops, it was added, would also be used in occupying Munich.

The correspondent's informant stated that this movement would follow a plan drawn up by General Degoutte, commanding the Franco-Belgian forces in the Ruhr. It was sharply opposed by Marshal Foch, however, and the "diplomat" himself was doubtful whether it would be carried out.

President Loebe of the Reichstag announced today that Pastor Korrell, Deputy for the occupied area, has been expelled by the Rhineland Commission on account of alleged inflammatory speeches.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, March 7 (Associated Press).—According to reports from German quarters the French have forbidden further deliveries of English coal to the dye works at Hoechst. Hitherto these plants have been permitted to receive English shipments through an arrangements made by the German Railway Administration.

POINCARE GOING TO BELGIUM.

Barthou, Already There, Opens Discussion on Ruhr Plans.

PARIS, March 7 (Associated Press).—Louis Barthou, President of the Reparation Commission, is in Brussels today for conferences with Premier Theunis and M. Delacroix, Belgian member of the commission.

It is understood that the conferees will discuss, in addition to possible Ruhr penalties, the position to be taken by the French and Belgians when the time for negotiations with Germany arrives.

Premier Poincaré will probably go to Brussels next week to continue the exchange of views begun by M. Barthou. The date for the Premier's departure has not yet been fixed, but it is likely to be March 12 or a little later.

Cartier Candace, a colored member of the Chamber of Deputies from the Island of Guadeloupe, has written Premier Poincaré announcing his intention to question the Premier in the Chamber concerning the withdrawal from the Ruhr of 200 colored soldiers coming from Martinique and Guadeloupe.

In his letter to the Premier, M. Candace says statements published regarding the circumstances of the withdrawal of these troops permit the inference that the step was taken in consequence of "the abominable German campaign against troops of color, notwithstanding clear, unexceptionable testimonials in their favor from Americans, such as Major General Henry T. Allen and Colonel Coleman, after a searching investigation."

He concludes by saying that at a moment when France is about to ask her colonies to furnish one-third of her military effectiveness she ought to strengthen the bonds with her overseas possessions by "resisting the malevolent action of all foreign propaganda."

AGREE ON COLOGNE ROADS.

British and French Generals Seek Approval of Governments.

LONDON, March 7 (Associated Press).—General Sir Arthur Godley, commander of the British troops at Cologne, arrived in London today and conferred with War Office officials. Later he met the Cabinet committee and submitted the draft of an agreement drawn up with General Degoutte, commander of the French troops in the German occupied territory, regarding the amount of transport the French should be permitted through the Cologne zone.

In allowing the French approximately ten trains daily across the zone and guaranteeing no trouble with the German workmen in the handling of these trains the British believe they have made ample concessions. The British Government is expected to give speedy approval to the agreement, but until the French have accepted it, officials here see no settlement of the Anglo-French transport snarl in the Ruhr.

UPHOLD OUR CLAIM FOR RHINE ARMY COST

American Point of View Emphasized in Explanations by Washington Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Reports from Europe concerning conversations now in progress at Paris with a view to arranging a settlement of the claim of the United States Government to payment of the cost of maintaining American troops in the occupied area of Germany are declared by officials to be misleading in many particulars.

This Government, it was repeated today, still holds that it is entitled to a share of occupation costs paid by the German Government through the Reparation Commission, which the allied Governments have declined to share with the United States, mainly on the ground that this Government made a separate peace with Germany and should look directly to the German Government for payment.

The lack of agreement so far, it was said, was merely on specific arrangements for their actual liquidation rather than on the general question as to whether or not they should be paid.

It has been suggested in European dispatches that the United States need not be reimbursed for its army costs since its army would have been sent into Germany whether the occupation costs were guaranteed or not. As a matter of fact, it is explained, the United States had no direct interest in sending an expeditionary force into Germany after the victory had been won. The measure was taken merely by way of keeping with those who at that time were allied with us, and not because this country had anything specific to gain by the presence of our troops there.

Of the 1,000,000,000 gold marks paid into the Reparation Commission, about 1,000,000,000 marks were in actual cash, of which this Government has not received a cent.

PARIS STILL HOPES FOR TURKISH TREATY

Foreign Office Expects That Angora Will Make Counter-Proposals to Allies.

BRITISH ARE LESS HOPEFUL

Constantinople Thinks Extremists Lost at Angora and Holds Compromise Is Possible.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—After the receipt of long official telegrams from Turkey the Quai d'Orsay takes a much less serious view than yesterday of the action of the Angora Assembly in refusing to accept the Lausanne Treaty, and expects that the Near East negotiations will be resumed in the near future.

According to these telegrams, while the Assembly declined to accept the treaty as it stood, it is favorably disposed toward the greater part of it. It is expected here that the Turkish Government will notify the Secretariat of the Near East Conference of its decision and make counter-proposals.

It is true that Lord Curzon recently said that the British Government was not disposed to reopen negotiations with the Turks, but in Paris it is felt that the conversations should be resumed, and it is remarked that Premier Mussolini is opposed to rejecting any Turkish proposals without giving them careful examination.

PARIS, March 7 (Associated Press).—The temper of the National Assembly sitting at Angora is sensibly different from what it was represented to be in the first dispatches, according to Constantinople advices received from French diplomatic circles. These advices say that, although the Assembly has not accepted the financial clauses of the Lausanne Treaty as a whole nor a postponement of the Mosul question, it is disposed to agree to a resumption of negotiations with the Allies, for which it is prepared to draw up alternative proposals.

The advices add that there is no reason to believe the territorial and Straits clauses, which form the principal part of the treaty, are likely to be rejected by the Assembly.

The Turkish representatives here say that the action taken at Angora on the Lausanne Treaty is still indecisive. Their advices show that certain questions are still open to discussion, but that the chances are these will be reserved to be taken up at a further conference with the Allies, this meeting to be called in the near future, at a time and place to be decided by the Allies.

"Inviting Powers" Conferring Again.

Preliminary exchanges of views by France, England and Italy concerning the future handling of the Near East situation have been initiated. These three nations were the "inviting powers" for the Lausanne peace conference.

Definite action will necessarily await official advices of the outcome of the Angora Assembly's deliberation, but it seems to have been decided that any resumption of the Near East Conference would be likely to prove fruitless unless there were a preliminary accord among the great powers which would take up discussion of the question at Lausanne or elsewhere.

When the Angora Government officially makes known its desire this exchange of views among the powers will be expedited in an endeavor to reach a common point of view in furtherance of the mutual desire to maintain a united front in the future negotiations with the Turks.

No Excitement in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 7. (Associated Press).—Turkey's rejection of the Lausanne Peace Treaty, which was not unexpected, has been received calmly in both foreign and native circles in Constantinople. The belief persists that it is still possible to reach a middle-ground agreement toward peace.

The Angora Government will now proceed to draft a reply to the Allies, in which it will continue counter-proposals and modifications established by the Assembly's debates and Monday night's resolutions passed by the Assembly, which demand strict adherence to the principles of the National Pact on all matters affecting Turkey's absolute independence.

The situation apparently has settled down for an indefinite period of negotiations, unless trouble is precipitated from another direction by an untoward event, which is always considered possible in the present status of affairs.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch to Reuter's from Constantinople says the Nationalist Government seems to have won a complete victory in the Lausanne Treaty situation in the Assembly at Angora. While the Extremists were vociferating their objections to the Government proposals, the Ministers organized their supporters and quite unlimited debate with a motion of confidence, which specifically endorsed Ismet Pasha's attitude at Lausanne.

The situation therefore is back again where it was at the interruption of the Lausanne conference, and the Government has a free hand to treat upon the economic clauses of the treaty or to leave them until after the signing of general terms of peace.

The dispatch adds that in consequence of an all-night sitting of the Assembly last night it is expected that the Angora Government will communicate its proposals to the powers tonight, or at the latest tomorrow.

The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says that the Vatican is giving effect to its recently declared intention of establishing direct relations with Angora by sending to the Turkish capital a special envoy who is familiar with the Near East.

Washington Likely to Mark Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The action of the Turkish Nationalist Government in rejecting the treaty submitted by the Allied Powers at the Lausanne Conference has brought the State Department face to face with the problem of determining what its course shall be with reference to re-entering into treaty arrangements with Turkey. In sending its observers to Lausanne this Government was actuated partly by the purpose of waiting for the conclusion of a treaty of peace between the allied Governments and Turkey before undertaking to make its own post-war agreement with that country.

The information received by the State Department as to the refusal of the Turkish Government is meager, and officials believe it is the wise thing to wait until they have a clearer idea of what has occurred before determining upon any plan of procedure. It was indicated at the State Department today that the Government would let a reasonable length of time elapse before taking any step. This explanation was made in refutation of reports from Europe that the United States would open negotiations with Turkey looking to the negotiation of a treaty.

The inference from what was said today in informed quarters was that it might be well to let public sentiment express itself before any plan of procedure was adopted.

Officials are apparently of the opinion that courtesy to the Allied Powers requires that this Government refrain from negotiating directly with Turkey while still technically at war with those Powers and in danger of becoming engaged in actual hostilities with them. It was intimated, also, that this Government might find the Turks more reasonably inclined toward foreigners in six months or so than now.

FOCH DID NOT SAVE ARMY, SAYS CADORNA

Italian Ex-Generalissimo Denies Bliss Statement of Disorganization at Piave.

A letter from General Cadorna, former Commander-in-Chief of the Italian Army, emphatically denying a recent statement of General Tasker H. Bliss, former Chief of Staff of the United States Army, that the Caporetto disaster completely disorganized the Italian Army and that General Foch of the French Army arranged for its rehabilitation on his arrival at Italian headquarters, was made public today by the magazine Foreign Affairs. The Bliss statement was made in an article on the development of unified command, published by the magazine.

"The retreat to the Piave line was completed by Nov. 9 and the Austro-German attack was launched on the tenth," General Cadorna wrote. "How could a completely disorganized army victoriously engage the enemy single-handed while the newly arrived Franco-by order of Foch, who had evidently little faith in our ability to resist on the Piave?

"The truth is that only about half of the Second Army had been disorganized, while the remainder and the Third and Fourth Armies remained in perfect order and were fully able to resist without the help of the allied troops, as subsequent events amply demonstrated."

The reorganization of the Italian Army by Foch, he said, was a legend that originated in France. General Foch did not arrive at Italian headquarters until Oct. 30, he asserted, when all arrangements for the defense of the Piave and the reorganization of the affected units had been disposed of by the Italian Supreme Command.

General Bliss, when shown the Italian General's letter, said he regretted any impression of unfairness created by his article.

"I had in mind," he said, "solely the bearing which the Caporetto disaster—not the subsequent events occuring after the withdrawal to the line of the Piave—had upon the creation of the Supreme War Council at Rappallo on Nov. 7, 1917, three days before the Italians victoriously and unaided met the renewed Austro-German attack.

"No one can have a greater admiration than I for the splendid way in which the Italian Supreme Command met the grave situation which for a short time confronted it.

"No one could deny that the Caporetto disaster occurred, and that its first effect, however short a time it lasted, was a very serious disorganization."

$18,000 IN GEMS LOST WHEN AUTO HIT OWNER

Family Withholds News From Max Rappoport, in Serious Condition After Accident.

Max Rappoport, a dealer in diamonds at 137 Hester Street, who is in the Harlem Hospital suffering from injuries caused by an auto on Saturday afternoon at 115th Street and First Avenue, does not know that $18,000 worth of gems he carried at the time has disappeared, Rappoport was unconscious for a long time after his admission to the hospital and his condition has since become so serious that his family have refrained from mentioning the loss to him. The loss was related by his daughter yesterday.

"My father had the diamonds in a case, which he placed in his hip pocket when he went out on Saturday afternoon to see certain customers," she said. "That night, when my mother and I went to the hospital, we found they had no record there of these gems. All they had found in his pockets, they told us, were his watch and chain, keys and a small amount of money.

A crowd stood around Rappoport when the police found him lying in the street and removed him in an ambulance. He had been knocked down and dragged many feet along the street by the auto, the driver of which had fled. Neither the car nor the driver has been located. Whether Rappoport's case of diamonds was dragged from his pocket and lost while he was under the auto with the thousands gathered, or whether he was robbed of them while he was unconscious in the street, investigation has not disclosed.

The Luisi Investigating Company, at 18 Exchange Street, was engaged yesterday by an insurance company to investigate the loss of the gems. According to these investigators, a number of gem robberies have recently been referred to them for special inquiry. One of these cases was the report of a hold-up and robbery of $15,000 in gems from a salesman in a taxicab. The agency withheld the name of the victim and said this robbery had not been reported to the police.

TO LOWER GERMAN PRICES.

Government Will Support Movement for a General Decrease.

BERLIN, March 7 (Associated Press).—The Government, it is semi-officially announced, has resolved to support a general decrease in prices. The downward trend began with the appreciation of the mark.

The price of bread will not be raised and the contemplated increase in railway freight rates will not be put into effect. An investigation is proceeding with a view to reducing the prices of the most important industrial raw materials.

Furthermore, it is announced that there will be no further increase in the price of coal. Fertilizers were recently reduced from 8 to 10 per cent. The announcement points out that if the reductions are to be maintained or extended, it is absolutely necessary that there be no demands for higher wages.

COMMONS DISCUSS NEWCASTLE DISPUTE

Government Denies Labor M. P.'s Charge That Our Consul Was Treated Badly.

McNEILL BLAMES AMERICAN

Insists That Consul Did Use His Position to Aid American Interests Against British.

LONDON, March 7 (Associated Press).—The closing of the American Consulate at Newcastle-on-Tyne was under discussion in the House of Commons tonight. David Adams, Laborite member for Newcastle, complained that very material disadvantage had been done the trade in that area, and said that "the arbitrary and sudden closing of the consulate was a high-handed act on the part of the Foreign Office against a great and friendly nation," adding that the United States Government had acted with most commendable toleration.

The present position, he said, was intolerable, and he suggested that the matter should be submitted to an impartial tribunal.

Ronald McNeill, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replying for the Government, said the Government fully shared in the dissatisfaction felt on the subject, but it was incorrect to say that the Foreign Office had acted in a high-handed or peremptory manner. The Foreign Office had no power in the matter, and did not close the Consulate.

Reviewing the history of the complaints made to the Board of Trade, he asserted that the Foreign Office took the evidence in no "hole-and-corner manner," as had been suggested. It was an unfortunate circumstance that the persons who had the evidence stipulated that their names should not be divulged, but the evidence left no doubt whatever, and he believed the House would have no doubt, that the Consul did use his position in order to promote, in opposition to British shipping interests, the interests of his own country.

Mr. McNeill denied that Great Britain had refused information to the United States, on the contrary it had placed the evidence in the American Government's hands while withholding the names, which were immaterial to the issue. A representative of the American Government, who was then in London, interviewed Foreign Office officials, and the latter fully believed that an amicable compromise had been reached.

After the interview, a note was addressed to the United States inclosing the draft of identical instructions drawn up in the agreement, which it was proposed should be given to the consular officers of both countries in order to prevent similar incidents, and it was agreed by both sides that if these instructions were immediately given Great Britain would at once abandon the charges against the consulate, which the United States would reopen.

For reasons he had never been able to discover, the American Ambassador on Nov. 9 presented a note refusing the suggested compromise and giving notification that the consulate would not be reopened unless the British Government not only dropped the charges but withdrew them absolutely and admitted that they had not been substantiated.

It was impossible to comply with this, said the Under Secretary, because in the Government's opinion the charges were substantiated.

Mr. McNeill was still speaking when in accordance with the automatic rule, the House adjourned, leaving his speech unfinished.

AVALANCHES FOLLOW FLOOD

Alpine Villages Endangered—Loss in French Towns.

PARIS, March 7.—Floods and avalanches have done considerable damage throughout France and threaten to do more, although the weather prospects tonight are better than at any time in the last three weeks.

The waters of the Seine have begun to filter into some cellars in the low-lying parts of Paris, but because of the improved weather conditions it is thought that the danger of a repetition of the disaster of 1910 is past.

The valleys of the Rhone, Saone, Dordogne and Loire are suffering greatly. Many towns are partly under water and some quarters in Bordeaux have been evacuated.

Several villages are menaced by avalanches in the Alps, where the sudden changing of the temperature has caused tremendous snowslides.

ARMY PLANES AT MIAMI.

One of the Six Delayed, but Arrives Safely—Next Hop to Havana.

MIAMI, Fla., March 7.—All six army airplanes on their overseas flight from Kelly Field, Texas, to Porto Rico, were safe at Curtiss Field here tonight. The plane carrying Lieutenants McDonald and Kirksey, reported missing when five of the ships landed at noon, limped in at 7 o'clock tonight after having made two forced landings en route.

This is the plane that took a nose dive into the water at Pablo Beach on Tuesday.

The arriving officers announced that they will not hop off for Havana until Friday, the original plan having been to hop off Thursday.

her undoubted rights as a signatory to be a party to all that goes on.

Even today she is continually asserting herself on minor matters. She is refraining from solemn remonstrances on the main French policy because she does not believe Poincaré or any other French Minister could harken to them if he would, but she is asking that her own position as one of the powers occupying the Rhineland be respected.

She has protested against arrests of Germans by French soldiers in her zone. She has brought the grievances of British traders under the new customs régime before the French authorities, and Sir Arthur Godley, the British commander on the Rhine, is returning home today to consult the British Government on the vexed problems of the Cologne railroads. Great Britain is biding her time, but she is not allowing herself to be treated as a negligible factor.

Effect on Industries Felt.

Meanwhile in industrial circles the effects of the Ruhr situation is becoming seriously felt. Most serious is the disturbance of the iron, coal and coke markets and the resultant setback to economic stability. At the first of the year the manufacturers were beginning to feel that at last things had settled down. Wholesale prices seemed stabilized and contracts could be made ahead with confidence. But as soon as the French advance began, first French and then German orders came pouring in for British pigiron, coal and coke and prices naturally rose.

It has been good for individual firms of serious for hundreds of others. Something like the instability of the post-war boom is back again and the psychological effect on industry is still more serious. Moreover, cut off from the Rhine mines, the Germans are seeking iron ore in Sweden and Spain, and British smelters are finding prices rising there. On the other hand, there is already a perceptible decline in German competition in some lines of manufactured goods, but it is too early yet to be certain that it is due to the Ruhr mess.

A good deal is said in the French newspapers of the possibility of a permanent union in some way or other of the Lorraine iron and Ruhr coal fields. Political circles here are inclined to minimise it on the ground that even if it did eventuate it would be merely a reversion to the economic conditions which existed before the war.

Industrialists take a more serious view. They see in it the possibility of a combination which would completely dominate the heavy industries of Europe and would give power with political control over it of tremendous advantage in time of war. It would in their opinion outweigh any mere political combination, and would be one of those economic facts which determine the fate of nations.

However, it is realized that so far such a combination is a mere dream, and that even if Italy and the other allies of France were to acquiesce in it, the national sentiment of the German miners presents a rough problem which even the ardor of France has not yet learned to solve.

POST TEN RULES TO END VAST CHECK SWINDLES

Forgery Prevention Bureau Says Care Will Mean Saving of $47,000,000 Annually.

The Forgery Prevention Bureau, 141 Broadway, made public last night instructions for preventing the forging, raising or alteration of checks or other negotiable papers. The statement follows:

"On the basis of total bank clearings of $370,094,058,014 in the United States in 1922, the Forgery Prevention Bureau of New York has compiled estimates showing that the total losses through check forgeries and alterations in 1922 amounted to nearly $47,000,000. This was computed on the estimate that the annual losses through raised and forged checks in the United States average $1 for every $8,000 in clearings.

"The four cities paying the highest toll to forgers in their annual losses were New York, where the losses on this basis were in excess of $27,000,000 in 1922; Chicago, $3,004,836; Philadelphia, $2,511,650, and Boston, $2,064,625. The losses through forgery in New York City alone were more than half of the total for the entire country.

"The estimated losses by Federal Reserve districts were: Boston, $3,849,279 plus; New York, $21,057,398 plus; Philadelphia, $2,690,186 plus; Cleveland, $2,055,138; Richmond, $1,004,416 plus; Atlanta, $903,152 plus; Chicago, $6,894,256 plus; St. Louis, $302,500 plus; Minneapolis, $742,200 plus; Kansas City, $1,555,167 plus; Dallas, $553,000; San Francisco, $1,772,625 plus.

"The greater percentage of these losses, the bureau states, are preventable, as successful alterations of checks in the main are only possible where checks are made or handled carelessly. In the interest of cutting down such losses the bureau has formulated the following ten commandments for check users.

"1. Keep blank checks and canceled vouchers under lock.

"2. Write checks with safety ink or with a check-writing machine that shreds the paper and impregnates it with the amount in ineradicable ink.

"3. In writing checks leave as little space as possible between the figures of the amount and start the written amount as close to the left-hand margin as possible, drawing heavy parallel lines through the unfilled space.

"4. Use only alteration-proof check paper.

"5. Destroy all checks marred in drawing and never permit a check to be issued with any erasures on it.

"6. Do not issue checks to unvouched-for strangers, and never make them out to 'Cash' or 'Bearer.'

"7. Do not sign blank checks.

"8. Scrutinize all certified checks, as the stamps are not difficult to duplicate.

"9. Be careful where and how you sign your banking signature.

"10. On checks you deposit add to your signature 'For deposit only,' thus making it impossible for it to be cashed by a thief without alterations."

BOY KILLED, TWO HURT AS SLED HITS TRUCK

Three Brothers Were Coasting Down 59th Street—Driver Unable to Avoid Collision.

Coasting down San Juan Hill last night, three boys on a sled ran into an automobile truck at Eleventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. Edward Wilson, 12 years old, was killed, and his brother, George, 10, and William Francis, 9, were injured. The three lived at 4 Amsterdam Avenue, between Fifty-nine and Sixtieth Streets.

Christian Sahn of 330 West End Avenue, with whose truck the sled collided, picked the boys up and took them to Roosevelt Hospital. There Dr. Schmidt found that Edward had died of shock. His brother had bruises on both legs and the other boy a broken right arm and cuts on the head and face.

The truckman was arrested on a technical charge of homicide. He will be arraigned in the West Side Court this morning. Sahn told the police that it was impossible for him to avoid the collision. He said he was driving south on Eleventh Avenue when the sled shot down the steep incline. He said he jammed on the brakes and tried to steer around the sled, but could not prevent it hitting his front wheel, spilling the boys in the street. The two boys who survived corroborated Sahn.

HOLIDAYS FOR POLICE TO REWARD VICE 'TIPS'

Inspector Underhill Promises "Bonuses" to Patrolmen Giving Information Leading to Arrest.

On the eve of his twenty-three-day vacation last night, Inspector Thomas V. Underhill promised "bonuses" to the uniformed patrolmen of the Second Inspection District, under his command, who keep their eyes and ears open for vice in the district. The "bonuses" will consist of holidays as rewards for information of vice conditions leading to arrests. The announcement was made in an order issued by Inspector Underhill, copies of which were posted in the Old Slip, Beach Street, Mercer Street, Charles Street and West Thirtieth Street stations, which are included in the Second Inspection District. All a policeman has to do to get a day off is to furnish a "tip" of vice conditions which results in an arrest. The order said:

"Any member who furnishes information in the Second Inspection District as to where gambling or other vice is going on and where arrests are made will be excused from one tour of patrol."

It is understood that the proffered "bonus" does not apply to liquor law violators. The order will be read to patrolmen when going on duty.

WOMEN IN POLITICS ROUSE A. B. SEE'S IRE

Want Publicity or to Get Even With Somebody, Says Foe of Girls' Colleges.

HIS LUCK BAD, SAYS A PORTIA

Mother's Glory Enough, Declares Miss Brandon, Assistant Corporation Counsel.

A. B. See, elevator manufacturer, who recently told the world that he would burn all women's colleges to the ground and put all college girls at hard manual labor for a year, has expressed some more opinions on women in the course of a letter to Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Mr. See now adds to his previous observations that women lack reasoning capacity, and that, "if the world had had to depend on the inventive or reasoning faculty of women, men would still be sleeping on the plains. Here is his letter:

My Dear Mr. Rea—I see by a recent editorial in The New York Herald (Feb. 21) that your Mr. Atterbury went before some women in Philadelphia and besought them to save the railroads. Does not Mr. Atterbury know that women average about five ounces less brain matter than the men; and that the part they lack is the reasoning capacity? Does he not know that if the world had had to depend on the inventive or reasoning faculty of women, men would still be sleeping on the plains?

Does he not know that women never go into politics from a lofty, patriotic motive; but go into politics either to get their names into the newspapers or to vent their spleen against some one? There are few sadder sights than to see women hobbling on high heel shoes up to the legislative bodies, dressed as to show their bosoms and their bunions while they clamor for the passage of laws, the purport and effect of which they have not the mental capacity even to faintly comprehend.

Out with such nonsense!

I have the greatest admiration for those in charge of the railroads; for their accomplishment in constructing, developing and managing the railroads. I have only a feeling of contempt for the way they have allowed themselves to be interfered with, hindered and hampered by men on the outside; men who by their ignorance or their baseness have injured the railroads as a property and caused great loss and inconvenience to the traveling public and to all who avail themselves of these facilities.

Has No Use for Uplifters, Either.

What should the Pennsylvania Railroad Company do to remove the curse and blight of incompetent outside interference? As a railroad company, it should do nothing at all, for its best efforts in that direction would be misinterpeted. Emerson says: "The world's work has ever been done by two or three." There ought to be, there must be, connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad two or three men who can see things outside the general drift of thought, who will set to work to right the wrong to which I have referred.

The great mass of the people are right at heart, mean well, and desire the best good for our country. Out to these people, from the pulpit, the religious press, college professors, uplifters, half-baked writers and other well-intentioned persons, goes a constant stream of poison against those who are giving their best efforts to constructive work.

How is this false teaching to be overcome? Nothing could be easier. This work can best be done by a business men's association. There is no place where this work could be so well carried on as in the New York Chamber of Commerce, located as it is in New York City. As Paris is in a certain sense France, and London England, in that same sense New York City is the United States. So New York City, and the Chamber of Commerce in that city, is the place for this work to be done.

But little can be accomplished by merely having monthly meetings. If the public is to be instructed as to the facts, the work must be carefully planned and quietly managed; it must be unannounced that such a work had been begun; and the work must be carried on day after day, without a break.

It has been truly said that the only excuse there is for the existence for women's political associations is to provide a fine salaried position for a secretary. In many cases so much had been left to secretaries that they have grown to have an exalted opinion of themselves. Their lives have never been tempered by the difficulties which men immersed in business affairs constantly encounter. If the New York Chamber of Commerce is to act the wise part it so easily can, it will be because two or three strong men have fully determined that the chamber, in a quiet way, is to become a power for the nation's good. These men, to do this work, must know fully what they are to do and why and how they are to do it; and the secretary must be told what he is to do and must be made to do it—the same way as any other paid servant. Very truly yours,

ALONZO B. SEE.

In addition to sending his letter to Mr. Rea Mr. See forwarded a copy to the Lucy Stone League, an organization of women which advocates the retention of their maiden names by married women.

Dean Gildersleeve Champions Girls.

Dean Virginia Gildresleeve of Barnard College, who said she recalled Mr. See's remarks about women's colleges very well, and who expressed the opinion that the attendant publicity had been a valuable aid to the Adelphi College campaign for funds at which the remarks were directed, said she could not take the elevator manufacturer seriously.

"In co-educational institutions, I am told," she said, "the girls as a rule got better marks than the boys. Women in colleges certainly hold their end up, possibly because they are more conscientious and industrious. I really do not believe there is much difference so far as brain capacity goes. Professors who teach both in Columbia and Barnard tell us—this may be just to make us happy—that the young women are better students than the young men. I recall that the first year that women were graduated from the Medical School a woman led the class. I particularly remember this because she was a Barnard graduate."

Miss Frances Marion Brandon, Assistant Corporation Counsel, also declined to be cast down by Mr. See's opinions.

"He is not at all representative of man's present attitude toward women," she said. "As a matter of fact, the tremendous work the women of the entire country did in helping to win the war, their magnificent organization and the like, has put at rest forever any question of their fundamental fitness. I happen to be a lawyer and not a doctor, so that I cannot talk authoritatively, but it is my belief, which some woman doctor will confirm, that woman's brain is actually a trifle weightier than man's. However, it would be as utterly preposterous to base brain ability upon brain size as to say that big men are abler than little men.

"The really tremendous point for Mr. See and other men of his unemancipated type is to remember that women are the mothers of the race. That is glory enough for my sex. Mr. See sounds as though he had had an endless chain of disappointments in love. Maybe if his luck would change, his opinions of women would change also. Had it not been for a woman, Isabella, where might the world, America, Volstead and Mr. See be today?"

SHIP'S DELAY AIDS RECOVERY OF GEMS

Passenger Gets Them, With $1,000 From Hotel Bed, but Misses the Paris.

A delay in the sailing hour of the Paris of the French line, caused by the tardy arrival of the outward bound mail, proved fortunate for Umberto Genovese, an Italian lumberman from Westwood, Cal., who discovered a half hour after the steamer should have started that his wife had left valuable jewelry and $1,000 under a mattress in a hotel where they had stopped over night.

The sobs of Mrs. Genovese and the excitement among the four children of the couple, won the sympathy of passengers who talked with them as Genovese rushed away in a taxicab. He returned with the recovered jewelry and money only to find that the Paris was outward bound with his family. He sent a radio to his wife that he would join her in Milan on the next steamer available.

Hugh C. Wallace, former Ambassador to France, and Mrs. Wallace sailed for a continental pleasure trip of several months. He declined to comment on national or international affairs. United States Senator George H. Moses and Mrs. Moses, of New Hampshire, left on a vacation. Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Guggenheim were also among the voyagers.

The Baroness Robin D'Erlanger, formerly Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, who has been here in connection with litigation growing out of the settlement of the Hewitt estate, sailed with her husband. The Baroness said that her daughter, on whom a settlement of $13,000 annually was sought from the estate, was in Paris.

Edward Childs Carpenter, playwright, who is President of the American Dramatist's Association, another passenger, said he would visit France and England to bring about closer relations with writers, and also to work out a uniform program covering copyrights and the relationships between publishers and playwrights and producers and playwrights.

Other passengers were Prince Engelitcheff; Doris Keane, actress, who refused to be interviewed or photographed; Haidee Wright, London actress; Mrs. Robert Milton, wife of the American stage director and playwright, and her son, Paul R. Milton; L. Icart, French fashion artist and painter; Bronislaw Huberman, Polish violinist; Charles E. Shull, editor-in-chief of The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; Willis H. Booth, Vice President Guaranty Trust Company; Itheo Rousseau, General Manager Guaranty Trust Company, Paris; F. I. Kent, Vice President Blanker Trust Company, and Mrs. Kent; Ben E. West, banker, of Grand Rapids.

Also Russell J. Boyle, member of the banking firm of Fenton, Davis & Boyle; Henri Jonas, President of the French Chamber of Commerce, Montreal; J. A. Trudeau, French Line general agent for Canada; C. D. Caldwell of Chicago, President of the By-Products Coke Company, going to Paris, Naples and Rome to attend the sessions of the International Chamber of Commerce; Pierre Lepoutre, director Lafayette Worsted Mills, Woonsocket, R. I.; James Keillor, buyer for B. Altman & Co., and O. L. Biebinger, Secretary of the Mallinckrodt Chemical Works of St. Louis, and Mrs. Biebinger and their daughter Marguerite.

SCHWAB, ILL, GIVES UP TRIP TO GERMANY

Will Sail Saturday for America, Hoping Voyage Will Restore His Health.

PARIS, March 7 (Associated Press).—Charles M. Schwab has been compelled by the state of his health to abandon his trip to the Ruhr and unoccupied Germany and will sail for home on the steamship Aquitania from Cherbourg on Saturday.

Mr. Schwab, who was taken with an attack of grip soon after leaving New York, was forced to remain in bed during most of his stay in London and went to the Riviera in an attempt to throw it off. The attack persisting, he has decided to go home, hoping to recover during the sea voyage.

He had planned to travel through Germany and study industrial conditions there, not only for his personal information but to secure data on which to base an informal report to President Harding. In view of his lack of first-hand information, the American capitalist has refused to comment on the situation while here.

Mr. Schwab has not abandoned his intention to visit Germany, however, and indicates that he will do so on his next trip to Europe.

OKLAHOMAN HAS PLAN TO LICENSE EDITORS

Legislator Proposes Examiners for All to Handle 'Copy' and Thus Lessen Libel.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 7.—Newspaper editors, reporters and all persons engaged in handling "copy" for publication would be required to pass an examination before a State board of newspaper examiners and pay $10 for a license under a bill introduced in the upper house of the State Legislature today.

The measure, according to its author, seeks to lower the libel average by raising the standard of personnel of Oklahoma newspapers.

Provision is made in the proposal for "cubs," who are defined as students. They would not be licensed and their editors would be responsible for their acts.

HARDING LAUDS WANAMAKER

Calls Him One of the "Most Useful Americans of His Time."

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—President Harding, in a letter to the committee in charge of the campaign to raise a fund by public subscription for the erection of a memorial to John Wanamaker, heartily endorsed the project, adding that Mr. Wanamaker was one of the "most useful Americans of his time." The letter, made public today, read:

"I am glad of the opportunity to express my unqualified approval of the program of the John Wanamaker memorial fund to erect a fitting memorial statue in honor of his public service, charity and citizenship. Mr. Wanamaker was in many fields of activities, among the most useful Americans of his time, and whatever is calculated to keep alive the inspiration of his career and to impress it upon future generations is certain to be a true public service."

MUSSOLINI TROOPS ENFORCE A WARNING

Military on Display as He Delivers a Speech Telling Italians to Bear Burdens.

WANTS PEOPLE'S CONSENT

But Army Will "Help" Them to "Make Up Their Minds"—Ceremony Over Budgets.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 7.—"Whatever measures the Government may take, however hard to bear they may appear, we will place Italian citizens before this dilemma: either they accept them out of a high sense of patriotism or else they will submit to them. This is my conception of the duties of State and this is the way I understand the art of governing the nation," said Premier Mussolini in a speech today.

Mussolini loses no opportunity of reminding the Italian people that now that he has the helm of State safely in his hands he does not intend to let go of it easily. Today he took advantage of an ancient custom by which each Minister must deliver into the hands of the Minister of Finance the yearly budget of expenses of his ministry. Mussolini in his double capacity of Minister of the Interior and of Foreign Affairs personally handed over his budgets. This ceremony was done in solemn fashion and with a great display of military forces, both of the regular army and the Fascisti national militia.

As if his words had not been sufficiently explicit, he proceeded to make his meaning even plainer. He continued:

"You may ask the reason for this great display of military strength. It is to show that the Government has armed forces at its disposal. I wish as far as possible to govern with the consent of the greatest number of citizens, but while this consent is forming, while it is gaining ground and growing strong, I want to have the greatest possible strength of armed forces ready at hand. For it may happen, perchance, that armed forces may help some people to make up their minds to give their consent, and in any case if consent fails, the armed forces will remain."

Mussolini then spoke a few words of praise and encouragement of officials of the Finance Ministry.

"I am told that many of you work from fourteen to sixteen hours regularly," he said. "That is good. It is a wonderful example to the nation, but if it is necessary you and all of us must be prepared to work even twenty hours a day.

"We have solemnly promised to balance the State budget and this promise we must keep at all costs. We must remember that the State's money is sacred above everything else. It does not fall out of the sky like rain nor can it be produced by the simple expedient of working printing presses double time. It is the result of the sweat and blood of the Italian people, who are at work again today and must work even more tomorrow. Every lira, every penny, every centime, is sacred and must not be spent except for reasons of absolute necessity."

This speech represents the typical method which Mussolini adopts. He points out to the nation what must be done and then he says substantially: "Either you do it of your own free will or I will make you do it."

Italians have for years been accustomed to think that the Government would repeal any law which did not receive immediate public favor. They are now beginning to realize that it will not work with Mussolini.

DR. GRANT DERIDES FATHERS OF CHURCH

'They Thought World Flat,' Says Rector—He Defends Three Meals a Day.

Dr. Percy Stickney Grant renewed yesterday his plea for the modernization of religion in the third of his Lenten sermons in the Church of the Ascension. He read excerpts from the doctrines of St. Augustine and declared that theological writer somewhat cloudy in meaning.

"Why should we use the language of the fourth century?" Dr. Grant asked. "They thought the world was flat."

He traced the work of the four councils which framed Christianity in the period between 381 and 450 A. D. and turned to the development of what he termed "Mary idolatry," which he found began in the time of Bishop Apollinaris, who submerged the human side of Jesus for the divine side, theologians then beginning to lay stress on the Virgin Birth.

Dr. Grant said that if "we want to know about the soul we don't sit under a tree and take a little opium and have a pipe dream; we go to a man who understands the personality of man." He added that it "is no use talking about the soul as if it were a mist or a little wraith over a graveyard somewhere."

Toward the end of his sermon Dr. Grant said a woman had written to him complaining that his personal appearance had changed since she saw him preach as a young clergyman. Mr. Grant now, in the opinion of the writer, looked "too well fed." Dr. Grant smilingly said he did not think three meals a day lowered one's spirituality. At one time he had had a young assistant at the Church of the Ascension, he added, who had light yellow hair and a very white skin, the ensemble conveying an appearance of spirituality that gave the young assistant quite a reputation. Dr. Grant said that it was a mistaken and amusing idea that fairness of complexion must denote spirituality and cited the Popes as proof that Italian or other dark skinned persons might be spiritual.

MISS LOEB'S FURS STOLEN.

She Returns From Dinner to Find Hall Door Broken Open.

Burglars entered the apartment of Miss Sophie Irene Loeb, 146 Riverside Drive, near West Eighty-seventh Street, last Saturday evening, it was learned yesterday. Miss Loeb, the police said, returned at 11:30 from a dinner party to find her outer hall door broken open, and two sealskin coats, valued at $300 each, $20 and a small camera missing. Detectives Courtney and Fitzgerald of the West 100th Street Police Station, assigned to the case, said last night that no arrests had been made.

Two buarglaries, both thought to have been committed by the same persons, were reported to the police yesterday from 200 and 201 West Ninety-third Street, in houses across the street from one another. Louis H. Ritchless of 201 told detectives he had lost tapestries, silverware and jewelry valued at $2,500. Maurice Herbert of 200 said whiskey and champagne, with silverware worth $1,000, had been stolen.

PILGRIMS IN MECCA REVERENCE EX-SULTAN

But He Says He Wishes Only Repose Unless the Faithful Unite to Recall Him.

JEDDA, Kingdom of the Hedjas, March 7 (Associated Press).—Mohammed VI., ex-Sultan of Turkey, has seen enough of the world's turmoil and desires to spend the rest of his days in quiet reflection in Mecca, where he is now the guest of King Hussein.

The deposed head of the Turkish State recently told Charles R. Crane that he would never resume his position as head of the Mohammedan world unless there was a united call for him from the faithful. His most cherished hope, he said, was to find a final resting place in the sacred city, where he has found refuge.

The conversation was carried on over the long-distance telephone between Jedda and Mecca, for no Christian is permitted to enter the Forbidden City. The Imperial refugee told Mr. Crane that his health was good. He also inquired after his American friends.

King Hussein has done everything to contribute to the comfort and entertainment of the exiled Sultan. He has placed all his horses and hunting dogs at his disposal, for the former monarch is fond of hunting and riding. Indeed, the King of Hedjas has thrown open his entire estates to his distinguished visitor.

The former Turkish ruler spends much of his time in the study of religious books and in introspection. He receives European and American papers regularly and follows with keen interest the progress of events in Constantinople and the rise of the new Turkey. Many of his former supporters keep in touch with him by letter, advising him of the courses of affairs in Angora. General Harington sends him word occasionally about the welfare of the four wives he was forced to leave on the banks of the Bosporus.

That the deposed Sultan still enjoys great popularity and respect from Moslems is shown by the hearty greetings he receives from the populace of Mecca and the long lines of pilgrims that daily come to the sacred city from afar. Whenever he appears in public with his little son he receives as warm an ovation as King Hussein himself. Every Friday the King and his guest repair to the mosque to do homage to the memory of the founder of the Moslem faith.

WISCONSIN SENATE KILLS ANTI-GUARD BILL

But It Condemns Professors' Round Robin, Attacking La Follette's War Record.

MADISON, Wis., March 7 (Associated Press).—Overwhelming defeat met the Hirsch bill providing for the abolition of the Wisconsin National Guard when it reached the floor of the Senate today. By a vote of 26 to 4 the upper house determined to postpone the measure indefinitely. The Socialist members and one Republican voted against postponement. A like fate, it is expected, will meet the Polakowski bill, passed by the Assembly, when that measure comes to a vote in the Senate.

The Senate also voted, 17 to 12, today to condemn as "unworthy of men employed in Wisconsin's greatest educational institution" the action of 450 University of Wisconsin professors who signed a round robin during the war attacking the attitude of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

Senator La Follette's record was vigorously defended by Senator Henry A. Huber, former secretary of the senior Wisconsin Senator, when his resolution condemning Faculty members of the University of Wisconsin came before the upper house of the Legislature for action.

Senator Huber first read into the record the letter from Senator La Follette urging him to withdraw his original resolution calling for a bonfire to destroy the university document, now on file with the Historical Library.

Senator Huber declared that "in the face of his record, La Follette has been slandered and libeled as no other man of his time; his actions have been misrepresented; the truth has been suppressed; words put into his mouth he never uttered; he has been accused of being disloyal, pro-German, guilty of treason, promoting sedition and accepting retainers from the enemy."

"The fact is, he has been true to his people, true to his Government, and has been the most able exponent of the wishes of the common man, either in or out of Congress," Senator Huber said.

SON HELD IN THEFT, GRIEF KILLS MOTHER

Chauffeur Is Indicted as Driver of $500,000 Schoellkopf Robbery Car.

Charles P. Hughes, a chauffeur and brother-in-law of one of the three men accused of robbing Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of $500,000 in gems after a card party at 64 West Fifty-second Street last New Year's morning, was indicted yesterday by the Grand Jury on a charge of aiding the three hold-up men to escape in his car with their loot.

Hughes, who is 31 years old and lived at 807 St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx, later was held in $50,000 bail for trial by Judge Crain in General Sessions. When he was brought into court by Detective Sergeants Owens and Horan, Assistant District Attorney O'Sullivan, after a conference with the defendant's counsel, Harry Krause, informed Judge Crain that the prisoner's mother had died earlier in the day in grief over his arrest. Mr. O'Sullivan added that Hughes sought permission to view his mother's body today and to attend the funeral on Friday. The Court granted the request. Hughes was released in the custody of the detectives.

Mrs. Schoellkopf had appeared before the Grand Jury the day before. It was understood the indictment was returned after Acting District Attorney Pecora had obtained valuable information about the holdup from Matthew D. Biddulph, the only one of the three suspects under arrest.

Biddulph was arrested two weeks ago in Albany, N. Y., and was sent to the Tombs under $50,000 bail. It was said that Biddulph alleged that Hughes, who was a brother-in-law of Eugene Moran, alias McGowan, drove Moran, Biddulph and Albert Horowitz, alias Lewis, to the Gedney Farms in Westchester County after the Schoellkopf robbery. Biddulph was also said to have given information to Acting District Attorney Pecora which is expected to result in the apprehension of Moran and Horowitz.

DOREMUS LEADS IN DETROIT

He, With Inches, Likely to Be the Two Nominees for Mayor.

DETROIT, March 7.—Frank E. Doremus, former Democratic Congressman from the First Michigan District, Detroit's east side, was maintaining more than a 2 to 1 lead over five other candidates for the Mayoralty nomination in returns tabulated late tonight from today's primary. James W. Inches, former Police Commissioner, and David A. Brown, a business man, were Doremus's nearest competitors.

The two leaders will be the nominees in the April election, to fill the unexpired term of James Couzens, now United States Senator.

The vote in the eighty-four districts out of 608 was:

Doremus, 5,150; Inches, 2,476; Browne, 1,439; Arthur E. Wood, 630; Proctor K. Owens, 115; Thomas C. O'Brien, 22.

STUDENTS FIND TOMB OF 'TOOT-AN-KUM-IN'

CAMBRIDGE, England, March 7.—The discovery of Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb has given the university students here an opportunity for the merriest prank they have indulged in for many a long day. "Toot-an-Kum-in's" tomb was opened today in the market place here, and besides the discovery of many remarkable articles it was established that Tut-ankh-Amen was no other than Phineas, a Scottish descendant of the Maclino clan.

It should be explained that Phineas is a wooden statue of a Highlander, which is supposed to stand guard at the entrance to a big London linoleum store by way of advertising its goods, but it has been a bone of contention and much fighting for a number of years between students of the rival London colleges, who covet it as a mascot. The consequence is that Phineas is often missing from his proper post and is being heatedly fought for in some other part of London.

How he was kidnapped by the Cambridge students is another story, but the fact remains that he was brought from the bowels of the earth at Cambridge today. The site of "Toot-an-Kum-in's" tomb was found by the undergraduates to have been built over by the Corporation, but no strenuous excavating work was required to get at its treasures.

Shortly before noon the vanguard of the search party arrived. They consisted of native policemen. Then came stalwart Nubians in singlets and shorts, "highbrows" in dressing gowns and whiskers, ancient Egyptians, modern Egyptians (whose garments varied from bath towels to brilliant uniforms), native infantry with spears and scimitars and the inevitable Egyptian band.

Preparations were at once made to open the tomb. The "Lord Mayor" and the "Lady Mayoress," with other dignitaries, were, of course, present on such a momentous occasion. "Mr. Howard Carter" was introduced and he explained that "Lord Carnarvon" had been unavoidably detained.

During the brief interval which elapsed before "his lordship's" arrival some of the "lost tribes" gave an exhibition of ancient dancing. Cleopatra, who had graced the proceedings with her presence, also danced, assisted by her attendants.

When "Lord Carnarvon" appeared in an ancient chariot with hordes of white-robed natives, he immediately set to work to call up the spirits from the vasty deep. By means of a megaphone he uttered a weird incantation, presumably in ancient Egyptian, although one caught at the end the "Atta-boy! Atta-boy!" of American slang. In any case he was immediately successful, two angels, boasting golden wings, fluttered down from the window of a building on one side of the square. It is true that they had a rope with a traveling pulley to accomplish the feat and equally true that in the excitement of returning to earth each dropped his silver trumpet.

While the drums beat mysteriously a body of young men descended the steps of the "tomb." They soon began to emerge with treasures it contained while every one cheered. Here is a selection of the finds: Weapons and jewels; bricks inscribed with hieroglyphics; a bust, presumably of "Toot-an-Kum-in's" girl wife; alabaster vases; a mouse trap and a chariot marked "Ford Chassis, No. 1, 3000 B. C."; and finally, amid a hushed silence which immediately gave place to a roar of redoubled cheering, Phineas was brought up from his sarcophagus, in which it is believed he has lain for at least eight days.

Then a procession was formed and to strains of "John Brown's Body" the mummy of "Toot-an-Kum-in" was paraded in triumph through the streets of the town. In the procession were carried two litters, one containing an old, old man and the other apparently the Queen of the harem. Her less fortunate sisters had to walk behind, all pushing perambulators.

Rain interrupted any further proceedings and later in the afternoon King Toot-an-Kum-in, alias Phineas, was placed on a London train. He will not, however, find a resting place in the British museum.

LUXOR, Egypt, March 7.—After a week's respite during which innumerable belated visitors have made a pilgrimage to the royal necropolis in the Valley of the Kings to see the mound of rubble rock now marking the site of the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, work was resumed this morning in the laboratory in the tomb of Seti II. All the staff have now returned from their respective visits, looking all the better for the change of air and invigorated by the rest from the strain which they had to undergo during the preceding six weeks.

From now onward the experts will be busily occupied in getting everything ready for transport to Cairo. It is doubtful whether they will be able to work after April 15, and this will probably mean that some of the objects may have to be left in the laboratory until next season. But every effort will be made to complete all the work on hand.

Mr. Carter and his staff have in the past done such wonders under the most trying conditions that it would not be at all surprising if now undisturbed by visitors and other irritating interruptions they manage to clear up everything during the six weeks.

DOUBTS MENTU IS AMEN.

Dr. Hall Thinks Former Was a "Sky" God of Merely Local Fame.

LONDON, March 7.—Dr. S. R. Hall takes much the same view as the other British Egyptologists on the relationship of the Gods Mentu and Amen as based on the authority of the Bulak papyrus. Information on such a point, he admitted was very scanty, but he was inclined to think that a recent editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES estimated the importance of Mentu too highly.

Mentu was a "sky" god, he declared, but there were many "sky" gods, and his fame seemed local. Moreover, he doubted his antedating Amen, for he believed Amen's name occurs in pyramid texts which go back to the Sixth Dynasty.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN SUCCEEDS BOSCAWEN

He Becomes Minister of Health and Joynson Hicks Is Appointed Postmaster General.

LONDON, March 7.—Two Cabinet appointments were made today. Neville Chamberlain, who has been Postmaster General, has been made Minister of Health, succeeding Sir Arthur Griffith Boscawen, and Sir William Joynson Hicks, who has been head of the Overseas Trade Department, becomes Postmaster General.

Neville Chamberlain is a brother of Austen Chamberlain, and has some marked qualifications for the Ministry of Health, that was formed recently from the old local Government board and has to deal in particular with the thorny housing problem. Chamberlain is thoroughly familiar with all this side of his work, as he was for years on the Corporation of Birmingham and was Lord Mayor of that city in 1915 and 1916.

The promotion of Joynson Hicks is a concession to the die-hard section of the Conservatives, who have complained of want of recognition in Ministerial appointments.

Mr. Bonar Law took advantage of the vacancy in the Ministry of Health to put off today replying to awkward representations on housing matters made to him by a deputation of conservative London members. He told them he must consult with the new Minister before he could discuss the matter with them.

Major J. W. Hills, as a result of his defeat at the Edge Hill by-election, has tendered his resignation as Financial Secretary to the Treasury.

SENATORS WRANGLE IN DELUGE OF BILLS

'SENATORIAL COURTESY' HIT

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—A jarring note pervaded all the proceedings of the Senate today. Everybody seemed out of tune with everybody. Almost everything went wrong except the opening invocation. Leadership apparently had ceased to function until President Pro Tem. Walker, with a wry smile, admitted that he was not "presidenting pro tem." so that anybody could notice it.

Half a dozen of the standing committees when the cue came from Lieutenant Governor Lunn, who was in the chair, proceeded to deluge the Senate with bills, reported with or without amendments.

The Committee on Internal Affairs of Cities, the first to report, headed in more than a score of bills, but when their titles were read the Democratic leader declared the committee had reported all the measures it had except those it had been asked to report.

This brought smiles from the Republican members, who had listened with surprise as a long list of bills bearing the names of Republican Senators and Assemblymen, introduced for the benefit of Republican localities up-State, came out and found their way to the calendar.

Senator McGarry of Queens, Democratic head of the Committee on Internal Affairs, is absent on account of illness, and several other members of the committee also were absent. Under the circumstances, President Pro Tem. Walker had asked Senator Giorgio, Senator McGarry's colleague from Queens, to call the committee together to report some important measures which required immediate action to permit the State Highway Department to go ahead with surveys and the letting of contracts. It appeared that the committee voted to release practically every bill in its custody except the highway measures.

Money for Labor Department.

About the only business of importance the Senate transacted was the passage, under an emergency message from Governor Smith, of a bill making available at once for the State Labor Department a special appropriation of $150,000, to enable it to carry on during the rest of the present fiscal year. The demand for this money was urgent, but in the Assembly the bill was held up and sent to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Senator Knight of Wyoming, a Republican, who was Chairman of a legislative committee which spent two years investigating the Labor Department and on whose recommendations the departmental budget had been cut about $1,000,000 below the amount demanded while Mr. Miller was Governor, praised the Miller Administration for these economies.

"I have every confidence in the present Labor Commissioner," he said, "and I am willing to concede that this money may be necessary to provide additional referees and stenographers for hearings in compensation cases. But I understand there is a proposal to increase the budget of this department for the coming fiscal year by about $1,000,000 to provide additional factory inspectors, some 200 or 300 more. That will bring us right back to where we were and involve a useless expenditure of money."

In the end the emergency appropriation was approved without dissent from the Republicans, after Senator Walker had urged that "if it seems to be the Governor's opinion" that it was badly needed, and Senator Downing, Chairman of the Finance Committee, had declared it would be better to repeal the Labor law altogether than not to make the attempt decency demanded to uphold it in spirit as well as in letter.

Committees Report Eighty-five Bills.

In all, 85 bills were reported from various committees, the bulk coming from the Committee on Internal Affairs of Cities.

The session ended in a succession of squalls. Senator Rabenold, of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Conservation, in the absence from the chamber of Senator Thayer of Franklin, moved to substitute for one of Mr. Thayer's bills on the Senate calendar an identical bill, passed in the Assembly, which bore the name of Assemblyman Pratt of St. Lawrence, and provided that pickerel less than 18 inches in length must not be caught in the St. Lawrence River.

Senator Fearon of Onondaga pointed out that it was contrary to Senate precedent to take such action in reference to a bill sponsored by another.

In the meantime Senator Thayer, who had been sent for, rushed into the chamber. He protested vigorously that he had an understanding with Assemblyman Pratt under which his bill was to pass, and he was to become father of the law to protect pickerel in the St. Lawrence against being caught young.

"Can we have some assurance," asked Minority Leader Lusk, "that, in accordance with legislative custom and Senate precedent, members in the future, as in the past, shall have extended to them the right demanded by Senatorial courtesy of exercising control over bills which bear their names; or must we take steps to protect ourselves against this sort of thing?"

"Well," said Senator Walker, "I know I would never do it; but it seems that men can stay in the party or get out as they want to. The President pro-tem is not presidenting pro-tem, it seems."

"I am getting sick and tired of so much child's play!" Senator Rabenold exclaimed. "I don't see why it is necessary for this minority leader to call loudly across the aisle for protection when we are merely trying to expedite matters. There is no intention of any encroachment upon the solemn prerogative of the Senate upon 'senatorial courtesy,' so called.

"'Senatorial courtesy' has been a beautiful cloak to cover many devious practices. If Senator Thayer wants to keep his bill in his own hands, he can. I have apologized. Beyond that all this verges on buffoonery."

Election Law Amendment Favored.

Among the bills reported to the Senate was one, introduced by Mr. Walker and released by the Judiciary Committee, providing for amendments to the election law, one of which would eliminate a provision put in during the Miller régime and under which petitions designating candidates for office must carry a sworn statement by one of the petitioners showing that the candidate had been communicated with and consented to run. This provision was inserted to prevent the naming without their consent of candidates who had no intention of running, merely to afford an opportunity for a committee on substitution to fill the vacancy with some candidate favored by the political organization involved whose candidacy might not prove so attractive in the primaries.

The Cities Committee reported out a bill introduced by Senator Farrell of Kings, its chairman, which would legalize and establish as minimum salaries for the uniformed force in the fire department those now being paid, following increases made by the present Mayor of New York City administration.

Another New York City bill, fathered by Senator Sheridan, would make it optional with the Police Commissioner to promote without examination to a captaincy or acting inspectorship lieutenants who have served in that capacity for at least twenty years. It has been pointed out that this bill might afford a short cut to retirement for a favored lieutenant on a captain's pension.

The Judiciary Committee reported out Senator Ferguson's concurrent resolution providing for a constitutional amendment, under which lawmakers would be virtually empowered to fix their own salaries, now fixed by the Constitution and kept by the voters at their present low level in the face of frequent efforts to have the organic law amended so as to increase the pay of members of the Senate and Assembly.

MANY OPPOSE CHANGES IN COMPENSATION LAW

Declare Pending Bills Would Increase the Cost of Living in New York State.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—Changes proposed in bills providing for amendments to the State Workmen's Compensation law eventually would mean a big increase in the cost of living in the State, because the increased cost to the manufacturer would be passed along to the ultimate consumer, opponents of the legislation declared this afternoon at a joint hearing before the Senate and Assembly Labor and Industries Committees.

State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag urged the committee to report favorably two measures which would reduce the non-compensated waiting period in industrial accidents from fourteen to seven days, and would provide for compensation from the date of the accident if the injury extended over twenty-eight days instead of forty-nine as at present.

"Under the present law," Mr. Shientag said, "an injured employe whose disability does not extend beyond fourteen days receives no compensation. This is a great injustice to those injured and to their families, and it places the entire burden of such industrial accidents entirely upon their shoulders. In twenty-five States the waiting period is one week, and in seven the period is ten days."

The measure making it compulsory to have a hearing in every compensation case within sixty days after report of an accident, in order that the Labor Department may determine whether claimants are receiving compensation benefits from employers and insurance carriers to which they are entitled, was urged by Commissioner Shientag.

"While this bill would only place a small tax on the industries of the State, its effects on the cost of living would be tremendous," Mr. Daley said. "Under the law the manufacturers would be able to pass that increase along to the consumer, who would have to foot the bill."

Declaring that "the public gets it in the neck, no matter how you go about it," R. B. Thomas, representing the Steel Erectors' Association, protested against all of the amendments. He declared the bill decreasing the waiting period from 14 to 7 days would increase claims by about 17 per cent.

M. D. Riley, representing the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, asserted that the proposed legislation would add at least 30 per cent. to the cost of the company's industrial department.

J. J. Cushing of the Self-Insurers' Association; A. E. Crockett of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, and H. C. Spencer, representing the Kellogg Products Company, opposed the measures as unnecessary and one of the surest and quickest ways of driving up the cost of living in the State.

DRY LEAGUE INQUIRY DEFEATED AT ALBANY

Assembly Ways and Means Committee Rejects the Resolution by a Vote of 10 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—Wets suffered a new defeat today, when the Assembly Committee on Ways and Means, by a vote of 10 to 2, refused to report favorably the Cuvillier resolution calling for an investigation of the Anti-Saloon League and its Superintendent, William H. Anderson, by the Judiciary Committee.

Every Republican member who attended the executive meeting of the Ways and Means Committee voted against reporting the resolution. The two votes in its favor were cast by Assemblymen Leininger of Queens and Kernan of Oneida, Democrats. Two Democrats—Hamill of New York, who represents Governor Smith's Assembly district, and McDonald of the Bronx—were absent. One wet Republican—Seelbach of Erie—stayed away from the meeting.

Mr. Cuvillier, whose anti-prohibition legislation appears to be haunted by evil fortune, said he would move to have the resolution taken away from the Ways and Means Committee when the Assembly meets on Tuesday. He will try at the Monday night session to recall from the Committee on Excise his bill to repeal the Mullan-Gage law.

The wets in the Assembly admit that the outlook is not good. Letters were sent out tonight by Mr. Cuvillier calling on all friends of the wet cause to be sure to attend the session Monday night, but as Speaker Machold has not taken steps to enforce a "closed call," which requires the presence of all members unless excused for some good reason, it is predicted that there will be many absentees, even on the Democratic side, to the peril of the Anderson resolution and the Mullan-Gage repeal bill.

Republicans and Democrats in leading positions are quite content to permit both measures to remain buried in committee.

In the Democratic Senate the bill introduced by Senator Dunnigan of the Bronx, which calls for repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, still is held in the Committee on Codes, with no one, apparently, enough interested in the measure to make an effort to get it on the Senate calendar, where it can be debated and disposed of in the open.

LINER IN ICE FIELD, HERE 10 DAYS LATE

Bayern Reports Heavy Storms on Voyage From Hamburg Since Feb. 15.

RAN AWAY FROM TWO BERGS

322 Passengers and Large Collection of Wild Animals Arrive—Woman Hurt on Trip.

Ten days overdue, during which she was constantly beset with storms and the dangers of icebergs, the Bayern of the Hamburg-American Line arrived here yesterday from Hamburg with 322 passengers and one of the largest collections of wild animals ever brought into this port. Captain Oscar Schwarmeyer said that the trip, which started Feb. 15, was the roughest he ever had known.

In addition to the troubles caused by the storms, the steamer faced a shortage of fuel and had to put into Halifax. The head winds and gales swept a motor lifeboat from the stern, and several other lifeboats were torn loose. Off Sable Island the Bayern sighted two icebergs floating south, which made it necessary for the vessel to detour. Two days later the ship ran into an icefield of such extent that it required two days to travel through it at reduced speed. The Captain said that many pieces of ice in the floe were seven feet thick, and crunched dangerously against the vessel.

On Feb. 21 Miss Margaret Mohn, one of the passengers, was struck by a large wave and thrown against a railing. She was rescued by seamen and taken to the ship's hospital, where it was found her left leg and side were injured. She left the steamer in a stretcher.

Henri Leschneiser, an importer, of 102 Madison Avenue, took passage on the Bayern to hasten home because of the death of his wife. The Majestic, on which he had intended to return thirteen days later, came into port the same time as the Bayern.

The zoological passengers included nine camels, four tigers, sixteen trained horses, four polar bears, two trained dogs, three deer, seven snakes, ten parrots, two leopards, two Japanese bears, six monkeys, twenty swan, forty-eight partridges and 8,000 canaries. A bear and a dog died on the trip. An educated chimpanzee named Willie, hailed as the successor of John Daniel, was among the animals brought here for circuses from the Hagenbeck training school in Hamburg. Willie understands French, German and English, and is an inveterate smoker.

REPORT $1 GAS MEASURE FAVORABLY TO SENATE

Bill Amended to Fix Standard at Not Less Than 22 Candle Power.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—The Senate Public Service Committee this afternoon favorably reported the Walker Dollar Gas bill for New York City, following a hearing at which no one appeared in opposition. Before the measure was reported, however, it was amended, fixing the standard of gas at no less than 650 British thermal units, which would make it about 22-candlepower.

Corporation Counsel Charles P. Nicholson of New York City declared that the measure offered a speedy relief to the "oppressed consumers of gas." He asserted that the only way the gas consumers could get relief was by legislation, because none could be expected from the present Public Service Commission. He said that even the $1 gas rate was excessive, and that he believed investigation would show that it could be materially reduced below that figure and still not work a hardship to the gas companies.

"New York City gas plants are obsolete," Mr. Nicholson declared. "Why should the gas consumers in New York be compelled to pay $1 or more for gas for many years merely because the gas companies refuse to instal modern equipment? Why should we permit the public utilities to make gas by antiquated methods and charge the excess cost to the consumers? If the gas companies were operated as efficiently as the city water system is, members of the Legislature would not be bothered with legislation concerning gas rates and the people of New York City would have the lowest gas rate in the country."

Others who spoke for the bill asserted that the New York City residents were paying high prices for low quality gas. It also was declared that if the bill now pending in the Legislature, which would create a Public Utilities Commission for New York City, is enacted into law, steps probably will be taken to decrease the price of gas even below the dollar mark. At present the rate ranges from $1.15 to $1.50.

CUTS TAX BOARD COSTS,

J. F. Gilchrist Reduces Estimates of Predecessor by $218,010.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—John F. Gilchrist, President of the State Tax Commission, informed Governor Smith today that he expected to run his department during the next fiscal year for $218,010 less than his predecessor, Walter W. Law, whom Governor Smith ousted, asked to defray the cost during the Miller economy regime.

Commissioner Gilchrist made this known in a letter to Senator Downing and Assemblyman McGinnis, heads of the Legislative fiscal committees, now engaged in making up the budget. He sent a copy of his letter to the Governor, who made it public tonight.

CHARITIES OPPOSE NEW WELFARE BILLS

Party, twenty-one were killed today in the Senate Committee on General Laws. Among the bills voted down in committee were those providing for service by women on grand and petit juries. Senator Meyer Levy of New York, Chairman of the committee, said it was the consensus of the members that no action should be taken to impose jury duty on women until an exhaustive study had been made of the results from jury service by women in other States.

"If, after a few years' trial in other States, it has been found to work out satisfactorily, not only in the courts but for the women and their families, the time would be ripe for the adoption of measures like these in this State," said Senator Levy. "As long as other States are experimenting, New York can well afford to wait a few years and see the outcome."

Four Bills Reported.

The four bills reported by the committee provide:

That mother and father shall have equal right to the property of their children when they die intestate.

That in the making of wills all existing sex distinctions shall be abolished.

That inheritance shall descend without distinction of sex, according to common law rule.

That in habeas corpus proceedings for a child detained by one parent there shall be no prima facie right to custody in either, the case to be determined solely on its merits by the court.

A bill providing that all public offices and positions in the public service should be open to women on equal terms with men was among those beaten.

Bills Defeated in Committee.

Other bills the committee decided to scrap were:

Giving a married woman the right to wages for services and labor in the home.

Giving dowry right to both married men and married women alike in one-half of the other's property.

Permitting a married woman to have separate domicile from that of her husband.

Declaring every child, whether born in or out of wedlock, the legitimate child of its natural parents.

Giving a married woman the right to sue her husband and husband and wife to sue each other.

Another bill defeated would have made a married woman equally responsible with her husband for the maintenance of home and offspring, and each responsible for the debts of the other growing out of the upkeep of the home.

NEW JERSEY CENTRAL

JERSEY HIGHWAYS 'RIPPER' BLOCKED

Legislature Takes Recess Without Ending Double Deadlock Over New Board.

STORMY WEEK PREDICTED

Governor Silzer's Nominations to Several State Offices Confirmed —Session Is Extended.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 7.—When the Legislature recessed for the week-end tonight the indications were that Senator Walter E. Edge had lost his fight to have Thomas H. MacDonald of Iowa, now chief of the Bureau of Public Roads in the Federal Department of Agriculture, named as New Jersey Highway Commissioner. There appeared to be no sign of a break in the double deadlock over the highway situation despite a last minute attempt by the Assembly Republicans to win over their colleagues in the Senate to the Edge program.

Senator Edge needs two votes in the Senate for the passage of a bill creating a single-headed highway commission, while Governor Silzer needs only one vote to obtain confirmation of the four men he has nominated as a bipartisan board. Eleven votes are required to pass a bill in the Senate, which is made up of seventeen Republicans and four Democrats.

Eight Republican Senators are standing with the four Democrats against "ripper" legislation that would take from Governor Silzer the authority to make the appointments. But they are not free to vote to confirm the Governor's nominees because they are under a party pledge binding them to confirm the two Democrats named by the Executive—Abraham Jelin of New Brunswick and Percy H. Stewart of Plainfield—only in the event that Mr. Silzer recalls the nominations of General Hugh L. Scott of Princeton and Walter Kidd of Montclair, Republicans, and appoints State Senator Collins E. Allen of Salem County and Republican State Committeeman Daniel E. Pomeroy of Bergen County. Only by getting one of the "ripper" faction to vote with them in caucus can they rescind the pledge.

Assembly Falls in Line.

Senator Edge's faith that the Assembly Republicans would readily fall in with his scheme was justified today when, in caucus, they decided to support a highway commission "ripper" and prepared a bill designating Mr. Macdonald for the job with a salary of $15,000 a year. Assemblymen Hershfield of Passaic, Sexsmith of Monmouth, Blizzard of Cumberland, Powell of Burlington and Chamberlin of Essex were selected as a committee to advise the Republican Senators of the attitude of the majority members in the lower branch of the Legislature. When they reached the Senate Chamber most of the Senators had departed. Senator Stevens, Republican floor leader, was there, however. He said any move to pass the bill at this time would be useless. When the committee returned to the caucus room it was decided to postpone action on the bill until next week.

Following the action of Attorney General McCran yesterday in bringing suit against the old Highway Commission and the Donnell Lumber Company of South Amboy to recover for the State $230,000 alleged to have been paid to the company for land as a result of a conspiracy to defraud the public, the Senate today passed a resolution authorizing an investigation of the ousted board.

Because of a defect in the title of the bill passed several days ago over Governor Silzer's veto, the Senate today passed a new bill to take certain election powers from the Democratic Prosecutor of Hudson County and vest them in officials to be named by the Legislature.

Senator Richards of Atlantic County, counsel for the New Jersey Bridge and Tunnel Commission, led an unsuccessful fight in the Senate against passage of the Mackay bill for the construction of a tunnel under the Hudson River from 125th Street, New York, to Fort Lee, N. J., by private capital.

Silzer's Nominees.

Governor Silzer today nominated Charles Egan of Jersey City a Judge of the Hudson Common Pleas Court and Dr. Isaac Barber of Warren reappointed for the Board of Taxes and Assessment. Mr. Egan succeeds John A. Blair. As former Senators, the nominees were confirmed immediately. William K. Evereux of Asbury Park, reappointed to the Civil Service Commission, also was confirmed.

Other nominations sent to the Senate were those of John S. Smith of Phillipsburg, reappointed to the Warren County Tax Board, and Miss Mary Brant of Madison to the Morris County Tax Board.

The name of Berkeley W. Moore for the Somerset County Tax Board was recalled by the Governor, who expects to appoint him to another position.

The House passed the New Jersey Ship Canal Bill introduced by Assemblyman Hoffman of Middlesex, which provides that the $875,000 which the State received from the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for the sale of the Morris Canal shall be turned over to the State Board of Commerce and Navigation to obtain the right of way for the New Jersey Ship Canal, which the United States Government plans to construct across the State from the Raritan River to the Delaware River. The canal, when completed, will have cost upward of $40,000,000.

The House passed the bill of Assemblyman Rowland, Camden, compelling jitney drivers to stop before crossing any railroad crossing in the State.

The House passed the Washington Crossing Memorial Bridge bill of Senator Blackwell of Mercer, appropriating $20,000 toward the erection of this bridge, which is to mark the spot where General Washington crossed the Delaware.

TRENTON, N. J., March 7 (Associated Press).—The House concurred in a Senate resolution today extending the time for sine die adjournment of the Legislature one week from March 13, and also fixing March 16, at 10 P. M., as the final date for passage of bills and joint resolutions. The legislators will return for the final week to devote their time exclusively to vetoed bills.

SUPPORT LUSK LAWS.

Allied Patriotic Societies Vote to Fight Against Repeal.

Charging that the propaganda for the repeal of the Lusk laws was un-American and not representative of the vast majority of the school teachers, the Allied Patriotic Societies, Inc., voted unanimously at a meeting yesterday at the Army and Navy Club to oppose its repeal, and, if necessary, to send a committee to Albany for that purpose.

Dwight Damian, President of the Allied Patriotic Societies, Inc., representing, it was said, fifty organizations and more than seven million members, declared these laws "must not be repealed under any circumstances.

"They must be maintained in spirit and to the letter," he said. "I cannot emphasize strongly enough our stand against a propaganda representing the view of a very few of the 57,000 school teachers, according to evidence which has come out at Albany, and which does not represent the opinion of the vast majority of the citizens of the State."

ACCUSED EXPLAINS RUSSIAN TRADE PLAN

Denies Fraud and Tells of Getting $1,000 Each From 37 Big American Firms.

EMPLOYED AS A BROKER

Contracts Provide for Return of Money, He Declares—Released on $10,000 Bail.

Walter L. Webster, an insurance broker, of 975 East Nineteenth Street, Brooklyn, was released from the Tombs yesterday on $10,000 bail, on an indictment returned against him the day before charging grand larceny in obtaining $2,000 from manufacturing firms on the promise to obtain contracts for them with the United States of Russia which was expected, through the aid of Russian and Japanese diplomats, to overthrow the Soviet Government.

Soon after his release Webster issued a statement, which read in part:

"In 1919 I was approached by William G. Whilden, former President of the New Jersey Fire Insurance Company, who introduced me to Harold M. Sheckter and E. M. Richmond, and laid before me a proposition for the development of Russian trade for American manufacturers. It was contemplated that for my interest in the proposition I should have charge of the placing of insurance for the enterprise which would aggregate writings of $200,000,000 yearly.

"Sheckter was introduced as a former Russian banker of prominence and as representing the Kolchak Government then functioning in Siberia. Richmond was introduced as the American who had been a close business associate of Sheckter in the United States since 1905. Sheckter was represented as the head of and the real principal in the Mutual Trading and Industries Corporation, which was to act as fiscal agent for all anti-Soviet Governments and interests in Russia in the purchase of all merchandise in the United States.

"The purchasing of merchandise was to be conducted through the Mutual Trading and Industries Corporation for cash, or bank credits satisfactory to the American manufacturers. The Russian capitalists were to furnish not less than $50,000,000 working capital for the Mutual Trading and Industries Corporation, and the corporation was to receive a commission upon all purchases accomplished by them.

"This was the contemplated plan of operation and at no time have I ever been advised of any change in these plans. I was to put up $25,000 to Sheckter and the Mutual Trading and Industries Corporation as and when needed and if I could and wished to.

"I was asked to undertake the work of interesting United States manufacturers, and this work I did undertake. It was urged upon me that a public disclosure of the names of the principals behind this enterprise might jeopardize the whole undertaking at that time by coming to the notice of hostile elements in Russia.

"The plan was laid before a large number of manufacturers beginning January, 1921, contracts were entered into with twenty-seven prominent manufacturers which provided that the manufacturers were to sell goods to the trading company at lowest export prices and with no commissions paid to any intermediaries. In connection with this contract each manufacturer signing deposited $1,000 in escrow, in the Bankers Trust Company, for the purchase of $1,000 of preferred stock of the trading company within ten days after notice to the manufacturers by the trading company of completion of its plans, and failing to exercise this option the deposit was to be refunded by the Bankers Trust Company.

"The trading company not being able to complete its plans within reasonable time, the Bankers Trust Company was notified to refund the money to the manufacturers which was done in and about July 1921, and all the contracts were cancelled."

Mr. Webster said that in the meantime the plan was continued by two others, and in July, 1921, one of them went to Paris ostensibly to meet many of the Russians who were alleged to be backing the scheme to lay plans for the commencement of operations by the trading company in the Spring of 1922. This man, he said, returned and reported that the plan would begin to function in the Spring of 1922. He said that he was told in March, 1922, to again approach the manufacturers for new contracts, and that he called a meeting of about sixty in the Old Colony Club in the Biltmore Hotel.

"The plans were laid before them," he said, "and as a result thirty-seven unconditional contracts were executed by thirty-seven manufacturers. The contracts provided that if for any reason either party desired to withdraw from the agreement then the trading company agreed to redeem the stock and to refund the $1,000 paid within sixty days after demand therefor upon the company."

Webster declared that he had not made a cent in the business, and that he paid to the trading company and its representatives about $56,000 in cash, including the $37,000 he had received from the manufacturers. It was learned that Mr. Whilden was President and representative of the Mutual Trading and Industries Corporation when he died in 1920.

SACCO-VANZETTI CASE WITNESSES RECANT

Two Repudiate Retractions Obtained, They Now Say, Under Duress.

DEDHAM, Mass., March 7.—Two of the principal witnesses in the murder trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti here in 1921, whose affidavits affixed to supplementary motions for a new trial asserted that they had testified falsely, avowed in counter-affidavits filed today by the Commonwealth that their retractions of testimony were secured under duress and were untrue.

One witness, Louis Pelaea, a shoe worker, who testified at the trial that he saw Sacco with a gun in his hand in an automobile fleeing from the scene after a paymaster at South Braintree had been robbed and shot to death, stated in the affidavit filed today that he signed a retraction of his identification of Sacco while he was down and out, jobless and under the influence of liquor, after 70 cents had been given him and on the promise of a "good time."

Mrs. Lola R. Andrews of Quincy, also a witness who identified Sacco, asserted that she was "forced" to sign a declaration that her statements on the witness stand were unqualifiedly false. She signed, she said, after a conference with her son by a former marriage, John Andrews Hassan, Fred H. Moore, attorney for the defense, and others which lasted from 7:30 o'clock in the evening until 4 o'clock in the morning. Her son, she said, urged her to sign statements which she said were "worded" by Moore, threatening, if she refused, to make public alleged incidents in her past life.

Sacco and Vanzetti were found guilty of first degree murder and have been awaiting sentence since Sacco had gone on a hunger strike and today completed his 21st day of fast. A hearing on the supplementary motions for a new trial is scheduled for Friday.

J. HAM LEWIS FEARS WAR IN EUROPE SOON

Back From Abroad, He Says if America Doesn't Intervene, Americans Should.

MAY COME WITHIN A MONTH

People Mulcted by Sugar Price Rise, Says Spreckels. Home on the Majestic.

J. Hamilton Lewis, former United States Senator from Illinois, and Mrs. Lewis, returned on the Majestic yesterday from a trip abroad lasting nearly a year. Mr. Lewis predicted that unless the United States intervened in European affairs there would be a war in southwestern Europe within a month. He believed that if America as a nation would not intervene then Americans as individuals should endeavor to act as mediators in clearing up differences which were provocative of war.

"Turkey already has an active standing army and is prepared to fight," Mr. Lewis said. "He believes that, if necessary, Russia will come to her aid with men and Germany with supplies. There is certainly a feeling against England in Turkey. Turkey, under her new independent rulers, holds to the idea that there shall be no occupation by the other powers of any of her territory. They present the French and British seizures. 'Turkey for the Turks' is their motto and the people object to being governed by other nations under mandates.

"If trouble should start in Turkey it would mean lighting fires of war in the Balkans with Hungary ready to take back the territory ceded to the Rumanians and Austria attempting to regain Trieste and parts of Czechoslovakia, although I believe Austria would rather have peace just at present.

"The Versailles Treaty is at an end because the signers have repealed it by declining to recognize the provisions which injured their individual interests."

Attended Conferences.

Mr. Lewis said he went abroad nearly a year ago to present claims against Germany. He attended both the Geneva and Lausanne conferences.

G. E. Saarinen, winner of the $20,000 second prize offered by The Chicago Tribune for the most beautiful office building in the world, arrived on the steamer to be the guest of Colonel R. R. McCormick. Mr. Saarinen, a native of Finland, will be the principal guest tonight at a dinner given by the Architectural League. He will go to Chicago in a few days.

Sir George B. Hunter, shipbuilder, of the firm of Swan, Hunter, Wigham & Richardson, Newcastle-on-Tyne, came over to inspect properties he owns in Canada. Sir George, whose firm built the Mauretania, said that British shipbuilding conditions were showing improvement, but no one could prophesy how long this improvement would continue.

Building Larger Ships.

"It is certain that the forward movement in shipbuilding is in the direction of constructing larger vessels," he said. "Great interest is being manifested as to the performance of a passenger steamer I am building for service between Auckland and Vancouver. This ship, about the size and passenger accommodation of the Empress ships of the Canadian Pacific Company, will have twin Diesel internal combustion engines of 13,000 brake horsepower each to drive her twin screws and give the liner a speed of about twenty knots an hour."

Bengt Berg, called the Swedish bird wizard, because of his intimate knowledge of wild birds, another incomer on the Majestic, said he came here as the representative of the Swedish Government to investigate the production and use of American educational films. He said it was planned to use films in the Swedish schools.

"The recent rise in the price of sugar was due 'to a gamblers' market, assisted by the Department of Commerce,'" Claus Spreckels, Chairman of the Board of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, told interviewers. Mr. Spreckels returned with Mrs. Spreckels from a business and pleasure trip.

American People Mulcted.

"The American people have been mulcted out of millions of dollars," he said, "and the ultimate result will be the same as when Mr. Hoover was Food Administrator and the people believed there was a great shortage of sugar at that period. This present condition will lead to the same disastrous results."

Cyril Maude, remembered here as "Grumpy," arrived with members of a British company which is to open in "If Winter Comes," dramatized from Hutchinson's novel of the same name.

Others on the Majestic, which carried 479 first cabin, 545 second and 335 steerage passengers, were Sir Thomas Gordon Fairbairn, the Earl of Chichester and Count Vittorio Siciliani di Moreale, Italian Consul General at San Francisco.

Captain Sir Bertram Hayes, commander of the liner, said the trip was rough, the steamer arriving a day late. While approaching Ambrose Channel lightship early yesterday morning in the driving snow, the Giuseppe Verdi, incoming from Italy, suddenly appeared out of a cloud of snow dangerously near the big liner. The Verdi passed the stern of the Majestic about two feet away, officers said.

SNEED, WHO SLEW TWO, SHOOTS ANOTHER MAN

Slayer of the Boyces Years Ago Wounds a Texan Who Killed His Son-in-law.

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 7.—John Beal Sneed, once widely known as the chief figure in the Sneed-Boyce feud, shot and wounded C. B. Berry at Paducah, Texas, today. Berry, it is charged, recently killed Sneed's son-in-law, Wood Barton.

Sneed, a millionaire ranchman of the Panhandle section, killed both Al Boyce and his father after the elopement of young Boyce with Mrs. Sneed. He was acquitted by the courts.

Sneed killed Alfred G. Boyce Sr. on Jan. 14, 1919, and while he was on trial for that homicide killed the son on Sept. 15 of the same year.

Lee Rubber Makes $370,492 Profit.

The Lee Rubber and Tire Company reports net sales of $6,486,208 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, against $7,358,436 in the previous year. Net profits for the year were 370,402, equal to $2.47 a share on the 150,000 shares of capital stock of no par value outstanding. In 1921 the company reported net profits equal to 6 cents a share on the stock outstanding at that time. After payment of $300,000 in dividends last year the company reported a surplus of $70,402, increasing the profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31, 1922, to $431,089.

WHOOPING COUGH CURES EFFECTED WITH X-RAY

Two Boston Physicians Report Varying Results, Ranging From Slight Change to Full Relief.

BOSTON, March 7.—Belief that the X-ray may prove of more value in the treatment of whooping cough than any other form of treatment is expressed by Dr. Henry I. Bowditch and Dr. Ralph D. Leonard in a preliminary report on their experiments to find a cure for the complaint that has baffled all treatment.

Their report, which will be published in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal tomorrow, says that definite improvement was noted in most of twenty-six cases of active pertussis (whooping cough) treated with the X-ray, the subjects of which ranged in age from 3 months to 40 years, with disease stages from one to ten weeks. The physicians added that they could not give any rational explanation of the action through which the X-ray appeared to produce beneficial results. The report said:

of two to three days.

"Many of these cases have not been observed sufficiently long to determine the final result. Nevertheless, it is evident that a definite improvement in these patients which cannot be explained by mere accident. We cannot at this time give any rational explanation of the action through which the X-ray appears to produce the beneficial results. It does not seem likely that it is due to any direct bactericidal property of the X-ray.

"We feel warranted in classifying a small percentage of these twenty-six cases under the heading of 'prompt cures.' By this we mean that after two or three applications of the X-ray, covering a period of six days, the spasms and whoops entirely disappeared and the patients were clinically well except for, possibly, a very slight cough.

"The bulk of the cases, however, we have classified as 'relieved.' This group consists of perhaps 70 per cent. of the total. By 'relieved' we mean that there has been a gradual diminution in the number of spasms.

"There is a small percentage of cases, perhaps 10 to 15 per cent., which apparently were not relieved. In this group are included one moribund case and one rather difficult feeding case.

"While our evidence so far is not sufficient to warrant any definite conclusions, we have the feeling that the X-ray at the present time may be of more value in the treatment of pertussis than any other form of treatment, including serum."

MAYORS FOR WATER POWER.

State Conference Urges Immediate Action by the Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—Immediate action by the State for the development of hydro-electric power and the sale of the current to municipalities for distribution to private consumers, was urged by the Mayor's Conference at its mid-Winter session here today.

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, who represented Mayor Hylan, urged that municipalities throughout the State make common cause and give the lawmakers no rest until they had put through a workable scheme for State development of hydro-electric energy. Governor Smith sent a message to the Legislature on Monday night recommending that this work be taken up immediately by the State.

"The cities should be given power to buy current from the State and sell it to consumers," said Commissioner Hirschfield, who held out the prospect that current would be sold to consumers at the rate of from 2 to 3 cents a kilowat hour. He said that at that rate there would be enough money in it to reimburse the city for establishing transmission lines.

"Politicians must either get behind a real constructive hydro-electric plan and cease to play with this subject, or be tossed into the discard," said a report filed by ex-Mayor Cornelius F. Burns of Troy, Chairman of the Hydro-electric Committee of the Mayors' Conference.

In view of the coal situation the Legislative Committee was instructed to study the question of whether powers for the seizure of fuel should not be vested in Mayors throughout the State.

OLD TUBERCULOSIS CURES.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—Nothing new under the sun epitomizes a paper communicated to the Paris Academy of Medicine by Dr. Dinguizli of Tunis, showing that a thousand years ago tuberculosis was treated on lines closely resembling those advocated by many modern physicians.

A famous Arab doctor named Avicienne, who lived the length of a century, prescribed the following treatment for consumption: Cure by fresh air, cure by mental and physical repose, cure by asses' milk and cure by superfeeding.

Avicienne also advocated the use of a remedy he named "djelenjubine."

Dr. Dinguizli's researches showed that this remedy consisted of red roses preserved in honey in the proportion of 8 per cent. He experimented with the remedy on a large number of consumptives, and found djelenjubine greatly reduced expectoration and caused the patient to gain weight and appetite.

These results he attributes to tanin and sugar, both of which substances have a favorable influence on certain symptoms of tuberculosis, he says.

BERLIN RAISES DOLLAR LOAN

Believed to Be First Domestic Financing in Foreign Currency.

BERLIN, March 7.—The law authorizing the issue of $50,000,000 worth of Treasury bills, which received official publication today, is believed to provide the first instance of a Government floating an internal loan quoted only in denominations of foreign money.

The law, signed by President Ebert, makes no mention of the German mark, but says the Treasury bills may be purchased in American dollars and in British, Swiss, Dutch, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Argentine, Spanish and Japanese currencies. French and Belgian francs are not included.

The work of fixing the details and conditions surrounding issuance of the bills is left to the discretion of the Ministry of Finance.

Twenty-Family House Fired.

A policeman, assisted by tenants, extinguished a fire that menaced twenty families in the five-story tenement at 222 East Seventy-third Street, early yesterday. Joseph Novak returned home to find a quantity of oil-soaked rags on fire under the stairway. Patrolman Conklin of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station organized a bucket brigade and the fire was smothered in snow. The Fire Marshal's office is investigating.

OBREGON TO PASS POWER TO CALLES

Dominating Parties Agree on Secretary of Interior as Candidate for Presidency.

DE LA HUERTA NEXT IN LINE

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, March 7.—A convention for the nomination of a candidate for the Mexican Presidency will be held next May by the majority parties, who have decided upon General Plutarco Calles, Secretary of the Interior, as their candidate. Adolfo de la Huerta, Secretary of the Treasury, in a public statement denies Presidential ambitions, says he is strongly bound to Calles and would not accept a nomination, but will support Calles in every way.

Reports from Northern States say that General Francisco Villa has decided to support General Raul Madero, brother of Francisco I. Madero, Mexico's first Liberal President. Raul Madero is supposed to have the backing of the old Maderos followers and Villistas.

The Liberal Constitutional party, which backed Obregon for the Presidency, later has had few members, but will also call a convention to nominate an opponent to Calles. The Catholic party, working under the name of Fascisti, will name one of the old Cientifico group which dominated the country during the regime of Porfirio Diaz.

An inquiry addressed to a number of prominent lawyers and business men shows that to date General Calles has the strongest following. Congressmen of the various States, both north and south, when sounded were practically unanimous in saying that General Calles would be carried to power by a large majority. Efforts of the Catholic party to work under cover of the Fascisti is meeting with little success. An article in a popular magazine in the United States dealing with the Mexican Fascisti causes smiles in Mexico City, where politicians laugh at the idea of this Fascista party being a factor in the elections.

El Universal in an editorial article sums up the political situation by saying that it depends on the health of Calles. If well, Calles will be a candidate. If unable to accept, de la Huerta will be the candidate. It adds that with either candidate the present Obregon policy will be carried out. The problem, according to El Universal, will be for the Fascisti to find a candidate, as they will be compelled to return to the time of the Cientificos in order to find if possible any figure who would stand the test of the limelight. El Universal dismisses the other parties with this remark, that they will possibly win a few seats in Congress, but are not counted as factors in the Presidential elections.

Old Parties Looking Up.

MEXICO CITY, March 7 (Associated Press).—Almost overnight the Mexican press has been precipitated into a heated discussion of the next Presidential campaign, and from all indications this debate will result in announcement by the various groups of their choices to succeed General Obregon upon the expiration of his term.

The rumored return of Francisco de la Barra, ones shown to have been unfounded, started the comment, and the newspapers now are filled with interviews and declarations by prominent men, from President Obregon down, relative to the advisability of beginning a Presidential campaign with the elections nearly two years away.

Leaders of almost forgotten parties are reported to be attempting to rally their followers, and those groups now dominant in the Government are openly strengthening their positions and issuing statements to the local press.

General Obregon and his Secretary of Interior, P. Elias Calles, are agreed that it is too early to discuss candidates, on the ground that such discussion would tend to disturb the public tranquility. General Calles has specifically declared that he is making no plans in regard to the Presidency, but that he will abide by the result of honest elections. President Obregon is barred from re-election by the provisions of the national Constitution. All indications are that the Obregon-Calles-de la Huerta triumvirate will stand as a unit, regardless of what develops.

El Democrata says that a national convention is to be held in Mexico City next September to nominate a candidate, but does not disclose what groups will participate in the meeting, except to say that they will represent the proletariat in general and that they will support either General Calles or Senor de la Huerta. If such a convention is held it will be the first of its kind in the history of Mexico.

The leaders of the Co-operatistas are urging that an honest election campaign be waged, all parties participating, and are holding up the spectre of revolution as a certain development unless the people are permitted to express their free choice.

ENRIGHT SAYS WAR SPREAD USE OF DRUGS

Prohibition Is Not Responsible, He Says, While Attending Auto Gathering in Springfield.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 7.—Commissioner Enright of the New York Police Department, who was a speaker at the banquet of the Springfield Automobile Club here tonight, attended by leading police authorities of Western Massachusetts, declared in an interview that the increased use of drugs in New York and other parts of the country was not due to prohibition, but was an aftereffect of the war.

He said that many soldiers who were sick or wounded in the war were accustomed to the use of drugs through their treatment, and they became a generous clientele for drug peddlers, who buy drugs abroad cheaply and smuggle them into this country, making a big profit on their sales. Mr. Enright said the New York Police School, which two Springfield officers attended in order that they might be instructors in a similar school here, had been so successful that a school for detectives will be started on April 1 under the auspices of the New York Police Department, open to any detective in the country who desires to attend.

Mr. Enright said crime was rapidly decreasing all over the world, as shown by Scotch and American statistics. He said crime had dropped over 25 per cent. in New York since 1918, despite an increase in population of 600,000, and that the decrease in 1922 had been 22 per cent. over 1921.

The greatest menace to society today is, in some respects, he said, was the young hold-up man, who would do anything to make easy money and who must be dealt with severely in order to discourage a growth of his undesirable class.

Mr. Enright urged support for his proposed National Bureau for Criminal Identification, stating that a similar system of collection of fingerprints, photographs and Bertillon measurements had been established in New York and had already shown its value through identification of between 200 and 300 criminals who might not otherwise have been held.

The Commissioner's address to the club dealt largely with the need for standardization of automobile laws and for interstate co-operation in detection of auto thieves.

UNION MAN NAMED AS HERRIN LEADER

DIRECTED MOVE TO WOODS

He Did Not Want Them Killed on Public Highway, Witness Asserts —Clark Again Named.

MARION, Ill., March 7 (Associated Press).—Hugh Willis, State Board member of the Illinois mine workers, was related out from the witness stand at the second Herrin riots trial today as the man who gave an order "to kill them all" after a mob had taken forty-eight non-union workers from the mine of the Southern Illinois Coal Company last June. The accusation was made by Robert Tracy, a survivor of the riots. At the time of the outbreak, Tracy testified, he was firing a locomotive at the mine and was a union man, being a member of the International Brotherhood of Steam Shovel Workers and Dredgemen.

"'Don't kill these men on the public highway, where are women and children,'" he quoted Willis as saying. "'Take them over into the woods and don't let one get away. Kill them all.'"

The witness also picked out Otis Clark from among the six defendants charged with the murder of Anton Mulkovitch, former soldier, veteran of the Somme and the Argonne and one of the victims of the tragedy.

Tracy testified that he had seen Clark walk up to C. K. McDowell, crippled mine Superintendent and another victim of the riot, cuss him and beat him over the head with the butt end of a pistol. He said Clark told McDowell:

"'I'm going to kill you and tear you into pieces for bait to catch fish with, you scab——.'"

Tracy testified that the unarmed prisoners were taken into the woods after Willis had driven up in an automobile and said to "kill them all." He said one bullet struck him as he ran, but that he escaped by swimming a small lake.

On cross-examination Tracy said that after the firing on the mine had started he got a gun, went to the top of one of the mine buildings and returned the fire.

"Whom did you shoot at?" he was asked.

"I shot at those who were firing at me."

"You shot to kill?"

"Yes, sir."

John Shafner, a clerk in a Herrin hardware store, testified that some men had come into the store the morning of the riot and had asked for guns and ammunition, saying: "The local is good for it."

The witness said he refused to give them any guns without an order and that a little later some one called him on the telephone and said:

"This is Hugh Willis. The boys want some guns and ammunition to shoot birds. You let them have it and I will make it right."

Asked whether he thought the voice was that of Willis, as he had testified at the first trial, he replied: "Before I said that I thought it was Hugh Willis, but that I might be mistaken. I have no judgment now."

Most of this testimony was given over the objections of the defense and in the absence of the jury, and later it was all stricken out, Judge D. T. Hartwell ruling that it was not proper, as it did not show any connection of any of the defendants except on a guess or the say-so of an unidentified man.

SAYS RUSSIA NEEDS CREDIT.

Colonel Haskell Advises Against Further Famine Aid.

MOSCOW, March 7 (Associated Press).—Russia needs money or credit to rehabilitate her industries, not more famine aid, Colonel William N. Haskell, Director of the American Relief Administration, has informed Secretary Hoover. Before dispatching the message Colonel Haskell conferred with Leo Kameneff, the Third Vice President, who is said to have concurred in all the details.

Colonel Haskell pointed out to Mr. Hoover that the present relations of the Relief Administration with the Russian Government appear to be satisfactory and that ample assistance is at hand to care for all famine sufferers until the harvest, which promises to be good. The message said that although there was much undernourishment in Russia, there was but little actual starvation. In fact, Colonel Haskell explained, not more than 1,000,000 persons would be seriously affected by famine even if foreign aid were withdrawn. He pointed out that if America took further steps to render assistance, such aid could not reach Russia in time to do any good. As a matter of fact, bread is cheaper in Russia than elsewhere.

What Russia needs, Colonel Haskell continued, is credit or money to rehabilitate her transportation and agriculture and to fight the plant pests. The Colonel asserted that the Soviet Government's plan to export grain was a forward step.

Colonel Haskell will leave tonight for Athens to spend several weeks.

EBERT FLIES TO LEIPSIC.

German President Takes Part in Opening Flying Field at Fair.

LEIPSIC, March 7.—The trip here from Berlin by airplane of President Ebert and other Government officials today brought increased attendance at the Leipsic Fair.

While many departments reported continued reluctance to close contracts by visiting buyers, other booths declared an improvement in sales had set in following the numerous price reductions announced yesterday. Shoe prices are said to have gone down 20 per cent.

President Ebert took part in the formal opening of the new flying field here, which is designed to become an important point in international aerial services. Later he attended a reception at the City Hall, where also were present the Russian Ambassador, Austrian Minister and several leading Prussian, Saxon and Bavarian officials.

RECALL PREACHER'S FLIGHT

Creditors Obtain Order for Johnson Estate Accounting.

The disappearance more than twenty years ago of the Rev. James LeBaron Johnson, assistant rector at Grace Church, son of Archdeacon Johnson of Staten Island and chaplain of the Fire Department, and his subsequent marriage to a Bellevue nurse, was recalled yesterday when the former nurse, Mrs. Mary Hoffman Johnson, was directed in the Surrogate's Court to file an accounting of the estate of her husband, who died last April.

Surrogate Foley granted the accounting order in behalf of creditors of Mr. Johnson's estate, with claims totaling $4,681, mostly for loans. Through her attorneys, Mrs. Johnson said she had filed no accounting because her husband left only $600.

6.8-INCH SNOWFALL FAST BEING CLEARED

TRANSIT LINES RECOVER

Surface Cars Have Trouble and Railroads Experience Some Delays.

The 6.8 inches of snow which the storm of Tuesday and yesterday brought to the city increased the Winter's total to 54.6 inches, which is the second highest total snowfall on record at the New York Weather Bureau. The heaviest Winter's fall on record was in 1904-1905, when 76 inches fell.

Although the Street Cleaning Department was not aided yesterday by a thaw or rain, which has been the usual sequel to this year's storms, Commissioner Alfred A. Taylor reported that good progress was being made in clearing the streets. About 9,000 men were kept at work throughout the day and last night, and every available piece of equipment was employed.

The rapid transit lines generally reported that their normal schedules were being maintained. Some delay was experienced during the early morning hours yesterday on the West End, Sea Beach and Brighton Beach lines of the B. R. T., due to snow piles, but Clinton Morgan, general manager of the system, said that the snow had been quickly removed and the regular schedules restored. All the rapid transit lines were congested yesterday as a result of delays on the surface lines.

Most of the surface lines had difficulty in keeping cars moving at the normal rate. There was a two-hour suspension of trolley service between Elmhurst and Flushing because of street floods. The cars on the Municipal trolley line on Staten Island and the lines of the Richmond Light & Railroad Company were delayed.

Mrs. Bessie Liebowitz, 57, of 1,253 St. Nicholas Avenue, died at Columbus Hospital last night, from injuries received when she was knocked down by a snow plow of the Fifth Avenue Bus Company. Mrs. Liebowitz was crossing St. Nicholas Avenue at 173d Street when she was struck. Her left leg was badly crushed and amputation was decided upon. John Sexton of 377 East 152d Street, was the operator of the plow.

Two accidents attributed to the storm occurred on Brooklyn trolley lines. Miss Katherine Gurah of 2292 West Thirty-first Street, Coney Island, was cut by flying glass when a Norton Point trolley struck an automobile in which she was riding at West Thirty-first Street and Railroad Avenue, Coney Island. Arthur Caddell, motorman of a Union Avenue trolley, was taken to St. Catherine's Hospital with internal injuries after he had struck an automobile at Union Avenue and Ten Eyck Street, Williamsburg.

Through trains were not greatly delayed as a result of the storm. The New York Central reported most of its trains on time. Trains arriving at the Jersey City terminals were not more than ten or fifteen minutes late. The Boston Express on the New Haven Railroad was three hours late yesterday morning because of the derailment of an engine near Rye.

Several trains were reported by the police in Hudson and Essex Counties, N. J., to have been delayed for about twenty minutes at the Lackawanna drawbridge between Hoboken and Kearny after a coal barge had struck the bridge. The high tide and strong wind caused the accident. A tug knocked the bridge back into place. The railroad management said that it knew of only one train being held up.

Two persons died after collapsing in the storm. An elderly woman believed to be Elisabeth Schwartz fell in Second Avenue between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets, and was dead by the time a Bellevue ambulance arrived. Fred Barkay, 60, address unknown, was found dead in front of 147 Waverley Place. He was said to be a carpenter and harnessmaker, with space in a West Eighth Street stable.

DENBY ON THE BRIDGE IN HATTERAS STORM

The Henderson, Bearing a Washington Party to Panama, Encounters Furious Seas.

ABOARD U. S. S. HENDERSON EN ROUTE TO PANAMA, March 7 (By Radio to the Associated Press).—The navy transport Henderson, bearing Secretary Denby and a party of Senators and Representatives to Panama, today encountered heavy going off Hatteras.

Throughout most of the day the Henderson battled through a smoky southwester and rolling seas, which kept all landlubbers close to their staterooms.

Some of the naval officers on the transport said that the storm was the worst they had ever encountered. Secretary Denby proved to be a good sailor, spending part of the day on the bridge as the ship made its way slowly past Cape Hatteras.

Late in the day the transport appeared to have left the storm behind.

SUPPRESS 'REIGEN,' SUMNER DEMANDS

BOWLBY GETS COMPLAINTS

Only Men Invited to Green Room Club Performance—"God of Vengeance" Group Surrenders.

John S. Sumner, Superintendent of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, sent a letter to Inspector Bolan, in command of the Tenderloin district, yesterday, calling his attention to the performance of Arthur Schnitzler's play "Reigen" which the Green Room Club announced several days ago it would give at the Belasco Theatre next Sunday night as a climax to a dinner for Otto H. Kahn at the club.

Mr. Sumner told the inspector he had read the book of the play and considered it vile. He asked that detectives be sen to the theatre to attend the performance, which is to be held in private, to see that Section 140-A of the penal code, which prohibits the presentation of immoral shows, is not violated.

He added that the title "Reigen" was the German word for ring or circle, and that when an attempt was made some time ago to produce the play in Berlin it failed because of riots which followed. Mr. Sumner told Inspector Bolan that he had been informed that although six women were to appear in the cast of the play, none but men had been invited to witness Sunday's performance.

Sumner Assails Schnitzler.

Mr. Sumner said that he had received an anonymous complaint about the proposed performance, and he agreed with the writer that the play was not fit to be shown to any kind of an audience. He said Schnitzler, an Austrian, had written other objectionable books which "show clearly that he has a filthy and perverted mind."

The Lord's Day Alliance, through Rev. Dr. Henry L. Bowlby, its Secretary, had informed him, Mr. Sumner said, of complaints about the proposed performance of "Reigen," but he declared that while the alliance would oppose its presentation on the ground that it would violate the law against the giving of shows on Sunday, he was interested in the matter solely to suppress what he considered an immoral play.

In the play, it was said, as the plot progresses the men and women characters exchange companions in each succeeding act.

Michael Selwyn, manager of the Apollo Theatre, in West Forty-second Street; Harry Weinberger, lawyer and owner of the play "God of Vengeance," and twelve members of the cast surrendered in the District Attorney's office yesterday and later were released in $300 bail each on an indictment charging them with giving an obscene and immoral play. All of the defendants were represented by Mr. Weinberger when arraigned before Judge Crain in General Sessions, and he entered pleas of not guilty for himself and the others.

It was learned that the indictment followed the appearance before the Grand Jury of the Rev. Joseph Silverman, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street; August W. Glatmeyer, Commissioner of Licenses, and Detectives Daley and McCarthy of Inspector Boland's Vice Squad.

The twelve members of the cast named in the indictment were Rudolph Schildkraut, who played the leading rôle and who gave his address as 39 East Twenty-seventh Street; Morris Strnovisky, 43 West Eighty-fourth Street; Samuel Jaffe, 8 Morris Park West; James Meighan, 140 East Fifty-second Street; Irving Adler, 152 Fairmount Avenue, the Bronx; Miss Aleah Wise, 28 Carlton Street; Miss Dorothea Nolan, 244 Thompson Street; Miss Virginia McFadden, 168 Bank Street; Miss Esther Stockton, 6 East Ninth Street; Miss Marjorie Stewart, 244 Thompson Street; Miss Mae Berland, 62 West Forty-ninth Street, and Miss Lillian K. Tais, 520 West 122d Street.

Weinberger asked that bail be fixed at $100 in each case, and obtained permission to change the pleas within a week. Assistant District Attorney Maloney asked the Court to hold the defendants in $1,000 bail each and, in requesting that the trial of the case be expedited, started to tell Judge Crain about the play.

"I know all about this play," Judge Crain interrupted. "There is no need of taking up the time of this Court to tell me the details."

Mr. Maloney wanted Mr. Schildkraut and the two managers at least held in $1,900 bail each, but Assistant District Attorney John F. O'Neil, who had presented the evidence against the defendants to the Grand Jury, appeared in Court at this point and Judge Crain asked him what bail he thought should be imposed, and he suggested $300 for each. That sum then was fixed and was furnished by a man who had come to court with the group.

The request by Mr. Maloney that the case be brought to trial immediately was understood to be the outcome of the authorship, desire to learn whether the play would be suppressed. Should the defendants be found guilty, it was said, the Commissioner of Licenses would order the theatre closed until some other performance was presented. No attempt will be made to interfere with the play, it was said, in the meantime.

Mrs. Saludes was taken back to the Tombs, but was brought in again at 5 P. M., when the foreman of the jury sent word to the Court that they were ready to return a verdict.

When the verdict of murder in the second degree was announced Mrs. Saludes revealed not the slightest sign of emotion, merely glancing at the foreman as the words were uttered. As Mrs. McDonald stepped to her side after the Court had announced the day of sentence, Mrs. Saludes turned around quickly and started down the aisle toward the corridor in the rear of the courtroom, with Deputy Sheriffs Levy and Libertino on each side of her.

When near the bottom of the stairway leading up to the detention pen she turned to Mrs. McDonald and said, "Please help me to put on my coat." After she had donned the garment Deputy Sheriff Levy saw her drive both hands into her pockets. The next second Mrs. McDonald, who was walking behind her, saw her draw her hands from the pockets and lift them to her face.

Levy had also noticed the movement, and when he saw Mrs. Saludes tear a little brass-covered vanity case apart and scoop out the contents of one part of it with her tongue he yelled to Libertino, "Frank, grab that thing from her."

Mrs. McDonald and Libertino then pounced on the woman. Mrs. Saludes ran her right hand back into her coat pocket, and Libertino had just then taken from her the part of the vanity case with the poison, when the convicted woman, shoving Mrs. McDonald aside, brought her right hand up to her throat and attempted to sever the jugular vein with a miniature mirror inside the lid of the case.

Resists Three Deputies.

Levy in the meantime had inserted his handkerchief in her mouth and Libertino and Mrs. McDonald got the rest of the vanity case from her. Mrs. Saludes then struggled to prevent the three Deputy Sheriffs from taking her upstairs and began screaming.

Judge Koenig had dismissed the jury and was on his way to his chambers before he was informed that Mrs. Saludes had attempted to kill herself. Then many of the jurors and most of the persons who were in court when the verdict was returned hurried up the stairs in the interior of the building to the door leading from the inner corridor on the mezzanine floor to the prisoners' pen.

Court attendants joined the Deputy Sheriffs in driving them away, and in a few minutes Dr. Lichtenstein came over from the Tombs and examined the woman. He ordered her taken across to the Tombs, and a hurry call was made to Volunteer Hospital for an ambulance. Before the arrival of the ambulance with Dr. Rutherford, Dr. Lichtenstein had used the stomach pump on the slayer and pronounced her out of danger.

Attendants in the court said that it was the first time in many years that a woman had been convicted in General Sessions on a second degree murder charge. Mrs. Saludes in her defense asserted that while she "must have shot Martelliere," she had no recollection of doing so and believed he was killed when she was trying to kill herself with his pistol, which she had found in his desk a short time before she fired five shots at him.

Saw Her Shoot Martelliere.

Miss Gertrude Thompson of Tompkinsville, S. I., a 17-year-old stenographer in Martelliere's office, testified that she saw Mrs. Saludes fire three of the shots at Martelliere while the broker lay dying on the floor. James A. Turley, the woman's lawyer, testified that she came to his office after the killing and attempted to kill herself with the pistol and then tried to jump out the window. Two detectives told of Mrs. Saludes having attempted to jump under a surface car and a motor truck after her arrest.

"I charge you as a matter of law that attempts by the defendant to commit suicide are not sufficient to create the presumption of insanity," Judge Koenig said to the jury. He told the jurors that even if they felt that Martelliere was deserving of punishment on Mrs. Saludes's charge that Martelliere had induced her to abandon her husband and live with him as his wife, this did not justify the killing. Judge Koenig also dwelt on Mrs. Saludes's assertion that Martelliere abandoned her after he had acquired her home and her automobile.

The wife and 6-year-old daughter of the slain man were in court during the proceeding, and on several occasions while the Judge was charging the jury Mrs. Martelliere sobbed. She showed no sign of emotion when the verdict was returned, however, and refused to make any comment.

Mrs. Saludes is of French descent and was a stenographer by occupation.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES REDUCED BY 102,101

SOME OTHERS EXPANDING

Post Office and Agriculture Departments Find Work Increases Yearly —Big Cuts in Army and Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—A total of 102,101 persons have been separated from the Government service in the two years of the Harding Administration, according to a statement made at the White House today. While there were increases in the personnel of some Government establishments amounting to 17,000, the gross decrease numbered 119,-161, leaving a net decrease of the number stated.

The most notable increase was in the field service of the Post Office Department, amounting to 9,175. The Veterans' Bureau was increased by 5,284, and in the Department of Agriculture the staff was increased by 1,187.

In decreases the War Department led with more than 45,000, and the Navy Department came next with more than 33,-000 in consequence of the curtailment of the enormous volume of clerical work due to the World War. The statement given out at the White House follows:

"The detailed figures furnished by all the departments and independent establishments show that reductions aggregate 219,161. These were in part offset by increases in certain departments amounting to 17,060. The difference between these two figures is 102,101, which represents the net reduction. The figures, which have been carefully tabulated, present some interesting lights upon the tendencies of the Government service. It is found that the staff has been reduced in nearly all of the departments and establishments. Specifically there have been reductions in the Departments of State, Treasury, War, Navy, Interior, Commerce and Labor; in the Civil Service Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Shipping Board, Railroad Administration, Alien Property Custodian, United States Employes' Compensation Commission, Government Printing Office, United States Bureau of Efficiency, Controller General of the United States and Federal Reserve Board. The most important of these are:

"Treasury Department, 19,154; War Department, 45,000; Navy Department, 45,067; Interior Department, 437; Department of Commerce, 1,921; Department of Labor, 400; Civil Service Commission, 70; Federal Trade Commission, 9; United States Shipping Board, 5,431; United States Railroad Administration, 135; Alien Property Custodian, 36; United States Employes' Compensation Commission, 6; Government Printing Office, 470; United States Bureau of Efficiency, 3; Controller General of the United States, 396; Federal Reserve Board, 20.

"The departments in which there were net increases have all had special and important additional duties imposed upon them. Thus, the Post Office Department shows a net increase of 9,175, making a total of 333,054. The explanation is, of course, that the business of the Post Office Department increases regularly from year to year and that there is always a requirement for expansion of the personnel to take care of it.

"The Department of Agriculture, with a net increase of 1,187, has had important and attractive new duties imposed upon it. The War Finance Corporation had been practically put out of business prior to March 4, 1921, on which date it had only twenty employes. Congress early in 1921 recalled it to active service and vested in it very important functions in the matter of financing agriculture, with the result that the staff had to be increased to 566.

"Likewise the Tariff Commission, by reason of the scientific tariff making provisions of the new Tariff law, has required its be expanded from 98 to 160.

"The United States Veterans' Bureau on March 4, 1921, had 25,632 employes. Two years later it increased this number by 3,332 in the field service, but reduced it by 2,196 in the departmental service. There was also an increase of twenty-two in the hospitals, making a net increase of 5,347."

CONGRESSMEN INVITED TO ALASKA FISHERIES

Fish Commissioner O'Malley Makes Sarcastic Answer to Charges by Alaska Delegate.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Members of the House and Senate committees dealing with fisheries have been invited by the Commerce Department, Fish Commissioner Henry O'Malley announced today, to go to Alaska during the Congressional recess to inspect conditions in the fishing reserves of the Territory recently enlarged by executive order.

Mr. O'Malley, in making the announcement, dealt sarcastically with charges of Dan A. Sutherland, Alaskan Delegate in Congress, to the effect that the department had given a monopoly of Alaskan salmon fisheries to three San Francisco and Chicago packing concerns.

"Delegate Sutherland has truly dug up the most terrifying and gigantic piece of corruption ever exposed in American history," Mr. O'Malley asserted in a formal statement.

"It embraces the old villainies of salmon canners, embalmed fish sellers, War Department frauds, Chicago packers, all busy lavishing graft for their nefarious purposes—upon Stanford University (which truly needs money), involving the eminent professors of zoology at Stanford, Washington and Illinois Universities and the California Academy of Science, the American Association of Fishermen, the Pacific Coast Association, the Fish Commissioners of California, Oregon and Washington (none of whom ever have enough money), upon eight chambers of commerce and pioneer citizens of Alaska (none of whom are in collect all of their dues).

"According to Delegate Sutherland all of these parties in turn have, by their representations, imposed upon the President of the United States (who declared one-half of Alaska a temporary fishing reserve), upon the Governor of Alaska (who has just commended the plan to the Alaskan Legislature), upon the Secretary of Commerce (who has ideas of conservation), upon the Assistant Secretary of Commerce (who went over the ground himself and found a unanimity of opinion for the action taken—except from certain canners and certain fishermen who are not classed among the villains)—and yet nobody seems to have gotten the money. Button, button, who's got the button?

"And, finally, to make sure that everybody is involved in the conspiracy, the Department of Commerce has arranged for the members of the House and Senate committees dealing with fisheries to go to Alaska and look at the fisheries with their own eyes."

To End British-Costa Rican Dispute.

WALLACE TELLS NEED OF REFORESTATION

Says Our Timber Supply Has Dwindled to One-Third of Original Total.

OFFERS CONSERVATION PLAN

Suggests to Senate Committee Extending Protection Service to Take In Privately Owned Forests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The special Senate committee appointed to investigate the wood and pulp problems of the United States and to devise a workable reforestation plan for submission to Congress held its first hearing today. The witnesses, both of whom emphasized the seriousness of the American forest situation, were Secretary Wallace and Hugh P. Baker, Executive Secretary of the American Paper and Pulp Association.

Secretary Wallace said that of the original American timber supply, which was estimated at 5,200,000,000,000 board feet, there remained today not more than 1,600,000,000,000 board feet of second growth timber and stubble. The acreage cut per year is now estimated at about 10,000,000. The annual loss by fire is millions of feet. There are 81,000,000 acres of barren lands where once stood great forests.

Secretary Wallace said that the shortage was already making itself felt, and that the time had come for the Government and the States to work out some plan that would make reforestation possible. Under a proper conservation policy, he estimated that from 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 cubic feet of timber could be added annually. The Secretary suggested an extension of the forest protection service so as to take in privately owned land as well as State owned forests, the encouragment of replanting by farmers and forest owners generally, a tax system that would encourage the growing of trees and co-operation along other lines between the Federal and State Governments.

Mr. Baker, speaking for the pulp and paper manufacturers, gave it as his opinion that many "lean years," due to the depletion of the raw materials, were ahead of the industry in this country. The problem of the forests, he added, was entering the economical stage, and in the future the spruces and other pulp woods would bring such increased prices as to make forest conservation a paying business.

In the opinion of Mr. Baker, one of the reasons for the ruthless destruction of American forests has been due to the fact that lands have been taxed in about the same proportion as have tillable and other lands from which annual returns are possible. He suggested that the European plan of taxing the timber when it was cut and leaving the land itself tax free, so long as it was used for forest purposes, would go a long way in the direction of solving the American tree problem. The timber loss due to faulty tax systems, he estimated to be about as great as the losses due to fire.

Mr. Baker said the pulp industry was now at work to find a way to use Southern pine in the manufacture of pulp. This problem, he said, would be solved, and the South was destined to be the home of a great paper industry. The problem, he explained, is to find a way to remove the resin from the pine timber.

The hearing will be resumed tomorrow.

PLAN TO GET FACTS ON FARM MARKETS

Commerce and Agriculture Department Will Name Commission for Full Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—A broad investigation of the agricultural and live stock situation to determine the home needs and the exports that will be required in view of the present European situation is being undertaken by the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture, according to an announcement by Secretary Hoover today. Funds for the survey will be taken from the appropriation of $500,000 made by Congress in the recent deficiency law.

Secretary Hoover said that a commission would be named by his department, comprising representatives of agricultural organizations and exporters in the principal groups of grain, cereal products, animal products, cotton and tobacco, together with economic and financial experts, who will plan, direct and formulate the results of the investigation. It is hoped that the investigation will aid in bringing about a betterment of the condition of the farmers by pointing the way in which agricultural products and live stock can be raised on a sound economic basis.

"Agricultural produce comprises about one-half of our total exports," a statement by Secretary Hoover said. "During the last three years there has been an apparently slight overproduction in the United States, which seriously affects agricultural prices, and the question arises as to how temporary this situation may be, and what the future prospects are.

"During the ten years before 1913 our production did not keep up with our consumption, and the increased consumption was reflected in a decreasing margin of exportable surplus to an average of about 6,500,000 tons per annum just before the war. In the ten years since that time, production has steadily increased, not only sufficiently to provide for 15,000,000 increase in population, but our total exports have increased to about 17,000,000 tons per annum.

"In the meantime the farmer population has not kept pace with the general population, there having been but little increase in the number of farmers. The increased agricultural production is due to nearly 30 per cent increased output per farmer. This is, in turn, apparently due to steady improvement in agricultural science and mechanical appliances, and is perhaps contributed to by a run of favorable climatic conditions. The lowered production of Europe, especially of Russia, has contributed to create the enlarged market for this surplus abroad.

"It is proposed that there should be an exhaustive investigation of the facts as to the proportion of exports to the total of each crop, those facts which bear upon the trend of increased production and increasing consumption at home, the gradual shifting in the world's demand for different foodstuffs, the tendencies of agricultural production abroad, the finance of exports, the bearing of various trade factors upon the whole question of foreign marketing, the better preparation of produce for foreign markets and aids to export, the possibilities of shipment to destination instead of rehandling in foreign countries, and various factors in understanding of the changing character of market which the American farmer must meet."

MONEY GONE, DRIFTS, NOW HELD AS SLAYER

Former Leather Expert Gets Job as "Swabber" in Saloon Where Killing Occurs.

CALLS POLICE TO HIS ROOM

Honor Graduate of College Surrenders When He Learns of Death of Assailant.

Joseph Murphy, 62 years old, was arrested Tuesday night at the Mills Hotel, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, by Detective Broncato of the Alexander Avenue Station, Bronx, after he had telephoned to the police saying that he would be waiting for them in his room. Murphy was wanted in connection with the murder of Joseph O'Rourke of 425 East 146th Street, who died in Lincoln Hospital on Monday of stab wounds received during a fight in a former licensed saloon at 476 East 146th Street.

The arraignment of Murphy in the line-up yesterday morning where he was placed for the detectives of the city to look at him, marked the climax of a story of his life and arrest as related by Detectives Broncato and Sullivan.

Born in Pittsfield, Mass., Murphy was graduated with honors forty years ago from Nicolette College, St. John's, N. F. He entered the leather business and soon became known as an expert in his line and one of the best wholesale leather salesmen in Canada and the New England States.

Up to ten years ago, when he lost money in bad investments, Murphy prospered; but financial worry caused him to take to drink. In a short time his savings were swept away and he was forced to seek employment as a "swabber" in the saloon in East 146th Street. His duties consisted in mopping up the place and working generally as a porter.

Among frequenters of the saloon, Murphy, in spite of his position, soon became known as "The Sage." Many of the hangers-on respected him as a man who had seen better days. Others, however, plagued the old "swabber" and amused themselves by taunting him.

According to the detectives, O'Rourke, a laborer, was among those who took particular delight in teasing Murphy. On Monday, when the fight occurred, he is said to have made some sarcastic remark to Murphy which the latter parried in such a manner as to turn the laugh on O'Rourke. The outcome, the detectives say, was that O'Rourke struck Murphy with his fist, whereupon Murphy reached across the lunch counter, seized a big cheese knife and stabbed his assailant in the neck. Two hours later O'Rourke died in Lincoln Hospital. Murphy meanwhile had disappeared.

On Tuesday night Murphy called up the police, saying he had learned of O'Rourke's death and that he would be waiting for them in his room.

When arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham in the Morrisania Court, Murphy was held without bail for examination March 14.

BEDFORD BOY IN ASYLUM.

Committed at Father's Request Following Theft of Auto.

It became known yesterday that County Judge Bleakley of Westchester County had committed Charles E. Bedford Jr., now 21 years old, to the Bloomingdale Asylum as insane on Feb. 28 on the application of Charles E. Bedford the boy's father, of 103 East Thirty-ninth Street. Mr. Bedford is Vice President of the Vacuum Oil Company and the son of Edward T. Bedford, President of the Corn Products Refining Company. He asked for the legal commitment after his son had escaped from Bloomingdale early in January.

Drs. Flavius Packer and Thomas W. Salmon, alienists, made affidavits before Judge Bleakley recommending that young Bedford be committed.

Young Bedford was committed to prison at Michigan City, Ind., in June, 1921, a few days after he had stolen an automobile there and confessed. The sentence was for three to five years, but when word reached the youth's father here the case was reopened and the boy released under bond after evidence of his mental condition had been supplied. He had been in Dr. Packer's sanitarium at Riverdale and was being sent to a ranch in the West when he escaped from the physician in charge and left the train at Michigan City.

South Carolina Rewards Negroes Faithful to Masters in Civil War.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 7.—Faithful negroes who stood by their masters during the Civil War were voted pensions by the South Carolina Legislature today. The House passed the Johnstone bill providing such pensions, which already had passed the Senate by a vote of 47 to 54.

The bill provides that slaves who served the State and their masters in the Confederate Army during the war shall be granted pensions under virtually the same conditions as those now paid to Confederate veterans.

Does it pay to look into the future?

What will happen to New York real estate in the next hundred years?

THE artist has this advantage over the real estate man—with his imagination and his pen he can picture in a few inches of space the New York of 2023; while the real estate man must deal with the less romantic details of values, sales, mortgages, rentals, laws and locations.

It has taken only nine years to transform the business and residential heart of New York in even a more striking way than Hugh Ferriss has pictured it above. Whoever has kept in his mind the picture of Park Avenue of nine years ago, remembers the open holes, the railroad tracks, the small buildings and businesses.

Douglas L. Elliman & Company has participated largely in the development of this Grand Central zone, now one of the richest real estate sections in the world. Here we opened our offices eleven years ago, here we built our new building for the service of the public in all real estate matters.

Here we concentrate

MOST important of all, here we concentrate all our efforts. The part we have played in the erection of the famous apartment houses at 270, 290 and 300 Park Avenue, in the new hotel "The Roosevelt" at Madison and 45th, in the purchase for Arnold Constable of their present location at Fifth Avenue and 40th Street, and in hundreds of similar business buildings and apartment houses could only result from the intimate knowledge coming from specialization in the uptown zone (34th to 96th Streets and 3rd to 8th Avenues.)

We, too, have a picture of the future of this district. Every foot of space in this territory we know. Every transaction for years back is in our records. Every effect of the zoning laws on business and residences is calculated. Within our organization even, our brokers specialize in districts and in types of real estate. The fifty buildings whose entire operation and rental we manage are in this zone.

Broad service in a growing district

OUR real estate service in this district is not limited to the purchase, sale and lease of business and apartment properties. Beyond that, we conduct a highly organized department for the profitable management of buildings, a department of insurance in all its branches, a co-operative apartment department, and a complete service for individuals and business organizations who wish to invest in improved realty where stability is combined with a remarkable growth in values.

We invite consultation with those interested in the future of realty in the heart of New York

"The increasing value of a garden apartment at Jackson Heights"

A prominent attorney, who has been a resident at Jackson Heights for years has this to say in regard to the desirability of investment in a garden apartment in the finer residential section of New York as demonstrated in the experience of others, who, through circumstance, have been compelled to move away.

"Friends of mine at Jackson Heights who for various unforseen reasons have been compelled to dispose of their apartments have been able to do so on a profitable basis. The garden apartment held today, it has been the experience of all of us, will be worth more money a year from now, by that I mean that a person going there now can do so with the assurance he is making a good investment that will pay him back more money than he puts in."

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes of 5 to 7 rooms, 2 and 3 bathrooms, are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life and yet live in New York City.

Number Two of a Series of Talks on the Transportation Problem, by Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz

the "wizard of Schenectady"; consulting engineer General Electric Co.; chief engineer and chairman board of directors Steinmetz Electric Motor Car Corp., Arlington, Baltimore, Md.

Steinmetz

A Money-Saving Delivery Truck

The Only Commercial Product That Bears His Name

"BECAUSE I was convinced that the cost of local delivery of merchandise by gasolene truck was far too high; and because I knew that reduction of this cost would be a genuine service to the public, I began some fifteen years ago experiments which bear fruit today in the Steinmetz Electric Light Delivery Truck.

"I saw that the cost of operating the gasolene truck on frequent-stop, short-haul delivery work was very high. The electric truck at that time had not reached a high degree of development—doubtless because manufacturers found it easier and cheaper to concentrate on the development of the gas truck. Accordingly I took up the problem of the electric truck.

"In the Steinmetz Light Delivery Truck I offer an electric of entirely new design—a vehicle having all the advantages in chassis construction of the light delivery gas truck, plus the economy of operation and the other advantages of the electric truck.

"In hood, fenders, step, pneumatic tires, and a dozen other details immediately suggest the gas truck. Its frame, axles, spring suspension, reduction gears, steering gear, etc., are identical in construction with standard gasolene trucks. It loads at the same standard level.

"As a result of these improvements and our direct electric drive unit, this new electric truck operates with speed and a long mileage range, at a big saving over horse-drawn wagon or gasolene truck.

"The above statement is borne out by actual proof. Last year a preliminary series of these trucks were put to practical test in the every-day service of a number of prominent business concerns. In competition with wagons and gas trucks over similar routes under similar conditions, they all have shown decided savings.

"I respectfully commend the new Steinmetz Electric to every merchant and business man who wishes to reduce his delivery costs and at the same time improve his service."

Charles P. Steinmetz

Why Electric Trucks Are Better

For city and suburban route deliveries, where frequent stops and short hauls are the rule, the electric truck offers the only truly economical transportation.

Electric trucks last longer—dividing the initial cost over a much longer period.

They are less expensive to maintain—one single truckhorse costs more to feed.

They are easier to care for—recharging is simple and is easily handled by the owner.

There are less repairs—about one thousand fewer parts to wear out.

They are quieter.

They are easier to handle—start and stop quicker.

They are safer—reckless driving eliminated.

They require less expensive insurance.

Make any comparison you wish of operation cost between electric and gasolene trucks for frequent stop delivery and you'll find the electric makes a startlingly better showing.

What Is Your Delivery Problem?

We will be glad to show you how you can save money—an appreciable yearly sum—on your present cost of short-haul delivery, whether it be by horse or gasolene truck. Do not hesitate to ask for this information, as it will not obligate you in any way.

Send for booklet "How to Select a Light Delivery Truck." Contains the information you ought to have—but do not always secure—before buying a truck. "Proper Conditions under which to use Horse, Gasolene or Electric Trucks" and other valuable data.

MUSIC

By RUSSELL ALGER.

The American Music Guild.

For the third time this season the American Music Guild championed the cause of American music in a concert given in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon devoted. The audience was not large, but manifested much interest in the character of the offerings. There were compositions for violin, voice and for the piano.

John Powell's sonata for violin and piano in one movement was the first number and the one that showed the most talent. He played it with Albert Stoessel. The several sections of the sonata form one connected whole and in it there is thematic substance recognizable. There is thematic subsequent development and it is treated with skill, with considerable originality. Mr. Powell has made fascinating use of some negro tunes, or tunes based on their characteristics. He finds it difficult to let go at the end; and the work is unduly prolonged. It would be stronger and it would say more by saying less. The two players gave an admirable performance.

Leo Ornstein's Op. 29 for two pianos, played by the composer and Miss Ethel Leginska, was the last, and is one of the best works in dolefully discordant. Between these came four songs by Alexander Steinert to words by Amy Lowell and three by Clifford Vaughan to words by Ruth Harwood, sung by Miss Eva Gauthier admirably, with excellent diction and a fine grasp on difficult styles. They seemed to be more lyric gift, which after all is what makes songs, in Vaughan's productions. Miss Gauthier was much applauded and for an encore sang a song which she said she greatly admired, by Lehmann, a young woman of Philadelphia. It was attractive to follow Miss Gauthier all the way in her opinion of it.

Samuel Gardner played five of his own compositions for violin and piano: two preludes; a piece called "Slavic," though its characteristics are almost wholly Hungarian; and one called "From the Canebrake," in which negro melodic and rhythmic traits are cleverly utilized. He, too, was much applauded.

Miss Sabanieva in "Manon."

Massenet's delightful opera of "Manon" was repeated last evening at the Metropolitan Opera House, with Miss Thalia Sabanieva, the Greek soprano, who made her first appearance recently, as Manon. The rest of the cast was that which has sung the opera earlier in the season. Miss Sabanieva showed a graceful and attractive personality, and a pretty light and not unpleasing quality, but disposed towards unsteadiness. Mr. Hasselmans conducted with results admirable in rhythm and delicacy.

Josephine Houston, Soprano, Sings.

Josephine Houston gave a recital of soprano songs before an audience of considerable size in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. She was assisted by August King-Smith at the piano, and flute obligatos were played by Arthur Lora. Above the first group Miss Houston overcame the nervousness which affected her first number, the aria "La Pasillon," by Gounzalin, and other French songs, with an easy flow of melody and with good musical taste. In response to the applause at the close of the program, she gave a spirited Southerner's version of "Dixie."

'Meistersinger,' 'Flying Dutchman.'

Wagner's "Meistersinger" for the seventh time, and the more rarely heard "Flying Dutchman" for the third time were repeated by the Berth festival singers at the Manhattan yesterday afternoon and night. In the matinee comedy, which Leo Blech directed, were the Misses Fleischer and Basith, Messrs. Urlus, Schwarz, Rader, Laubenthal and Kipnis. Mr. Plaschke sang the self-satisfied Hochsinger and Mr. Schwarz the schoolmaster and Knupfer, Messrs. Bellenzig, Schlusnus and Lehmann, under Mr. Goldfish's baton.

EQUITY BAN ON "CONCERT."

Its Members Told Not to Appear for Brady Sunday.

William A. Brady's announced "shared and educational concert," announced for the Playhouse this Sunday night, fell under the ban of the Actors' Equity Association yesterday. Mr. Brady had planned to give a vaudeville performance, consisting in part of numbers from "Up She Goes," and in which he himself would appear. The Equity later informed him that the organization "felt it their duty to instruct their members to decline to appear."

The letter also invited Mr. Brady to appear before the Equity council on Tuesday if he desired to appeal from the decision, but Mr. Brady refused to do this. Instead, he suggested that he address the Equity membership at the open meeting to be held at the Hotel Astor next Sunday. No reply to this suggestion had been received by Mr. Brady last night.

The announced Sunday night performance of "Mary Rose" at the Empire theatre, concerning which the Equity Actors' Association and the management have disagreed, will not begin until midnight. This step is being taken, according to an announcement by the producers, to save the members of the company from embarrassment. Equity had forbidden its players to give the Sunday performance.

"A Fast Worker" Coming to Bijou.

"A Fast Worker," a French farce adapted by Gladys Unger, will be produced at the Bijou Theatre on Wednesday night of next week by Brock Pemberton. The cast will include James Rennie, Florence Eldridge, Ernest Cossart, Dwight Fryer, Paula Marlowe and Mary Kennedy.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

A new company, entitled the Theatrical Producing-Financing Corporation, has been formed and will undertake the production of plays on a large scale. The organizers are William B. Dwight, George J. Hopkins and Baker, O. Horner. The first production is already in rehearsal.

"The Love Set," by Thomas Louden, will open at the Punch and Judy Theatre on Monday night, March 19. Garvin Muir will have the leading role.

Basil Sydney will play the leading male role in "Sandro Botticelli," coming to the Provincetown Theatre.

The Belmont Theatre will be rebuilt during the Summer and the seating capacity increased.

A party of Spaniards, headed by Jacinto Benavente, attended "The Dancing Girl" at the Winter Garden last night in honor of Fanny Brice.

Laurette Taylor received the Moscow Art Theatre members and the Chauve-Souris company on the stage of the Vanderbilt Theatre yesterday after the matinee of "Humoresque."

The original program of the Chauve-Souris, revised this week, will be continued for another week.

CARUSO'S COSTUME FOR CANIO BRINGS $25

His Egyptian Robe for Radames Sold for $45—Auction Now Totals $58,559.

Caruso's opera costumes were the feature of yesterday's sale, the third afternoon of the disposal of the late tenor's collections at the American Art Galleries, but the audience was disappointed if it expected to see all the members of the Metropolitan Opera Company present. Singers in a great opera company have no use for another singer's wardrobe and costumes are too bulky for souvenirs. It was an interesting sale; there were many private buyers, but it did not draw just the audience expected. Mrs. Caruso's share of the proceeds from the costumes will go to the Caruso Foundation for needy musicians.

Among the costumes that of Canio in "Pagliacci" created the greatest interest among private buyers. Of impressive materials, it sold for much more than its intrinsic value, going to Mrs. William C. Atwater of Park Avenue for $35. There was special interest in this particular costume. It is one of the two belonging to the great tenor and was tinted a warm tan—the regular costume being a pure white—because it was used by him in a movie, "My Cousin," which was built up around him, and in which he appeared singing in the opera. All whites for the films have to be toned to a tan or light brown and Caruso had this costume prepared for the purpose. It was just at the time of his marriage that the movie was filmed and Mrs. Caruso says her honeymoon was spent for this reason, in the moving picture studios.

Another private buyer from the costume collection was Mrs. Francis H. Cabot of this city, who purchased for her own use a red velvet cape, some silver buckles and as a souvenir one of the Il Duca costumes, the picturesque dress of the character in "Rigoletto."

The cape was the one for the character of Ricardo in "Ballo in Maschera," lustrous ruby velvet, gold threads, etc. With similar collar with gold cords and tassels, No. 865, and sold for $37.50.

Porter Woods, a private buyer, who paid the highest price of the day, was the purchaser of the sixteenth century Brescian walnut cabinet, purchased by Caruso from the Volpi collection, and which was used as a private altar when the tenor's little daughter Gloria was baptised by the late Mgr. Ferretis at St. Patrick's Cathedral. This was No. 907, and Mr. Woods paid $420.

Mr. Woods paid $240 for Nos. 846 and 950, two sixteenth century Italian walnut chairs bearing the coat-of-arms of the Albergotti family of Arezzo; $120 for No. 849, a sixteenth century Italian walnut Savonarola chair from the Davanzati palace; $240 for No. 867, a set of four sixteenth century Italian walnut arm chairs; $300 for No. 899, an Italian Renaissance drawer extension table, and $450 for No. 962, the great Italian walnut four-post tester bed, with its cover and valance of crimson damask and its Milanese lace coverlet. E. F. Albee of Keith's was among the buyers in the costume collection, buying among other things $60 for No. 941, three diamond daggers worn by Caruso in opera. E. Bramhall Childs, buying for private theatricals, bought the forty wigs of the costume collection.

No. 700, a Sicilian sculptured ivory crucifix, seventeenth century, 25½ inches high, sold to Mrs. James A. Farrell of Brooklyn, a private buyer. No. 795, a Persian brass circular dish or deep tray, 19½ inches in diameter, sold to D. Z. Phillips for $180. No. 811, an Asia Minor gold embroidered silk cover, was bought by J. E. Ferdinand for $110. Nos. 816-17, Chinese paintings on silk of the Ming period, sold to G. Filippo for $75. The one woman's costume in the collection, and also among the costumes, was a gold embroidered silk court robe of Queen Maria Carolina of Naples, who was a close friend of the famous Lady Hamilton and also naval hero, Lord Nelson. This was elaborate and done in pure gold thread, and went to Mme. Lefertier for $100. The embroidered Egyptian robe for the character of Radames in "Aida," No. 870, was sold as Mabel Sealey for $45. No. 873, the jeweled robe for the same character, was bought by J. Z. Noorian for $70. Mrs. Caruso has kept one of each of Caruso's costumes for the tenor's little daughter. "my baby," as her mother always speaks of her. Mrs. Caruso has been ill and not able to attend the sale.

This afternoon the fine collection of bronzes, the Persian miniatures, fine Italian majolica, etc., will be sold, and in the evening the caricatures and books. It is the closing day of the sale. The returns for yesterday were $6,664, bringing the grand total to date to $58,559.

ACT "L'ARLESIENNE."

French Colony Gives Play in Aid of Lighthouse in Paris.

"L'Arlesienne" was presented last night at the Children's Theatre, Fifth Avenue and 104th Street, by members of the French Colony of New York for the benefit of the Lighthouse in Paris under the auspices of the Committee of Men Blinded in Battle. The money made by the play, which was skillfully acted goes toward the fund of $150,000, which is needed by March 19 in order to win the permanent endowment of from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 francs offered by a French organization.

President Millerand, in a letter received by Mrs. Wilfred Scott Mather, the President of the Committee for Men Blinded in Battle, expressed his interest in these words:

"I do not need to tell you how earnest is my interest in the success of the work. How much I wish you every success in the effort you are making to keep Lighthouse No. 5, the Phare de France, in operation."

Unless the fund sought by the committee be pledged within the next week the headquarters in Paris which serves 8,200 war-blind men as both receiving school and social centre must be abandoned.

"CROOKED SQUARE" HALTS.

Constance Binney Leaves Play After Disagreement With Mrs. Harris.

It was learned here yesterday that Mrs. Henry B. Harris's production at "The Crooked Square," which had its first performances in Atlantic City last week, came to a sudden halt in Pittsburgh on Tuesday with a disagreement between Mrs. Harris and Constance Binney. According to Mrs. Harris, Miss Binney, who had the leading role in the production, thereupon left the show.

The play, which is the work of Samuel Shipman and Alfred C. Kennedy, had been booked to begin a Chicago engagement next week. Mrs. Harris came to New York yesterday to find a successor to Miss Binney, in the hope of being able to reopen the play in Chicago as scheduled.

It was my good fortune last Summer to be west at the time making the film of "The Covered Wagon." My good friends, Mr. Charles Irwin and Mr. Stevenson of the Union Pacific Railroad Company informed me that they were present on the island at Salt Lake where the Buffalo scenes were pictured. They stated this was most thrilling event they ever experienced which means much. I wish to offer my congratulations on the initial showing of "The Covered Wagon" and am of the opinion that the screen is elevated by pictures of this character.

RAY BEATS RITOLA; SETS NEW RECORD

Illinois Flash Makes New American Indoor Mark of 14:54 3-5 for 5,000 Meters.

Higgins Captures Bishop Mile at Western Union Games, With Maunz Close Up.

SELLERS TAKES MET. TITLE

Defeats Sullivan by Three Yards in Exciting Finish for 600-Yard Championship.

Joie W. Ray, Illinois A. C. flash, gained a sweet revenge for his defeat by Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C. star, last week at the K. of C. games by capturing the 5,000-meter invitation run for the Schiff Trophy., the feature event of the Western Union games at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory last night. Ray not only defeated Ritola, but he lowered the American indoor record for the distance from 15:01 2-5 to 14:54 3-5.

A record-breaking crowd saw Ray hang at Ritola's heels for more than three miles, frustrating every attempt of the Finn to shake him off, and then opening up with a great burst of speed on the last lap, to win by more than thirty yards. The rest of the field was hopelessly outdistanced by the pair.

Ritola, who was the holder of the record of 15:01 2-5 which he established Feb. 24, also broke his own American indoor record by finishing in 14:59 3-5. He made a game attempt to close on the speeding Ray in the last lap, but although he almost doubled his pace Ray drew steadily away and the crowd rushed out of the bleachers to welcome the diminutive Illinois star as he broke the tape ahead of Ritola. Ilmar Prim, Finnish-American A. C., who was third, was more than 300 yards behind the two leaders.

Eight Start in Race.

Eight starters faced the gun, and at the crack of the pistol Ritola, who was third from the inside, took the lead. Ray, fifth from the inside, sprinted into a position at Ritola's heels, giving way only for a moment in the third lap to August Fager, who soon dropped out of the race entirely.

Ritola, Ray and R. E. Brown, the Boston A. A. runner and former intercollegiate two-mile champion, then drew away from the remainder of the field and jogged shoulder to shoulder for the next eight laps. At this point the pace became too fast for the Boston runner and he dropped back to lead the rest of the pack, but was lapped with them by the two leaders before the next ten laps.

Ritola covered the first mile in 4:47, and the second in 9:41 1-5, and continued into the third mile with Ray thundering at his heels. It was plain that Ritola had nothing left, while Ray, apparently as fresh as in the first mile, hung doggedly on to make his final bid for victory.

Higgins Wins Bishop Mile.

With a tremendous burst of speed in the last half of the last lap, Walter Higgins of Columbia University won the Bishop mile invitation race and annexed the first leg on the Bishop Trophy.

At his shoulder at the tap was Walter Maunz of Buffalo, who had led easily most of the way. James J. Connolly, the Georgetown flash and the favorite to win the event, was a poor fourth, finishing far behind Patrick Kennedy, who was third by about ten yards.

It was an exciting race from start to finish, and the lead fluctuated between all four of the runners. Higgins stepped into the van at the start and held his advantage until the third lap, when he fell into last place.

Maunz then set the pace for the next four laps. At the close of the seventh lap Connolly, who had crept up to second place, with Higgins close at his heels, suddenly jumped into the lead. He stayed in front until the last hundred yards, when Higgins jumped to the front, followed closely by Maunz to the tape.

In the 660-yard run for the Metropolitan A. A. U. championship Jack Sellers, New York A. C. star, forced his way to the front in the third lap and won the title by a scant three yards from William R. Sullivan of the Paulist A. C., who had been leading after the second lap. John Webster of the St. Anselm A. C. took the lead in this event at the pistol, but the rest of the pack pressed him hard on the second turn and he dropped back. He never regained his advantage and finished a poor fourth to Mike Devaney of the Millrose A. A., who was third, four yards behind the victor.

Princeton's relay team came from behind to win the Metropolitan A. A. U. one-mile relay championship in the good time of 3:32, Taylor, running anchor, brought the Orange and Black up from third position, however, to win.

Qualify for the Dash.

Jackson V. Scholz of the New York A. C. had an easy task in the first of a series of special invitation Medley sprints. Taking the lead at the start he captured the 220-yard event by three yards from Samuel Feldman of Yale, who, with Scholz and Turlinger, who was third, qualified for the 100-yard final.

In the 300-yard Medley sprint James Burgess Jr., West Side Y. M. C. A.; J. A. Leconey of Lafayette College, and M. Cohen, Glencoe A. C., captured first, second and third place respectively, and qualified for the 100-yard event with the first three in the 200-yard sprint.

Two Buffalo lads captured the major portion of the honors in the 50-yard race for messengers, the opening event of the program. Lyall W. Bowen won the event in 0:07.1-5, while his team mate, Jacob Rosen, was second.

Out-of-town teams and individuals captured most of the honors in the messenger boy events, Buffalo and Philadelphia lads dividing more than half of the first and second places. Boston and Baltimore also figured in the winning.

COAST TEAM BARS EASTERN MEET

University of Southern California Resents Tabling of Membership Application.

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—Neither Charles W. Paddock, world's champion sprinter, nor any other member of the University of Southern California track and field team, will run in any Eastern meet this year, according to Coach Dean B. Cromwell. Activities will be confined to Pacific Coast meets. It is expected Paddock will make his last appearance as a college athlete at the Pacific Coast conference championships at Pullman, Wash., May 26.

Both students and officials at U. S. C. resent the action of the Executive Committee of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. in tabling the Trojans' membership application for one year "because of lack of information concerning scholarship requirements and that it was the belief that the requirements did not measure up to Eastern standards."

The Athletic Board at U. S. C. has demanded a retraction from the I. A. A. A. A. for that body's "slur on the Trojan institution's standards and scholastic requirements," it was stated today.

No slur was cast upon the athletic eligibility standards or scholastic requirements of the University of Southern California in refusing to admit for a year the Pacific Coast college to membership in the I. C. A. A. A., officials of the latter body asserted yesterday in answer to the California charges.

Abbott Southall, Secretary of the association, asserted no communication had been received from California since the association's action last Saturday.

The resolution which resulted in the Western protest, the text of which was made public by Mr. Southall, follows:

"The Executive Committee of the I. C. A. A. A. does not recommend to the annual convention of the association the admittance of the University of Southern California as a member of the association, feeling that as yet it has not sufficient information to feel that its rules for eligibility are in accordance with those set down by the association, and further recommends that the application be laid on the table and that the University of Southern California be requested to send to the Secretary information as to scholastic requirements and a statement of rules of eligibility for competition, in the hope that they may be in accordance with those of the association and the members thereof, so as to enable favorable action at the meeting of the I. C. A. A. A. A. in 1924."

Mr. Southall denied a further report that Southern California's membership had been solicited two years ago, adding that it had never been a policy of the association to seek affiliation of any colleges.

Billiard Results.

Two matches were played last evening at the Broadway Billiard Academy in the Metropolitan Class C 18.2 balkline championship tournament, held under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. In the first game J. Ward defeated G. Gardner by 150 points to 130, accumulating a high run of 25 and an average of 4 6-36. Gardner's best cluster was 13 and his average 3 25-35.

Ward gained another victory in the tournament by later defeating F. Swenarton by 150 to 120. His high run this time was 19 and his average 3 18-44. Swenarton's best run was 15 and his average was 2 34-43.

Willie Hoppe and Charlie Peterson last evening started a series of 500-point matches at the Hoppe-Peterson Billiard Club in Hoppe's preparation for his championship meeting with Jake Schaefer at the Hotel Pennsylvania next week. Hoppe made his total in seven innings, with a high run of 185 and three of better than 100, for an average of 71 3-7.

The scores by inainge:

Hoppe—1 162 185 118 0 30 0. Total, 500. Average, 71 3-7.

In the New York State amateur three-cushion billiard tournament Harry Frisch yesterday defeated Morgan Hughes in Canfield's 145th Street Billiard Academy, 35 to 31. Both players had a high run of 5 and the game consumed seventy-four innings.

At the Nassau and John Streets branch of the Recreation Billiard Academy last evening two matches were played in the Manhattan championship three-cushion billiard tournament. In the first of these O. R. Kellogg won from H. O. Grant by a score of 30 to 26, the game going sixty innings. Kellogg collected two clusters of four and three of three for his high runs. Grant's best was one bunch of four buttons.

In the second game O. T. Wolf defeated W. H. Davis by 30 to 21, the play going forty-seven innings. By his victory Wolf goes into the final round in this second with Ira Brussel. Wolf had high runs of five, four and three, while Davis's best was one of two.

At Thum's Billiard Academy last evening a match was played in the amateur handicap three-cushion billiard tournament between W. Quinlan, a scratch man playing for 35, and H. Brown, playing for 31. Quinlan ran out in eighty-eight innings, to twenty-seven scored by Brown.

8:15 P. M.—F. S. Appleby vs. J. A. Clinton Jr.

Francis S. Appleby once more defeated his brother, Edgar T., present national champion, in the final round of the national amateur class A 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament at the Crescent Athletic Club last night. In a loosely played game that lasted twenty-two innings Francis was the winner by a score of 300 to 101. He won because his game was not as bad as that of the champion rather than because of any particular brilliancy on his own part. Edgar's average of but 4 17-21 indicated how far from his best he was. He averaged 26 against Clinton the previous night.

The other victors in yesterday's play were Percy N. Collins of Chicago, who defeated E. A. Renner, 300 to 161, and John A. Clinton Jr., who won from Renner by a score of 300 to 108.

Brothers Off Form.

Neither of the Appleby brothers was in anything approaching good form at the start of their contest in the evening. The first half dozen innings were spent in open table play, each making a vain effort to get the balls together. Francis was the first to get into position for a run of any size. After manoeuvring for three shots in the sixth inning he gathered the balls on the foot rail and nursed them for a run of 31 points before he came to grief on a one-cushion bank. Throughout he had difficulty in holding the balls under control. Three innings later he made a cluster of 37 and was making good progress when he tried a kiss shot that missed by a narrow margin.

Edgar was clearly off form. His stroke was harsh and he missed shots ordinarily easy for him. It was not until the seventh inning that he made any headway. In that frame he ran 24 points, but was continually in trouble. A one-cushion bank missed by several inches and brought the run to a close. Another run of 17 in the ninth frame brought his score to 50 and he spent several innings getting away from that figure. In his fourteenth turn at the table Edgar ran 11 points and had the balls in good position, but missed on a simple draw shot.

Francis improved and in the fifteenth inning made his first good run. This was a cluster of 68, which brought his score to 206 points. During this run he played very good billiards. He scored the first 50 points at the head of the table and then gradually carried the balls to the foot rail. On his sixty-sixth shot he got an unexpected kiss in an effort to drive the red ball twice across the table. This separated the balls, and, although he counted twice after that, he could not regain position and came a cropper on a bank shot.

A run of 19 three innings later ended when Francis miscued. It was the second time he had made a faulty stroke. But his interruptions were brief, for Edgar could do little with the balls. At the end of the eighteenth inning the score was 238 to 76 in Francis's favor.

Francis brought the long-drawn-out contest to a close in the twenty-second inning with a needed 5 points, having missed his opportunity to end it when he fell down on a run of 34 points.

The score by innings:

Francis S. Appleby—3 0 0 1 0 31 0 1 37 13 0 4 15 31 68 4 9 19 12 11 24 5. Total, 300; average, 13 14-22; high runs, 68, 37.

Edgar T. Appleby—0 2 1 0 2 6 2 4 4 17 1 2 0 0 11 0 0 12 0 9 9 7. Total, 101; average, 4 17-21; high runs, 24, 17.

Renner Loses Twice.

Renner was called upon to play twice during the afternoon and was defeated both times. In the first session he bowed to Collins by a score of 300 to 161. He was in very poor stroke. Only five times in seventeen innings did he score in double figures. Collins, on the other hand, played a steady game, and after a run of 33 in the eighth inning was never in much danger.

Collins gave his best exhibition in the final inning, when he ran out his string with a cluster of 76 points. In making this run the Chicago player performed brilliantly at times, and on one or two occasions when the balls threatened to get away from him he gathered them again with open table shots. He had the balls in good position when he completed his score and might easily have continued the run.

The score by innings:

Percy N. Collins—1 0 41 29 0 2 33 5 2 14 1 2 34 1 29 6 12. 76. Total, 300; average 16 12-18; high runs, 76 41.

Emil A. Renner—10 3 1 6 7 38 7 0 0 7 8 12 6 5 20 30 1. Total, 161; average 9 8-17; high runs, 38, 30.

In the second contest Renner met Clinton, who has been the sensation of the tournament, and was an easy victim of the Pittsburgh player. Clinton won by 300 to 108, maintaining the lead all the way. Clinton played in excellent form and started with a run of 65 points. He scored in double figures in seven of the twelve innings.

Renner could make no headway against him and appeared to feel he had a hopeless task on hand. His best run was one of 35 points.

The score by innings:

John A. Clinton Jr.—65 28 53 3 36 5 6 0 42 21 40 1. Total, 300; average, 29; high runs, 65, 53.

Emil A. Renner—12 9 8 4 35 17 3 1 9 3 7. Total, 108; average, 9 9-11; high runs, 35, 17.

Ruth, McNally, Huston Leave Hot Springs for Yankee Camp

JOHNNY RAWLINGS JOINS THE GIANTS

Brings Signed Contract and Kelly With Him—Ryan Due Today and Scott Is En Route.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 7.—Conversation in Giant circles today was all about hold-outs—present hold-outs, former hold-outs, weakening hold-outs and stubborn hold-outs. It all started when a message was received stating that Dave Bancroft had announced at Sioux City that he had signed.

Meanwhile John Rawlings, a late hold-out, arrived from the coast, bringing with him Long George Kelly, who isn't a hold-out for the simple reason that no contract has yet been tendered him. Bill Ryan, an ex-member of the hold-out club, is expected in tomorrow, and Jack Scott, another balky athlete, is on his way from Ridgeway, N. C.

Only Jack Bentley goes on his own sweet way, majestically defying the minions of organized baseball. Jack's flag is still flying gallantly from the crest of the battlements and it isn't a white flag either.

Rawlings brought his signed, sealed and stamped contract with him. Kelly is as good as signed, for he talked with McGraw, learned what the club has to offer and later told reporters that he is satisfied.

Kelly in Fine Condition.

Kelly is in nigh perfect condition now. After the Orient tour he played golf and today he was as hard as nails. He jumped in at first base and was the last man to quit. Long George whipped the ball around in his usual sizzling style and was as lively as a cricket.

Kelly's arrival allowed McGraw to assemble something approaching that million-dollar infield, with Groh, Frisch and Kelly at their old posts. Travis Jackson at short may have pulled down the gross value a bit, but it would have taken a keen eye to detect that Jackson was a mere kid in a setting of veterans.

Jackson fitted in perfectly today and was cool and collected. Nothing came his way that he couldn't stop. He pivoted smoothly on double plays and had a lively speed in his rangy form. But what he does best is to throw from any position. He has Bancroft's knack of throwing underhand and he gets the ball away fast, with no trouble in between. On short hits, where he has to throw on the run and double up, he gets a surprising amount of speed behind the ball.

McGraw Foregoes Game.

McGraw decided to forego any game today. He had the infield working hard and when the regulars retired MacPhee jumped in at third, Rawlings at short, Maguire at second and Smith at first. Dolan and Jennings kept the outfielders and overweight rookies hopping after fly balls. Kitts, the newcomer from Dallas, shagged flies and drew praise from Jennings for his speed and easy grace.

The weather continues to be cooler than last year, but when the afternoon sun gets to work the athletes feel it.

Henry Fabian, the ground-keeper, left last night for New York, there to start getting the Polo Grounds field in shape for the first exhibition game with the White Sox on April 14. Henry will stop for a few days at Dallas, his old home town.

Bib Falk, whom the Yanks tried to get from the White Sox, is here with the University of Texas nine, which is playing a local team. Falk was graduated from Texas and helps coach his alma mater. He left tonight and will be at Seguin, Texas, when the Sox begin work there.

HUNGLING INJURED IN BROOKLYN DRILL

Catcher Suffers Split Finger and May Be Out of Game for Two Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 7.—Manager Wilbert Robinson sent the nineteen battery candidates now in the Brooklyn camp through a two-hour work-out this afternoon. A six-inning game between the Riffs and Raffs was played, a play-off of yesterday's tie, and resulted in a victory for the Riffs by 8 to 5.

Bud Hungling had a finger split by a foul off Harry Shriver's bat. He will be out for about two weeks.

Arthur Decatur and Charles Ollinger opposed each other during the first half of the game, and Dickerman and Brown finished. Decatur and Dickerman hurled for the winners. Dickerman allowed only one run, poor support aiding in scoring it.

Although the training season is young, it looks as if Dickerman will be introduced to the Brooklyn fans. He showed a lot of speed this afternoon. Manager Robbie today said Dickerman was the best-looking prospect he has had in a training camp in many years. He was purchased from the Memphis club and led the Southern Association in pitching last year. He is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 195 pounds.

Harry Shriver registered a home run over the right field fence in the first inning off Art Decatur.

Leon Cadore reported in time to get into the game. He covered shortstop for the Raffs and made a three-base hit. Dutch Ruether is now the only pitcher missing from the camp. He is a hold-out.

The outfielders and infielders are expected to start reporting tomorrow. The weather continues ideal for training.

BENTON WILL GO SOUTH.

Pitcher to Await Landis's Decision at Reds' Training Camp.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 7.—Although the Cincinnati Reds baseball club has not received word from Commissioner Landis as to the standing of Rube Benton, pitcher, President Herrmann of the club has decided to send Benton on to Orlando, Fla., where the club is in training.

Boxing Entries Close Tomorrow.

Entries for the metropolitan A. A. U. boxing championships to be held at Madison Square Garden next Wednesday and Thursday evenings will close at A. A. U. headquarters, 280 Broadway, tomorrow. The winners in each class will be selected to represent this district in the national championships to be held in Boston, April 9 and 10.

FIRST PRACTICE DRILL FOR YANKS

Twenty-Six in Squad Sent Through Two-Hour Session—Haines and Hofmann Report.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 7.—The baseball season of 1923 for the Yankees started this afternoon at Pelican Park, with twenty-six regulars and recruits in action. Manager Huggins put the men through their first drill of the season, a two-hour session.

Huggins was a silent spectator. He sat in a shaded corner of the bench and seemed content just to watch his hopefuls. Charley O'Leary, assistant to Huggins, Bob Connery and Paul Krichell, Yankee scouts, directed the practice.

Catcher Fred Hofmann, who yesterday capitulated after a hold-out period, was the first Yankee on the training field. He also registered the first solid drive of the season. The squad went through a general warm-up. Oscar Roettger, with Sioux City last year, George Pipgras, of Charleston, and Elbert Johnson, of Aberdeen, recruit pitchers, pitched to the batters. Sam Jones, late addition to the increasing Yankee cast here, Waite Hoyt and Carl Mays warmed up. Hinkey Haines, another late arrival, also was conspicuous in the workout. He arrived in time to get into the practice.

Dan Tucker, farmed out to New Orleans last season, put in a strenuous day of fly chasing. George Anderson, former Army player, displayed plenty of class around third base. He covered a lot of territory and showed that he had a good arm.

Only eight of the thirty-five players on the Yankee roster are absent. Babe Ruth, Bob Shawkey, Mike McNally and Joe Bush, at Hot Springs; Wally Pipp and Herb Pennock, holdouts; Rafael Quintana, an infielder from the Havana Reds, and J. Franklin Baker, who intends to retire, are the absentees.

The players quartered here are: Pitchers—Waite Hoyt, Elbert Johnson, Sam Jones, Pat McKinstry, Carl Mays, George Pipgras, Oscar Roettger, Fred Spates and Jack Suggs; infielders—George Anderson, Joe Dugan, Everett Scott, Aaron Ward and John Wight; outfielders—Burney Acton, Hinkey Haines, Harvey Hendricks, Elton Langford, Henry Lavallie, Elmer Smith, Ollie Tucker and Whitey Witt; catchers—George Artus, Bernard Bengough, Fred Hofmann and Wallie Schang.

Huggins said he was satisfied with the workout.

STILL NO REFEREE FOR TITLE MATCH

No Definite Action at Hoppe-Schaefer Meeting, but Cline Is Now Favored.

The question of a referee for the Willie Hoppe-Jake Schaefer match for the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship, which is to be played at the Hotel Pennsylvania in this city on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week, is still very much up in the air. A second conference among the two players, their advisers and officials of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company was held yesterday. When it was concluded no definite decision had been reached, but Harry Cline, the professional, of Philadelphia, was telegraphed to ascertain whether or not he could arrange to officiate in the event of the two players agreeing upon him. An answer is expected from him early today, at which time something definite probably will be done. J. P. Crookston, a professional, of Pittsburgh, also was mentioned and is being considered.

Charley Tennes, who is acting as Schaefer's manager, declared that Cline would be acceptable to Schaefer. Hoppe, who was accompanied by Charley Peterson, declined to make any comment, saying that he preferred to wait until Cline had been heard from. It was intimated that if Cline can arrange his affairs in Philadelphia to permit his coming here to officiate he will be the third man at the table when the two rivals begin the battle for the $1,000 diamond medal and the championship next Monday night.

Another meeting will be held today just as soon as Cline is heard from. Hoppe said late yesterday afternoon that he expected the meeting would be called early this morning.

While the two players are squabbling over the selection of a referee the other arrangements for the match are progressing satisfactorily. Workmen will start at midnight Sunday to erect the sents in the grand ballroom of the hotel, where the international tournament was held last November. The advance sale of seats continues to be brisk and it is now practically certain that a capacity gallery will be present on the opening night of play.

Declines to Referee.

SAN DIEGO., Cal., March 7.—Ora Morningstar, former world's champion at 18.1 and 18.2 balkline billiards, would not care to go to New York to referee the 18.2 championship contest set for next Monday between Willie Hoppe, titleholder, and Jake Schaefer from which the challenger threatened to withdraw if J. Herbert Levis of Chicago continued to be the choice for referee.

Commenting upon information given him that C. P. Miller, Vice President of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, donor of the championship trophy, had telegraphed him requesting he supplant Levis, Morningstar said:

"Inasmuch as my entry into the last championship tournament was refused, although received by the company which conducted the tourney, along with my certified check before the date when entries were advertised to close, I would not be interested in refereeing a match between players who permitted me to be barred from competition for the title. Especially is this true, because the tournament was made possible only by my waiving my right to challenge the champion, at the request of the company which controls the holding of championship tournaments."

LEAVES IT TO THE FANS.

Bentley Says They Are Entitled to Know Why He Is a Hold-Out.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 7.—In a comprehensive statement defending his position as a hold-out from the New York Giants, Jack Bentley tonight declared that he believed the fans were entitled to the full facts, and that he would leave it to them to judge if he was entitled to a part of the $72,500 paid by McGraw to Jack Dunn for him.

Bentley told of his work last season, pointing to his batting record, his work in the pitcher's box and his general all around ability.

In conclusion he said:

"I shall never play organized baseball again unless I receive part of this money. In other words, I don't think that any one could blame me for trying to get a part of the sum of money paid for me by McGraw when my own efforts and exertions had established that price."

Peter Van Kempen, Holland bike star, who is paired with Oscar Egg in the six-day bike race at Madison Square Garden, was the hero of the sprints last night. Pitted against Alfred Goullet in the series, Van Kempen won three sprints in addition to getting a third and a fourth. Egg contributed to his team's total by taking three sprints and finishing second in another, giving the Swiss-Holland combination 43 points for the night's harvest, as well as bringing the grand total to 321. McNamara and Horan are second with a grand total of 107.

Goullet and Grenda collected only 21 points and are now in third place with 158. On a few occasions Goullet tried to match speed against Van Kempen, but the Holland rider, who achieved fame by winning eighteen out of twenty sprints in the final hour of a race in Madison Square Garden each time.

The field was reduced to fourteen pairs yesterday when Harry Kaiser, the Strong boy, sustained severe injuries in a sprint. His partner, Ray Eaton, was given the usual four hours to find a partner, but, failing to do so, the team was withdrawn.

Kaiser fell in the homestretch when his pedal hit the flat of the track at the tape and he crashed, carrying Ernest Stockley, Chesnoyan, and Henry Wynsdau, Belgian rider, down with him. Van Kempen had a narrow escape, hurdling over Kaiser and Winsdau, but avoiding the fall. His pedal bit Kaiser at the base of the spine, causing a painful injury.

Kaiser Shows Gameness.

Kaiser made a game effort to continue on the track a half-hour later, but was forced to quit. The other two riders were badly shaken up, but kept at it.

During a jam yesterday the team of Fitzsimmons and Spencer, which supplied the thrills on Tuesday night by regaining two of the three laps they were behind, lost the same amount of ground, dropping back to three laps. Kopsky and Osterritter also lost ground and were three laps back when the night sprints started.

The points scored in the night sprints and the totals to date are:

Egg and Van Kempen	43	302
McNamara and Horan	14	107
Goullet and Grenda	21	158
Wynsdau and Wynsdau	10	89
Hanley and Magin	11	70

Evening Sprints.

Van Kempen showed his heels to the field in the first of the two-mile sprints in the evening. Trailing L. Buysse and Saldow at the bell, he shot out and won with Hanley in hot pursuit. Buysse and Saldow gathered the other points.

Egg outrode McNamara in the second sprint, taking the last lap, the pace was slow with Egg leading the pack and riding high. At the bell he spurted and never was headed, finishing a wheel length ahead of McNamara. Magin was third and Eastman fourth.

Van Kempen took Goullet's measure in the third sprint. Trailing until just before the bell, he flashed past the leaders with Goullet giving chase. Van Kempen had too much speed for Goullet, who could land no better than fourth. Second place went to T. Wynsdau and third to Stockholm.

Grenda was content to trail Egg across the line in the fourth sprint, Masters landing two points for third place. McNamara finished fourth.

In the last mile of the fifth sprint, Taylor started a near-jam. After sailing a quarter lap on the field, he was relieved by his partner, Thomas, who widened the gap a little, but the plan was frustrated by While Lorenz, who caught the San Francisco pair after a few laps of hard riding. Taylor won the sprint, with Lorenz, Olivetti and Van Kempen gaining the remaining places.

Grenda made his first bid in the sixth sprint. Taking the lead on the third lap from the finish, he held off Egg, who made a great bid for victory. Grenda won by a wheel length over Egg. McNamara nosed out Magin for third place.

Egg-Van Kempen Pile Up Points.

Oscar Egg and Peter Van Kempen won the $50 prize for the team scoring the greatest number of points yesterday afternoon, accounting for 38. Dave Lands and Sammy Gastman were second with 24, while Goullet and Grenda finished third with 21.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

Needs No Help, All Creditors Will Be Paid, Says Jeffries

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 7.—James J. Jeffries, formerly world's heavyweight boxing champion, who last week filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court here, said his creditors will "all be satisfied, paid dollar for dollar."

"I don't need any of my friends and members to put up any collection of food and canned goods just yet," he said placed. "At the same time, it is plain to me that farming is a game where you take one step forward and two backward, financially. The trouble with me was I played the other fellow's game and invested in certain mines in California. I don't know anything about mines, which is the reason, maybe, that I still hope they'll turn out well."

He said he had placed his Burbank farm, not listed among his assets, in his wife's name when he bought it seventeen years ago, and that he was thinking of "going into the movies."

CLUB HAS SUMMONS SERVED ON FIRPO

Boxer Must Appear Before Justice Erlanger Tomorrow in Pioneer S. C. Case.

Another shot was fired yesterday in the legal battle being waged by the Pioneer Sporting Club to restrain Luis Angel Firpo from leasing Bill Brennan at Madison Square Garden on Monday night, when the South American was in the Garden gymnasium yesterday afternoon he was summoned to appear in court at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to show cause why an injunction should not be granted the Pioneer Club, who caused the issue of Judge Mullen, and is returnable before Justice Erlanger.

The Pioneer Sporting Club maintains that it has a claim on Firpo's services which lasts until he goes back to his country to return to his home in Argentina. The club says that it had signed him to box Jack Herman last Fall, but that the bout was later held in Brooklyn by the Pioneer Club under the terms of which Firpo is alleged to have agreed to box at the Pioneer S. C. before appearing at any other club. The Pioneer Sporting Club recently appealed to the New York State Athletic Commission, asking that Firpo be restrained from boxing Brennan at the Garden. Chairman Muldoon, however, refused to take any action in the matter.

Rickard yesterday was sanguine that an injunction would not be issued and that the bout would be held as scheduled. "If an injunction is granted in this case, I would be in a position to tie up almost every boxer of prominence in this country," said Rickard. "How many times have I signed headliners to appear at the Garden and been forced to cancel the bouts or change the cards because of illness? If the Pioneer Sporting Club can hold Firpo, that is right; must be, this to hold all those who have been forced to cancel bouts at the Garden.

"For instance, there are the cases of Jack McAuliffe and Johnny Dundee. McAuliffe was matched to box Tom Gibbons here on March 20. He has been forced to cancel the match because of illness. Dundee was scheduled to box Tommy Noble for the junior lightweight championship at the Garden on March 16, but he has been taken ill with influenza and will be unable to appear. If the Pioneer can hold Firpo, then I certainly can hold McAuliffe and Dundee, and insist that they box at the Garden before appearing elsewhere."

TWO BOUTS ARE OFF.

Greb Not to Meet Gibbons in Garden —Dundee Cancels Contest.

Two boxing shows with which Tex Rickard had hoped to enliven the waning indoor season at Madison Square Garden have fallen through. Influenza is to blame. Following the announcement that Jack McAuliffe of Detroit would be unable to go through with his bout with Tom Gibbons here on March 20, Rickard got in touch with Harry Greb, former American light-heavyweight champion. Greb asked for more time in which to consult his manager, Red Mason.

Yesterday Rickard heard from Greb to the effect that the time was too short for the latter to get into condition for a Gibbons bout. Because of the lack of available substitutes Rickard has practically decided to call off the show.

Following this cancellation came the announcement yesterday that Johnny Dundee, the junior lightweight champion, is ill with influenza and that it will be impossible for him to box Tommy Noble for the championship at the Garden on March 16. It is understood that Rickard will immediately work on a substitute card for that date.

IRELAND ENTERS DAVIS CUP PLAY

Free State Is Fourteenth Country to Challenge for International Trophy.

A challenge for the Davis Cup from the Irish Lawn Tennis Association has been received by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, making the fourteenth country to enter the tournament for the famous international tennis challenge trophy. This equals the record for entries established last year. As entries will not formally close until Thursday, March 15, a new record for entries is expected to be established.

Ireland's entry was received from H. R. Haunsell, Honorary Secretary of the Irish Lawn Tennis Association, which, in addition to presenting the formal challenge, also carries the additional stipulation that the Irish players will compete in the European zone.

The Irish championships are scheduled for July 16 to 21, but it will be necessary to select the Irish Davis Cup team before this competition, as the preliminary round of the international competition began last year in June.

TIGERS WIN HOCKEY GAME.

Princeton Defeats Pennsylvania on Ice by 6 Goals to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—The University of Pennsylvania hockey team lost to Princeton at the Arena tonight by the score of 6 to 2. The showing of the Tigers was unexpected. Stout at right wing was the most effective performer for Princeton. He scored three of the team's six goals.

KIRKWOOD VICTOR IN FLORIDA OPEN

Breaks Course Par for 72 Holes With a 283—Hagen Second, Barnes Third.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 7.—Joe Kirkwood of Australia won the Florida East Coast open golf tournament on the St. Augustine links this afternoon when he scored 283 strokes for 72 holes, nine shots under the course par for the four rounds, and after the trick shot artist had watched Walter Hagen of New York, British open champion, whittle his seven-stroke lead at the start of the final rounds down to three strokes.

Hagen was within one stroke of a tie for the lead as the result of his eagle 3 on No. 11, one of the hardest holes in the South, and his par on the 18th. Kirkwood, with a 30-foot uphill putt for a birdie 3 on No. 18, picked up a stroke and with another on the eighteenth green, finished three in the lead.

Jim Barnes of Pelham, former open champion, trailed Kirkwood ten strokes and Hagen seven strokes to take third money with a score of 293. Leo Diegel of Friendship Club of Washington was fourth with a 297 and Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge was fifth with 298. Jock Hutchison of Glen View and Tom Boyd of Shreveport tied for sixth with 300 strokes, and eighth place went to Joe Sylvester of St. Albans with a 306.

HUNTER WINS TITLE ON FLORIDA COURT

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 7.—Francis T. Hunter, national indoor champion, won the Florida State lawn tennis singles title on the Royal Poinciana courts today from Dr. Philip B. Hawk of Philadelphia in straight sets. The scores were 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Hunter's terrific forehand drives and accurate placement were too much for his opponent, who depended upon his efficient covering of court and lob shots to win. Hunter became wild in the third game of the first set, netting the ball for a love score. In the next game he made only 1 point, but settled down thereafter and won the four following games and the set easily.

Light showers fell during the second set, causing the large gallery to scurry for shelter, although play was not stopped. Hunter won the last game and match by a love score. This event concluded what is said to be the most successful tennis tournament in the history of Palm Beach.

BROWN CAPTURES PINEHURST MATCH

Defeats Bydolek in Annual Spring Tourney—Other Favorites Advance.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 7.—The eighteen divisions of sixteen players each which qualified for match play in the annual Spring golf tournament at Pinehurst all disposed of their first match round today. C. B. Fownes, the medalist, and E. F. Merriman, runner-up to Fownes in the qualifying round, both survived the day's play.

Bydolek lost to T. Russell Brown of Montclair and Lake Champlain at the twentieth hole in the feature match of the day. Bydolek had all the better of the play at the outset, finishing with winning birdies on the first and fifth holes and was 2 up at the turn, where he arrived in 37. Brown was still 2 down at the twelfth and slipped back another notch when Bydolek won the thirteenth with a 4. Then Brown squared the match by taking three in a row, beginning with a great eagle 3 on the par 5 fourteenth hole.

The seventeenth and eighteenth holes were halved in par figures, leaving the match even on the home green with both players credited with medal scores of 79. The nineteenth hole was halved in 4 strokes apiece and Brown won the long uphill fight with a par 4 on the second extra hole.

Chick Fownes, the medalist, won his match against J. A. Middleton of Chicago, 1 up.

MRS. HURD DEFEATS MISS COLLETT, 2-1

Qualifies to Meet Mrs. Caleb Fox in Final Round for Belleair Title.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 7.—Miss Glenna Collett, national women's champion and holder of the Belleair title, was eliminated in the semi-final round of the Belleair championship this afternoon when she lost to Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Merion Cricket Club, former American and British champion, 2 up and 1.

The match ended on the seventeenth green where Miss Collett missed a two-foot putt. The victor was dormie three at the sixteenth, but Miss Collett won this line deadly and appeared to have the seventeenth well in hand.

Miss Collett gained an early lead when she won the fourth hole. Mrs. Hurd soon recovered matters and was one up at the ninth where she sank a ten-foot putt for a birdie three. She repeated the feat to turn up by winning the next three holes. On the eleventh she lost three putts but won the hole by means of a 4 to Miss Collett's 5.

Miss Collett was only two down at the fifteenth when she put her tee shot in the brook at the beginning of the end. She could do no better than a five against a three for Mrs. Hurd.

The other finalist is Mrs. Caleb F. Fox of Huntingdon Valley, who lost to the final round to Miss Collett in the championship here last year. Mrs. Fox had to play nineteen holes today before she disposed of Mrs. Alex Smith of Massachusetts.

In the second eight Miss Clara L. Schaller of Cleveland, Ohio, won by default from Miss Priscilla Maxwell of Hartford.

Mrs. Albert MacDonald of the Kirkwood Club, defeated Mrs. H. Small of Detroit by 7 and 6.

SQUADRON A WINS FROM DURLAND TRIO

Captures Stubbornly Contested Match in National Indoor Play on Own Tanbark.

OVERTIME PERIOD DECIDES

Cavalrymen Triumph, 5½ to 4½, After an Extra 5-Minute Struggle —Five Games Decided.

TONIGHT'S POLO PROGRAM.
Second International Match.
Class B—Riding Club vs. Squadron A "Y" team.
Class C—31st Cavalry vs. Squadron A "Y" team.

Five games were contested in the national indoor polo championship tournament at the Squadron A Armory, Madison Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street last night before a comparatively small but highly appreciative gathering of polo enthusiasts. What they lacked in numbers they made up in enthusiastic applause, it being almost exclusively a polo crowd.

The feature of the evening's play was the contest in Class B between the "X" team of Squadron A, which, playing on its own tanbark, defeated the Durland Polo Club representatives in a stubbornly contested match, in which five minutes of extra playing time were required to settle the issue. The cavalrymen won by a score of 6½ goals to 5½, but it was either team's game up to the very last goal. The score was tied at the end of the first and also at the close of the second period.

Post, playing No. 2 for the Squadron, was the scoring star of the game, tallying five times, while Bier put across four tallies for the Durland trio. Opening the game Post drove two goals to put his team in the lead, but before the whistle blew Bier had equalized his tying count being a pretty backhander that brought forth merited applause.

Phillips Scores in Second.

Coming out for the second period both teams were determined to run up a decisive lead and Phillips started in by taking the ball soon after the throw-in and riding down for the tally that put the cavalrymen in the lead once more. Bier tied up the score very shortly afterward, getting the ball as it came out of a scrimmage and driving cleanly for a tally.

Once more Post gave his team the lead when he found his opportunity as the ball was fed up to him, driving a crossshot that found its mark between the goal posts. The scoring duel between Post and Bier had aroused the partisans of the contending teams to a high pitch and the Durland player rewarded his admirers by securing the ball and driving home a forehand score from about 70 feet, which tied the score just before the whistle blew for the end of the game. Fouls by Post and Bier reduced each team's score by a half goal, the score being 5½ to 5½ when the period ended.

An extra five-minute period was then ordered by the referee. Post scored the first tally from a scrimmage in front of the Durland goal and repeated shortly afterward with a fine backhander which carried about 40 feet and landed between the posts. Gilman then entered the lists coming with a rush in his attempt to overcome the Squadron's lead. He took the ball as it came out of a scrimmage and scored neatly. The final tally of the game was a long backhander by Phillips.

In the first Class C game of the evening the Riding Club defeated the Eastern States Team from Springfield, Mass., in a somewhat featureless contest by a score of 8½ goals to 2. The Riding Club players took the lead at the start and with their greater experience were never in danger. Cawthra and Ruxton, the No. 1 and No. 3, respectively of the Riding Club's combination scored the nine goals between them, losing a half goal on a foul by Ruxton.

In the Class C contest the Essex Troop defeated the First Philadelphia City Troop by a score of 8½ to 3. The Jersey team collected four goals in the first period, while holding the Philadelphians scoreless, but Daugherty, back on the City Troop, made three goals in the last period. The first left-handed player to be seen so far in the tournament was Frazier, No. 2 of the Philadelphia trio. Neal and Doetterel divided honors in scoring for the Essex Troop, making three each.

Class D Teams Compete.

The Riding Club and the Squadron A "X" team came through as winners in the two Class D matches. In the first game the Riding Club defeated the Durland trio by a score of 4 to 3, the winning count being made on a pretty shot executed by Major Burgoyne Hamilton, who replaced Wardhen at No. 1, after the latter player had received a painful blow from the shaft of a mallet across his nose. It was thought last night that a fracture might have resulted, but this will not be determined until an X-ray is taken.

In the other Class D contest fast polo was displayed, with good stick-work by both of the Squadron A teams competing. The "X" trio of cavalrymen defeated the "Y" delegation by a 4 to 3 score. Ayers, at No. 2 for the winners, made three goals and played a generally good game. Greening, at back, lifted the ball clear of the scrimmage in front of the goal for the last tally made by the victors.

145 ARE NOMINATED FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

Seventy-Eight Owners Name From One to Seven Candidates for $50,000 Turf Classic.

There will be no lack of competition for the $50,000 Kentucky Derby this year. The forty-ninth running of the famous classic will take place at the historic Churchill Downs course on Saturday, May 19, 1923. The Kentucky Jockey Club has just sent out the list of entries for the race and this shows that seventy-eight owners, from nearly every part of the United States, are grooming from one to seven candidates for the event, the total numbering 145.

There will be no Morvich this year, and if a prophecy made so early in the season is worth anything the 1923 contest should be one of the most open and interesting in the long series.

The nominations this year set a new record for the Derby, the largest previous number having been 109 in 1920. This is also the first year in which August Belmont has nominated for the Derby. His candidate is Messenger, Mrs. Payne Whitney, E. R. Bradley, owner of the Idle Hour Stock Farm, and Harry F. Sinclair lead the list of nominations with seven each.

The complete list of the 1923 entries, with their owners, follows:

Romero and Appell Take Wrestling Titles at Lafayette.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., March 7.—New York boys won two of the seven wrestling championships of Lafayette College tonight in the fourteenth annual indoor sports carnival of the college, held in the gymnasium under the direction of Physical Director Harold Anson Bruce.

Emerson I. Romero of New York won the heavyweight title by gaining the judges' decision over Evan Carrick, the varsity soccer player, in a bout that went ten minutes. In the 175-pound class Fred Appell of New York threw Bill Wood of Baltimore in five minutes.

SADDLE AND BOOTS WINS THE KINGSTON

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 7.—Saddle and Boots brought about a form upset at Jefferson Park this afternoon when he outraced his field in the Kingston Handicap, the feature of the program, and scored by a neck over the speedy Barracuda. Saddle and Boots was held at 6 to 1 at post time, while Orcus and the S. N. Holman entry, Barracuda and Mavourneen, faced the barrier at 5 to 2. Canyon, which also proved to be a contender, had a goodly following and was quoted at 15 to 6 at starting time.

The distance was six furlongs and Saddle and Boots found this just to his liking. He broke quickly and moved into a commanding lead in the first quarter. Barracuda offered a threatening challenge in the stretch run, but Saddle and Boots clung gamely to his ever-shortening lead and continued to stay in front to the end.

Canyon was a factor until the final eighth, where he began to tire. By that time, however, Orcus was so far in front of the remainder of the field that he had little difficulty in saving the show position.

PENN IS DEFEATED BY YALE QUINTET

Elis Capture Basketball Game Before 2,000 in Philadelphia by 29 to 17.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE BASKETBALL STANDING.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Yale	6	1	.857
Cornell	5	3	.625
Columbia	4	4	.500
Princeton	3	4	.429
Dartmouth	3	5	.375

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Yale's basketball team climbed a rung nearer to the intercollegiate championship tonight, when it defeated Pennsylvania in Weightman Hall by a score of 29 to 17 before more than 2,000 spectators.

It was all Yale from the opening to the final whistle, the Elis enjoying an 11 to 0 lead near the middle of the first half and 12 to 6 at half-time. Despite a Penn rally early in the second half, Yale came back with a rush and virtually swept the Red and Blue team off its feet.

Sensational field goal shooting by Sulsman and Haas was responsible for eight of the visitors' ten field goals. Each caged four. In fact goal shooting Sulsman also had a profitable night with 9 out of 13. In all Sulsman scored 17 of his team's points.

Yale's guarding was so close in the first half that Penn did not score a single field goal, the Quakers' three points coming on four tosses by Carmack. The Blue found the basket three times in the first twenty minutes, Haas getting a pair and Sulsman one.

The line-up:

YALE (29).		PENN (17).
Pfaff	L.F.	Carmack
Sulsman	R.F.	James
Conklin	C.	Kneass
Haas	L.G.	Sullivan
Luman	R.G.	Miller

Substitutions—Gillitt for Luman, Voegelin for Sullivan, Sullivan for James, Leopold for Kneass.

Referee—Tom Thorp, Columbia. Umpire—Eddie Butler, Cornell. Time of halves—20 minutes.

OWEN'S GOAL BEATS YALE AT HOCKEY

Harvard Captures Series After Three Extra Periods of Rough Play—Score, 2 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 7.—George Owen tonight won another victory for Harvard over Yale when he took a pass from Crosby and accounted for the winning goal in 2 minutes 45 seconds of play in the third overtime period of the deciding game of the annual ice hockey series. The score was 2 to 1.

Owen stood in front of the Eli cage, and his winning shot was a short, straight poke which got past Jenkins, Eli's goal tender, dashing hope of victory for a crowd of 3,500 Yale rooters.

The other two goals were registered in the second period. Beals for Harvard, shooting the first on a short drive in 7 minutes 47 seconds of play, and Captain Joe Bulkley of Yale taking a pass from Charley O'Hearn and sending it past Bigelow for the tying score after 12 minutes 51 seconds of play.

The game was rough. Turnbull's leg was badly cut. O'Hearn and Captain Bulkley suffered forehead gashes, and Reid's face also was cut.

Bigelow, Harvard's goal tender, had his face severely cut by the stick of a fellow player, the result of a wild swing shortly before the game started.

Harvard slightly outplayed Yale, Jenkins being forced to make less mere stops than Bigelow. Harvard played an offensive game, and the play centred around the Eli goal. O'Hearn played a strong defensive game. Reid's roving game featured for Yale.

Summary:

HARVARD (2).		YALE (1).
Beals	R.W.	Chisholm
Hill	L.W.	Bulkley
Owen	C.	Reid
Hammond	R.D.	O'Hearn
Crosby	L.D.	Vaughan

CUNO LEAVES THE DOOR OPEN.

Chancellor CUNO'S speech to the Reichstag was inconclusive. Presumably he intended it to be. It was naturally defiant toward the French, but contained no ultimatum. The Chancellor did not again make it a condition of negotiation for settlement that the French troops must first be withdrawn from the Ruhr. On the other hand, he did not, as it was confidently predicted that he would, state the amount of reparation which the German Government estimated that it could pay. This vagueness was doubtless calculated, and leaves it open to Germany to come to terms with France either by a direct settlement or by means of the good offices of other nations. The only point on which Chancellor CUNO committed himself definitely was the terrible moral callousness of the world in not flying to the rescue of Germany from fearful oppression by the French. As this belongs to that mighty deep, the mystery of the mental state of Germans, which no foreigner has ever been able to fathom, let it go at that.

One ground of complaint by the German Chancellor was that the Allied Premiers at Paris last January had refused even to listen to the proposals which the German Government was prepared to make regarding the payment of future instalments on account of reparations. This is not historically accurate. It is true that a German delegate was in Paris and asked to be allowed to address the representatives of the Allies. Permission was refused him, because he apparently merely wished to make a plaintive but indefinite speech. He was notified, however, that if the German Government desired to submit precise and detailed proposals in writing, the Allied Premiers would be glad to consider them. This was regarded by the German Government as very tactless, not to say rude, and it declined to put its name to any document which might thereafter be used against it.

The constant protest of the German Government for the past few months has been that it was absolutely unable to pay further amounts in reparation, under existing circumstances. This does not go very well with the Chancellor's assertion that he was ready to make an offer of payment, but that it was not entertained. It goes very ill with subsequent financial developments in Germany. Explaining the operations of the Reichsbank for the purpose of doubling the exchange value of the mark, the newspaper Germania said in its issue of Feb. 14:

> "The credits which the Reichsbank used did not come from the reserve which belongs to it and which it had been accumulating for a long time. This reserve remains untouched. The credits in question were taken from the fund which had been formed in order to pay at once to the Reparation Commission, in accordance with the new plans of the Government of the Reich, very large sums in cash destined for France."

The explanation given was that, as the Paris conference would not give a hearing to the German proposals, the money might as well be used for other purposes. This is a strange and belated confession to come from a country which vowed that it had no resources with which to pay its debts. Still stranger are the facts set forth in a recent statistical statement made officially by the German Government in regard to the foreign securities and credits still held by Germans. This may be only an estimate, but the Government reckoning was that German capitalists had at command in foreign countries credits amounting to more than 7,000,000,000 gold marks. As these figures were widely published in the German press, one begins to understand why the Socialist parties in Germany are more and more insistent that means be found to levy upon the concealed or "emigrated" wealth of the great German industrialists.

From the Chancellor's unexpectedly moderate speech, as from the whole economic and industrial situation in the Ruhr and in unoccupied Germany, it is impossible not to conclude that the German Government is not only ready but anxious to make the best bargain it can. Hopes of mediation by England or the United States have been dashed to the earth. Germany must act for herself in dealing with France. When she makes up her mind that the time has come to sound out the French Government, the latter will be found, as it has repeatedly declared, disposed to discuss the terms of final settlement.

MERIT AND RUM.

If the merit system, to whose maintenance and extension Mr. HARDING and the Republican Party are pledged, is useful in the civil service generally, why is it excluded from the prohibition enforcement unit? A few weeks ago Mr. NICHOLSON, Secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, wrote to Mr. WILLIAM DUDLEY FOULKE that neither the Anti-Saloon League nor any other agency could have got the Volstead act passed if the prohibition enforcement officers weren't to be exempted from the Civil Service act. "The Congressmen wanted the plunder, and you let them have it. . . . You bought the bill with Congressional patronage," replied Mr. FOULKE. The results have not been happy. The League officers are now friendly to the removal of the exemption. But, curiously, the President still clings to the spoils method so far as prohibition enforcement is concerned.

It appears from the correspondence of Mr. HARDING and Mr. R. H. DANA of the National Civil Service Reform League that the former is "not yet convinced" that the placing of prohibition employés under the civil service rules "is the wisest step to take to promote efficient service." The President remarks that "employés in this work require summary removal in almost numberless cases." He thought that it would be "very embarrassing to be obliged to submit charges and establish in each case misconduct in office."

Mr. DANA'S reply is neat and thorough. He tells the President that under the existing plan summary removal is extremely difficult. In reality Congressmen appoint; and their consent is necessary to removal. The Prohibition Commissioner and Mr. WAYNE B. WHEELER have wished in two recent cases to discharge an enforcement official. It couldn't be done. The patron Congressman protected his client. On the other hand, as Mr. DANA reminds the President, removal of employés under the civil service rules can be made for other causes than misconduct in office—in fact, for any such cause as will promote the efficiency of the service. Thus, inefficiency, lack of interest or failure to enforce the law, whether from incapacity or otherwise, are sufficient reasons for removal."

The appointing officer doesn't have to show the reasonableness of the removal to any body or board. It is enough that it be reasonable in his own mind, and that the person to be removed have in writing the reasons for his removal and a reasonable time to answer them in writing. If a summary removal is needed, he can be suspended for ninety days or longer, pending removal. Inclusion of the prohibition officers under the civil service rules wouldn't make a body of incorruptible saints; but at least it would give the prohibition high officers what they now lack, the full power of appointment and removal. In no branch of the Federal service could the substitution of political favor for merit, impartially ascertained, be more demoralizing and dangerous than in prohibition enforcement. There must be "big money" in successful violation of the Narcotic Drug act; yet, according to Mr. DANA, in the Anti-Narcotic Bureau, where the civil service protection prevails, "there have been no indictments or convictions of employés and the law has been well enforced."

THE CENSORIOUS MIND.

The philosophy of militant but vicarious reform has never been better expressed than in the suggestion made to a legislative committee by defenders of the State movie censors that if there is any doubt about the utility of the censorship "some of the 5,000 eliminations made in films" might be shown to legislators. Some of them? Why not all of them? Obviously, because in the opinion of the reformers the censors are justified if they have eliminated a single scene which might generally be found objectionable, no matter how much harmless matter might have been killed along with it. This, of course, proves no more than the list of merely stupid eliminations made public by representatives of the movie industry—such as the change of the name of a character, Pat Curran, a politician, on the ground that it might offend Mr. HENRY H. CURRAN, who was also a politician until the 1921 election.

A showing of the entire work of the commission would be educative, especially as the censors have been inclined to hide their light under a bushel, to preserve complete silence as to what they are cutting out, and why. If a view of all the work accomplished did not show that our censors are inclined to kill a hundred innocent scenes rather than let one guilty one escape, then they are different from all other movie censors. Incredible as it may seem, the average of intelligence actually seems to be lower among censors than among producers. But that does not interest the reformers.

It is the same idea which underlies Justice FORD'S grotesque idea that, if any single passage in a book is obscene, the whole book is obscene. The dangerous movement which he started is not to be laughed away. If the law were amended to suit the desire of this group, the bulk of sacred and profane literature would be counted as immoral. To remove most of our classics from circulation, nothing but prosecution would be required; the courts must find them guilty. Of course, SHAKESPEARE and the Bible would not be attacked, nor the writings of the church fathers. Logical persons who might complain against the Bible Society would be ignored by the police. But under Section 1147 of the Penal Law agents of the Vice Society may themselves make arrests. Under laws which make most books obscene and unfit for circulation, the selection of books actually to be prosecuted would be wholly under the control of the Vice Society. Justice FORD would make Mr. SUMNER the effective censor of most of our reading, with little to fear from the courts who now disagree with him. SHAKESPEARE and the Bible will survive because Mr. SUMNER has been taught to respect them, and nobody else can make arrests except through the police. Other books which might contain a single dubious passage would be at Mr. SUMNER'S mercy.

AN INDUSTRIAL ART LEADER.

The death of Dr. JAMES P. HANEY leaves a vacancy in the school system which it will be difficult to fill. He was a talented and successful leader in the development of art appreciation and a competent supervisor of art technique throughout the high schools of the city. He had the confidence and unstinted praise of authorities in education and in art alike, not only at home, but in all parts of the United States where his work was known, and even abroad. The industrial art department which he built up at the Washington Irving High School has been the model for many cities. He was the moving spirit in the School Art League, through which he not only developed a community interest in art, but formed a co-operative plan by which more than 200 graduates of the public schools were enabled to have advanced industrial art training. Himself a graduate of the New York City public schools and of the College of the City of New York, he brought back to the city through its schools many times the value of what he received. He had, moreover, made a position which now demands of its incumbent the service of the best qualified person in such work to be found in the United States.

NAVY DIRIGIBLE ZR-1.

In an address, broadcast by radio on Tuesday night, Rear Admiral WILLIAM A. MOFFETT, Chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, announced that the dirigible ZR-1 would go into commission about July 1. He expects to send her on trips to the principal cities of the country, and is even planning voyages around the world and to the North and South Poles. Polar expeditions and flights around the world would require elaborate preparations. The presumption is that helium would be used to inflate the balloon, in order to reduce the risk to a minimum. Helium does not absolutely insure the safety of the crew of a dirigible. It is still contended that structural defects caused the wreck and explosion of the ZR-2 at Hull, England, and that the Roma would not have been burned at Hampton Roads if she had not lacked stability. However, in both cases the ships were doomed as soon as the envelope containing hydrogen gas caught fire. It is believed that if the balloons had been inflated with helium most of the crews would have survived. Another disaster of the same magnitude would shatter the faith of our people in this type of airship.

At Lakehurst, where ZR-1 will be assembled, it is reported that helium is to be used for inflation. This gas is very expensive, and the balloon of the great ship will hold 2,000,000 feet of it. If the Government should have in storage enough heljum for tests and exhibitions in the United States this year, it would be a surprise. Hitherto the quantity available has been small. If the Navy Department thinks of inflating the ZR-1 with hydrogen for any of her trials, it should be demonstrated that the construction is proof against buckling, and that the danger of the envelope taking fire from the motor is negligible. To be on the side of safety, helium should be used regardless of cost. There would be plenty of time for polar dashes and for belting the earth after the builders had proved their claim that ZR-1 is a great advance in security and efficiency over the ZR-2 and the Roma. One of the naval engineers is quoted as saying that the new ship will be the "wonder of the world." He declares that she will be able to "fly" 5,000 miles without refueling, and that a voyage to the North or to the South Pole would present only slight difficulties.

As to polar expeditions, it must be considered that, in case of mishap, there would be no shed for housing a dirigible in the Arctic or the Antarctic and no anchor pole to tie her to. Our meteorological information about those regions is incomplete. We do know from PEARY'S story of his dash to the Pole that he had mild and almost windless weather. So favored, ZR-1 should gain the Pole and return to her house base. The interior of the polar area is a fair-weather zone compared with its margins. Winds are often high in the Arctic Circle. NANSEN'S Fram encountered seventy-three cyclonic depressions in three years. They were more frequent in the Winter, but there was a greater wind velocity in the Summer. The gales are fiercer along the coasts of the Arctic lands, blowing from forty-five to ninety miles an hour. Sailing conditions for dirigibles are worse in the Antarctic. If ZR-1 is to be sent to the Poles, an intensive study of routes and weather will have to be made, and the risks of the adventure must be recognized. As she was designed to be a war machine, it may well be asked why the hazard should be taken.

A CONTINGENT REMAINDER.

One of the thirty-three bills to carry out Governor SMITH'S proposal to consolidate departments abolishes the State Fair Commission and transfers its functions to the Department of Farms and Markets. We bow before such an august reform, yet both as humanitarians and as archaeologists we may be permitted to regret the shearing of the not too numerous functions of the Lieutenant Governor. He is President of the State Fair Commission, a place said to be especially dear to the present Lieutenant Governor, Mr. LUNN, an accomplished bucolic of Schenectady. So, one by one, the roses fade. How many are left? The Legislative Manual records them:

> President of the Senate; member of the Court for the Trial of Impeachments; Commissioner of the Canal Fund; Commissioner of the Land Office; member of the Canal Board; Trustee of Union College, of Cornell University, of Public Buildings; member of the State Board of Equalization of Assessments.

Presiding in the Senate is the Lieutenant Governor's only steady job. The Court for the Trial of Impeachments doesn't sit very often. The Lieutenant Governor's chance of serving in the Governor's place in case of the latter's impeachment, removal, inability, resignation, absence from the State, death, is not very rich or consoling. He is not even regarded, as so many Vice Presidents have been, as a sort of memento mori. Presumably, all his few commissionerships, trusteeships, memberships will be lopped off by reorganization. He won't have anything to do except to be bland, dignified, a model of parliamentary propriety in the Senate.

President of the Senate; in other respects a political contingency or contingent remainder; that would be a fair description. On account of the vague prospect of succession, the post must always remain honorable. It has been held by two Van Rensselaer Patroons, by DE WITT CLINTON, DANIEL S. DICKINSON, HAMILTON FISH, SANFORD E. CHURCH, HENRY J. RAYMOND, STEWART L. WOODFORD, WILLIAM DORSHEIMER, DAVID B. HILL, JONES, "He Pays the Freight"; WILLIAM F. SHEEHAN—to come no nearer this generation. The chairmanship of the State Fair Commission does give the Lieutenant Governor an opportunity to make useful political acquaintances and to cling to that pillar of all our institutions, the "farming interest," as our wise and pious ancestors used to say before "interest" was a word of shame and farming a sacred profession.

Who could have expected that reform would dart its lightnings at the venerable, if tolerably otiose, duties of the Lieutenant Governor?

THE TURKS AND THE TREATY.

Most members of the Turkish Grand National Assembly are, in Mr. STANLEY BALDWIN'S phrase, "politicians from pastoral districts." Their comprehension of international affairs is not so profound as it might be. Having beaten the Greeks for the time being, they think they have beaten all Europe. Consequently they have rejected the Treaty of Lausanne as contravening that inspired document, the Turkish National Pact. However, conditions which the Turks are willing to accept also contravene the earlier articles of the National Pact. That document insists on self-determination by plebiscite for Syria, Palestine, Mesopotamia and Western Thrace. Nothing has been heard of this demand since the early days of the conference. The one sacrosanct portion of the National Pact seems to be Article VI., which says that "it is absolutely indispensable and vitally necessary that we enjoy complete liberty and independence, like other States. Hence we are opposed to the maintenance of any political, judicial and financial restrictions, or any others which may put obstacles in the way of our development."

Because the conditions for the partition of the old Ottoman debt, the measures for the legal protection of foreigners in Turkey, and the status of commercial privileges granted by the old Imperial Government, as laid down in the treaty drawn up by the Allies at Lausanne, were hard to reconcile with this article, the Grand National Assembly has voted against the treaty. The great men of Angora seem to have been carefully balanced on the fence during the debate. ISMET Pasha refused to sign at Lausanne. His attitude since suggests that personally he hoped that the Assembly would accept the treaty, but was afraid to say so. MUSTAPHA KEMAL has been expressing himself on the status of women and the infallibility of the Prophet, but whenever foreign correspondents asked him about the treaty he began to emit generalizations which could be interpreted in support of the decision of the Assembly, whatever that might be.

Yet the Turks are willing to resume negotiations, and probably the unhappy ISMET will be sent back to Lausanne with instructions to try again. They attach conditions—the Mosul question, left out of the treaty, must be settled soon; the Straits and Constantinople must be evacuated by the Allies as soon as the treaty is signed, and "all financial, economic and administrative questions must be settled in conformity with the complete independence of the Turkish nation." At first sight, this looks like a notice that the Allies must give in on all points, but diplomats are able to find formulas to cover almost anything, and it shouldn't be impossible to reach some sort of compromise.

The Allies are also willing to talk it over. Neither England, France nor Italy wants to fight the Turks, and Angora knows it. There is one uncertain factor—the reconstructed Greek army in Western Thrace, which General PANKALOS, its commander, says is ready to impose peace. The Turks think they can handle this army, the only one that is likely to be sent against them. Perhaps they can; the Greeks think otherwise, and differences of opinion make more than horse races.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Of Editions, First and Other.

Whether in its higher or lower manifestations, the doings of those with the collector's urge are mysterious to people who happen not thus to be driven. Especially deep is the mystery for the others if they chance to be interested in the contents of books—"in literature," they like to put it—when they see the collectors vehemently pursuing, and buying at enormous prices, books to which are ascribed values that have nothing to do with what is in them.

To these folk the worth of a book depends on the date of its issue, the width of its margins, the name written on its flyleaf, who once owned it, this or that peculiarity of binding. To pay attention to these things is innocent enough, and, as curios, the book collector's treasures do have an appreciable value. They also have one, sometimes, as illustrating the history of printing or binding. But these are not literary values, and to real lovers of literature—to some of them, at any rate—such values are naught, they are naught; or else at once absurd and irritating.

Destitute of the collecting instinct, it is not the first, but the last, edition of a good book that one wants; and of a book not held to be good, one feels no impulse toward the acquisition of any edition at all, no matter who may have owned it or bound it or printed it—not even though it may be "the only known copy except an imperfect one in the British Museum."

How Prices Can Be Changed.

Non-collectors of first editions occasionally have against the collectors a grievance in addition to that of disagreeing with them as to why a book is precious. This other grievance was illustrated, one day this week, when a non-collector tried to buy a copy of A. E. HOUSMAN'S "Last Poems," recently published in London at 5 shillings or thereabout.

He was told by a friend that he could get it for $2, but the first dealer who admitted possession of the little volume demanded $5 for it, and elsewhere he discovered that the price had risen to $15, with no eagerness to sell, the dealers believing that before long they could get $25 or more.

Why? Simply because the English edition, not having been large, was likely soon to be scarce, and already the votaries of the "first edition" were after it with their usual mad disregard for the cost of what they want.

To make the situation the more exasperating for the man who sought the poems because, having memories of "The Shropshire Lad," he desired to see what Mr. HOUSMAN was writing in his old age and as a sort of farewell to the world, there is soon to appear an American edition in every respect the equal of the other—in every respect, that is, except that it will not be the first edition and therefore will be scorned by the collectors.

Well, it will not be scorned by the admirers of Mr. HOUSMAN as a poet, and, as they do not think his verse, good as it is, the very last or greatest of poetic productions, they can afford to wait—and will. Meanwhile, the collectors and the dealers who cater to them will have a fine time with that first English edition. But neither the collectors nor the dealers should pretend to be interested in literature. They are more like the men who gather postage stamps or those who hold themselves the favorites of fortune if they can get hold of the spear with which Captain COOK was killed.

He Should Disclose Their Names.

According to Mr. PECORA, the Assistant District Attorney, Mr. ANDERSON of the Anti-Saloon League told him, in partial explanation of what was done with the much-discussed $24,700, that some of it went to men on "wet" papers, to pay them for doing in those papers what they could for prohibition. This, even so stated, is rather interesting, but it would have been vastly more interesting if Mr. PECORA had been able to extort from Mr. ANDERSON the names of the journalistic persons who thus were bribed to oppose, and to whatever extent they could to nullify, the policy in this matter of the papers by which they were employed.

It may be that there are members of newspaper staffs who are as treacherous as this, and it might be contended that Mr. ANDERSON was justified in using such tools in the service of his cause, just as military men use information sold by traitors and detectives use criminals as stool pigeons. But, having used them, he owed them no protection except as it would perpetuate their utility, and as soon as larger interests became involved—his own reputation or the good repute of his League—he should have had no scruples about disclosing their identity.

As it is, he has created a doubt in the public mind regarding the whole of a large class. Not many, indeed, actually will believe that Mr. ANDERSON is foolish enough to have spent either his own money or the money of his League in that way, but of mud thrown some usually sticks. Mr. ANDERSON is under a real and considerable moral obligation, therefore, to tell the names of those whose dishonesty he suggested. If he does not, the conclusion hardly is avoidable that he has no names to tell.

It Would Help the Gliders.

A Paris dispatch in THE TIMES yesterday said that there had been invented an instrument which would reveal to the operator of an engineless airplane—a "glider," that is—any change in the force or direction of the wind. This, it was promised or predicted, would do much for aerial navigation of that sort and even would make possible indefinitely prolonged progress in a horizontal direction.

The first part of this certainly is true, if the instrument has the efficiency ascribed to it, but the other part does not follow, either necessarily or at all. The birds have what amounts to the knowledge the invention is said to give the glider, but how they acquire it only can be guessed. Experience extending over innumerable generations is a convenient explanation of their skill in judging and using the invisible currents of the air.

Men may learn to do the same thing in another way.

STANDARD OIL REPLY.

Directors Preparing to Take Up All Points of La Follette Report.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial this morning on Senator La Follette's report and the obligation of those attacked in it to make specific answer impresses me as equally just to the public, to the petroleum industry and to the Senate subcommittee. As you say, it is much to be regretted that "it will be difficult to attempt to overtake the report . . . and to correct its errors one by one."

The Directors of this company realized that, because of its unfairness and inadequacy, the La Follette report must be answered in full. It is their purpose to meet the conclusions of the subcommittee at every point and to give the public the truth as to this company's management, policies, earnings and public relations—information which was tendered the subcommittee and refused. The more complete the public understanding of the complex machinery of the petroleum industry, and of this company's considerable part in that industry, the more confident we shall be of our retention of the good-will so essential to our continued usefulness.

Sunday Legislation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the controversy relative to the "blue laws," Mr. Bowlby is reported to have said that those who are dissatisfied with the laws of this country should get out. In other words, man was made for the laws, although we read somewhere that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath, i. e., for him to enjoy it as he thinks will most benefit him.

Were the theologues to read John Stuart Mill on "Liberty," with receptive minds, they would find references to "sabbatarian legislation" which would put a quietus upon the urge in that direction. I quote the following from Mill on "Liberty":

> "It remains to be proved that society, or any of its officers, holds a commission from on high to avenge any supposed offense to omnipotence which is not also a wrong to our fellow-creatures. The notion that it is one man's duty that another should be religious was the foundation of all the religious persecutions ever perpetrated. Though the feeling which breaks out in the repeated attempts to stop railway traveling on Sunday, in the resistance to the opening of museums and the like, has not the cruelty of the old persecutors, the state of mind indicated by it is fundamentally the same."

The Outlook for 1924.

Why all the hullabaloo by the press agents about the Presidential midterm? Everybody concedes that Mr. Harding has so impressed himself on the country that he can't lose the nomination any more than his opponent can lose the election.

The Driest States.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is much in the angle from which a case is viewed. Lawson Purdy's letter does not, to my mind, prove Kansas and Georgia better than New York, but rather that those two States are not playing at State enforcement of the dry law. R. E. CALDWELL.

CINDERELLA'S SONG.

He will come down
From Castle Town
In purple cape and silver spurs,
And speak in tones of dulcimers,
When the orange twilight stills
And the moon is proud above the hills.

O heart of the lilac bush, be kind!
If he but seek,
What shall he find?
The frost comes soon with the Autumn wind.
O voice of the poplars, wish me well!
If he but speak,
What shall I tell?
Oh, let my words be golden as a bell!

For lo! my dream-flutes drip with tears,
And rusted are my cups of mirth.
I toss my sheaf of the bitter years
Into the lap of the patient earth.
Perhaps my dawn of joy shall rise
Before the morrow's birth.

Through hyacinth halls the starlight stands,
The mango smiles—O life, let be!
What of my heap of tangled hair,
So long as he shall find me fair!
What of my toil-marred hands,
If he but understands!

I shall be glad as the bubbling spring
If on my cheek I feel his breath;
Sing, night! Sing, day!
Blow mists away!
Sing, morning, sing!
The birch bough bends to the thrush's wing—
If love come not,
Come, death!

DISSENTING OPINIONS.

A Canon Against Them, to Be "Liberally Construed."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There will be very little dissent from the conclusions expressed by Francis A. Lewis in his letter published in your issue of the 24 inst., entitled "Dissenting Opinions"—certainly not on the part of experienced and thoughtful lawyers. The propensity on the part of Judges to write dissenting opinions in cases where no fundamental principle is involved is very seriously to be criticised.

There is one classic illustration of a distinguished Judge who, perhaps, erred upon the other side. I am referring to the late Chief Justice John A. Peters of the State of Maine. On the occasion of his resignation from the bench of the Supreme Court after twenty-seven years of active service, during most of which he was Chief Justice, a complimentary dinner was tendered him by the Bar of the State. In his speech on that occasion, which was replete with wisdom and sound sense, he said upon the subject of dissenting opinions:

> "I never published a dissenting opinion or note of my own. I have felt ugly enough in a few cases to do so, and have internally sworn that I would, but never did. I think it expedient in rare instances only. Dissenting opinions sometimes represent more of the feeling of the writer than sober discussion of the law. But Judges do not think alike on this question."

If Chief Justice Peters erred upon the conservative side, it was not from lack of influence with the court, as will appear from the following remarkable statement in the speech referred to:

> "I think it may be regarded as gratifying evidence of the faithfulness of my own work that out of the 600 opinions drawn by me there never was but one rejected by the court, and on that one, about the best of all, the court was divided, three to five. Chief Justice Appleton used to say facetiously that rejected opinions came round into fashion in about seven years as a rule, and that was virtually the history of this case."

Perhaps the present distinguished Chief Justice of the State of Maine, who acted as one of the committee in the draft of the "Proposed Canons of Judicial Ethics," recently published, had in mind the career of his learned and beloved predecessor when he assisted in framing the canons in question, among which is found the following:

> "* * * A Judge should not yield to pride of opinion or value more highly his individual reputation than that of the court to which he should be loyal. Therefore, except in case of conscientious difference on fundamental principle, dissents should not be encouraged."

I am quite certain that this canon will be heartily welcomed by the members of the bar, and it is to be hoped that Judges will strictly conform to it.

There is one amendment to the above canon which I take the liberty of suggesting, and that is by adding:

> "This canon should be liberally construed."

To Keep Ten Pupils in School.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the beginning of the new school term three weeks ago the Scholarship Committee of the Vocational Service for Juniors for the first time in thirteen years of its existence found itself absolutely without funds for seventeen unusually promising girls and boys of 14 and 15 who without its help would have to leave school at once and go to work. By unusual efforts we have provided for seven of this group, but to date we have no money for the remaining ten. They need only $5 a week each to enable them to complete the present school year and continue their courses in grammar, high and trade schools. It is always a tragedy when eager, ambitious youngsters are forced out of school at so early an age. It is doubly a tragedy when they have begun the year with high hopes, only to have to withdraw in mid-session because necessity demands that they contribute to the family budget. Among the ten are Protestants, Catholics and Jews; some are of stout American stock, others are Americans of British, Northern, Southern and Eastern European descent. They come mostly from families "not in the charities," as the children proudly put it.

To foster this worthy pride and self-respect we have consistently tried to have our children look on their scholarships as an honor for good school work and a responsibility to help others, rather than a charity. On this account their stories are known only to the committee and to interested donors. We give preference to applicants who are the eldest of families, and the number of younger sisters and brothers sent through high and grade schools by our scholarship children is truly inspiring. Of the present group of ten, half are the eldest of families. Five dollars keeps a child in school a week, $125 keeps a child in school a term, $250 keeps a child in school a session. Even then, a child must often work after school and on Saturdays to make both ends meet. The eighty-eight children now on our list are under the direct supervision of our Scholarship Counselor, who sees them each week to give them their weekly payments and looks after their physical, moral and educational welfare.

Checks for one or more weeks, for a term or session, made out to C. F. Ahlstrom, Treasurer, 122 East Twenty-fifth Street, will be gratefully acknowledged. Information concerning individual applicants will be furnished to those interested. We would appreciate having this matter brought to the attention of your readers.

A Couple 91 and 90 Years Old.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was interested to read the article by Joseph Gilder in yesterday's TIMES citing some current instances of longevity. Has he available, or could any of your readers advise me of, current instances of couples who have reached extreme age? For one person to reach 90 is not so remarkable; the chances of both man and wife reaching that age are, of course, very small. The reason I ask is that my grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rider of Ansonia, Conn., are now, respectively, 91 and 90, and I am interested to know just how many couples there are who can equal or exceed that record.

Morals of the Majority.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Edward Blakeney in his letter to THE TIMES today anent censorship of morals, answers his own argument. The growth of a certain kind of "realistic" literature of the modern school, if allowed to proceed without check, would be as alarming as a similar increase in any commercialized vice detrimental to the public morals. All laws are crystallized public opinion; if they are enacted over-hastily they do not endure. As soon as public opinion supports any "group of reformers" they represent the majority, and, to paraphrase Mr. Blakeney's words, "if you, the minority, are not capable of making your own decisions, we, the majority, are capable of making them for you. If you do not accept our decisions willingly, we will have them embodied in the law and enforce that law."

TIME-TABLE BARRED IN PRESIDENT'S TRIP

EVEN GOLF IS UNCERTAIN

President Played Yesterday, but Today He May Fish—Both He and Mrs. Harding Improve.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTONA, Fla., March 7.—President Harding landed here this morning and played eighteen holes of golf over the Sea Breeze course, while the houseboat Pioneer, with Mrs. Harding on board, continued twenty-five miles south to New Smyrna. There the President boarded the houseboat with the other members of his golfing foursome and the Pioneer tied up for the night in the neighborhood of Titusville.

Half of the east coast of Florida, on the watch for the Presidential party, has discovered a new game of hide and seek. One guess is as good as another as to where the President will land next on his vacation cruise. It is a game that is dependent upon the weather, the wind, the tide, uncharted mud banks and the condition of the sandy golf course between here and Palm Beach.

It is also a game dependent upon the President's impulses, for having been tied down to a year's White House routine he has no liking for a vacation cruise on a time-table basis.

Telegraph and telephone operators are the most enthusiastic players of houseboat hide and seek. Operators in the little towns along the east coast are on the lookout for the Pioneer, and they communicate their discoveries to each other. A telephone exchange in one town is positive that the houseboat passed by an hour ago, while twenty miles off another town is just as certain that the vessel will arrive there in a few minutes.

Last night the Pioneer tied up two miles south of Daytona, and this morning New Smyrna prepared to welcome the President, while Ormond thought that the last had been seen of him until he returns north on his way from Miami. Instead Mr. Harding with his host, Edward B. McLean, and Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board and Charles G. Dawes, landed at Daytona, motored across the bridge to Sea Breeze and played eighteen holes over a golf course that was but little more than a mile from the Ormond links and yesterday's starting point for the cruise. The golfers returned to the houseboat and joined Mrs. Harding, Mrs. McLean and Brig. Gen. Sawyer, the President's physician, for luncheon. Early in the afternoon the Pioneer cast off and proceeded south.

Tomorrow's landing point is just as indefinite as today's. Secret Service men sent down the shore in advance have reported that there are few golf courses between here and Hobe Sound, 100 miles away, where a player can use anything but a niblick on the fair greens. Therefore the President may elect to spend tomorrow on the water. Then again, he may not, for automobiles are available and there is the possibility that he will land at Titusville or Rock Ledge and motor to some course where there is something more than sand and prickly southern growth that catches in fuzzy golf stockings and irritates the skin and temper.

If the Pioneer should catch fast in a mud bank it has been lucky so far—then the fishing is good and General Dawes has some stories he can tell.

ARGENTINA STILL IN LEAGUE.

Foreign Minister Regards Nation as a Member, Despite Break.

BUENOS AIRES, March 7 (Associated Press).—The retirement of the Argentine delegation from the Assembly of the League of Nations in December, 1920, did not imply the withdrawal of Argentina from the League itself, in the opinion of Foreign Minister Gallardo.

The Minister's views were submitted to the Budget Committee of the Chamber of Deputies last evening, when he presented the statement of Argentina's unpaid quota of the League's expenses. The question of Argentina's exact relationship to the League was brought up in the Chamber, and the Budget Committee expressed a desire for further information, especially as to whether it should provide for payment of the quota, which has been assessed annually until the total due amounts to 2,333,000 gold francs.

Señor Gallardo said that he thought Argentina should meet this obligation in order to make the situation normal. It is generally expected that the committee will include this sum in the budget and that the Administration majority will approve its payment.

Meanwhile, it is announced that President Alvear will hold a Cabinet meeting to decide Argentina's future relations with the League. It is believed that this meeting will result either in a definite announcement of the country's intention to withdraw its membership or a statement that Argentina will continue in the League family but decline to participate in the deliberations of the Assembly until some action is taken on her proposed amendment to the covenant.

Señor Gallardo's statement asserted that repeated communications had been received from the Secretariat of the League requesting the payment of Argentina quotas, but that these were never answered by his predecessor, Señor Pueyrredon.

Since the sensational retirement of the Argentine delegation the question as to whether this country was still a member of the League has been frequently mooted in Congress and the newspapers, but the Yrigoyen Administration did not clarify the situation officially. The nearest approach to an official explanation was the statement by Señor Pueyrredon, in which he said: "We are waiting outside the door of the League until the Assembly acts on our amendment."

No notification has ever been given of Argentina's intention to withdraw from membership in the League itself.

Argentina's withdrawal from the Assembly followed the rejection by that body of the Argentine proposal to admit all sovereign nations to membership.

MRS. NORA MELLON WEDS HARVEY A. LEE

Secretary of the Treasury's Divorced Wife, 44, Marries Art Dealer, 30.

Miss Beryl M. Siegbert Wed to Carl J. Austrian by Rev. Dr. Wise at the Ritz-Carlton.

The marriage of Mrs. Nora McMullen Mellon, former wife of Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Harvey Arthur Lee, an art dealer of 680 Lexington Avenue, took place yesterday at the Community Church on Park Avenue at Thirty-fourth Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the church, who was also the officiating clergyman at the marriage of Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Miss Gloria Morgan on Tuesday.

The wedding, which took place at 12:30 o'clock, was attended by only a few friends, and there were no attendants. The couple left after the ceremony to spend their honeymoon in New England. When they obtained their marriage license on Feb. 23, the bridegroom gave his age as 30 and the bride hers as 44.

The bride and her first husband were married in 1900 and have two children, Miss Ailsa Mellon, 21 years old, who is well known in society here and in Washington, D. C., and Paul Mellon, 16 years old. ISRAELS PAINTING SOLD FOR $27,000

'Children Sailing a Boat' Leads Valentine Sale—A Troyon for $13,000—Total $99,825.

There were excellent prices at the sale of the paintings of the late P. A. Valentine of New York at the American Art Galleries. Thomas E. Kirby in the auctioneer's chair, last evening, pictures big in size bringing big prices, a condition which has become unusual of late years. The high price of the evening was $27,000 given by E. F. Albee of the Keith Theatres for a beautiful Josef Israels, "Children Sailing a Boat: The Beach at Scheveningen." It was a large canvas, 47¾ inches in height by 63¾ in length, two children on a beach sailing a little boat. With the flatness of land and water and the large size of the figures they were almost in the nature of portraits. They were charming portraits of sweet faced children, a little boy and girl.

There was applause when the picture was shown and more when it was knocked down to Mr. Albee for the top price of the evening. The painting had started at only $1,000 and the contest for it was interesting. The runner-up was William Randolph Hearst, who was present and made his own bids.

Another picture of great size, a beautiful and unusual painting by Troyon, a landscape, "Un Dernier Jour d'Ete," 102 inches high by 83 in width, the two cattle shown, small figures, an incident in the landscape, entirely contrary to the custom of Troyon, brought the second high price of the evening, going to G. Leroy for $12,000. It was a beautiful picture, with a record of high prices back of it. It was purchased from Arthur Tooth & Son for $25,000. The artist has a record of prices at public sale in New York, one of his cattle pictures, less important than the big landscape, selling in the Henry sale at the American Art Galleries for $45,000. Last night's picture started at $2,500.

8—Woodland Scene With Sheep — Jacques: Arthur Tooth, Sold $1,050
9—The Lake's of the Great Man—Vibert: R. Williams $1,850
29—A Forest Idyl—Diaz: E. F. Albee $4,100
30—Cattle and Sheep—Van Marcke: Porter Woods $1,700
31—Louis XIV. and Moliere: Geromo: Porter Woods $2,700
35—A New England Valley—George Inness: Knoedler & Co. $2,400
36—Twin Cathedrals, Grand Canyon—Elliott: Durand-Ruel Galleries $1,150
41—In Flight From the Wolves—Schreyer: Mrs. B. A. Cheney $2,300
42—Les Bohemians—Diaz: J. H. Lehman $2,000
43—Cattle and Landscape—Van Marcke: John Levy Galleries $1,900
44—A Halt—Schreyer: Porter Woods $2,300
50—The Lemonade Seller, Children — Thomas Sully: Seaman, agent $4,100
52—Portrait Sir John Skynner—Gainsborough: R. Williams $3,800

WAR CROSS AWARDED TO DWIGHT F. DAVIS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Dwight F. Davis of Missouri, the new Assistant Secretary of War, has received the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action during the World War. He was then Major and later Lieutenant Colonel of infantry, having entered the military service as a Captain in the Fifth Missouri Infantry.

The award was a surprise to Mr. Davis. It was made by the War Department's Board of Awards before it became known that Mr. Davis was to be appointed Assistant Secretary. When the recommendation was laid before Secretary Weeks, who was aware of President Harding's intention to make the appointment, he decided to keep Mr. Davis in ignorance until the latter qualified as Assistant Secretary. When Mr. Davis was inducted into the office of Assistant Secretary of War, Secretary Weeks pinned the Distinguished Service Cross on his coat.

Mr. Davis was a member of the War Finance Corporation when he was nominated for Assistant Secretary last Friday. He was born in St. Louis, July 5, 1879. He has been Park Commissioner of St. Louis. He was twice cited for gallantry in France during the war.

The citation in connection with the award of the D. S. C. is as follows:

Dwight F. Davis, then Major, later Lieutenant Colonel, Infantry, United States Army. For extraordinary heroism in action between Bauliny and Chaudron Farm, France, Sept. 29-30, 1918. After exposure to severe shelling and machine gun fire for three days, during which time he displayed rare courage and devotion to duty, Major Davis, then adjutant Sixty-ninth Infantry Brigade, voluntarily and in the face of intense enemy machine gun and artillery fire proceeded to various points and brought aide sector, assisted in reorganizing positions and in replacing units of the brigade, this self-imposed duty necessitating continued exposure to concentrated enemy fire.

Sept. 30, 1918, learning that a strong counterattack had been launched by the enemy against Bauliny Ridge and was progressing successfully, he voluntarily organized such special duty men as could be found and with them rushed forward to reinforce the line under attack, exposing himself with such coolness and great courage that his conduct inspired the troops in this crisis and enabled them to hold on in the face of vastly superior numbers.

POSED AS CROOKS TO CAPTURE GANG

JAILED WITH REST OF BAND

Agents Deflore and Harris Say They Also Learned of an International Drug Ring.

Secret Service men told yesterday how they squelched the recent $1,000,000 counterfeit plot while posing as crooks. When Agents Gabriel Deflore of Pittsburg and George H. Harris of Chicago appeared before United States Commissioner Hitchcock as prosecutors in the complaint, charging Erico Schetino, restaurant owner of 373 Broome Street, and Salvatore Esposito, butcher, of 120 Mulberry Street, with issuing counterfeit money, the two agents had been recognized members of the counterfeiting gang since last September. They were introduced to the Italians by Agent Robert L. Godby of the local office. Godby had won the confidence of the counterfeiters and was known to them as a gangster. He told them that Deflore was a banker and wished to get $1,000,000 in counterfeit money. Deflore posed as a Frenchman, speaking broken English, and did not disclose that he understood Italian. They displayed some poorly engraved plates they had already purchased, but said that the workmanship was so inferior that they could not use them and they wanted to buy better ones.

Under the names of Angelo and Jackson the detectives remained the inseparable companions of the counterfeiters from September to February 22, when they were arrested with twenty-six members of the band in a raid on the headquarters of the counterfeiters at 363 Broome Street.

Deals in Drugs and Liquor.

During this time the Secret Service men dickered with the Italians in drug and bootleg deals, and obtained information, they say, which may lead to the exposal of an international narcotic ring. Deflore made a trip to Pittsburgh in November with the announced intention of "fixing matters" to dispose of the spurious notes. While Deflore was in Pittsburgh a local Italian who bore the same name as Deflore assumed one committed a murder. The detective enclosed the newspaper stories in a letter to one of the counterfeiters, in which he said that he had committed the murder in a moment of passion, and would have to remain in Pittsburgh a few days longer than he had intended in order to make arrangements with the police. This incident redoubled the confidence of the counterfeiters in Deflore.

When the police raided the restaurant of John De Roa, 365 Broome Street, on the evening of Feb. 22, Deflore and Harris put up a battle for the counterfeiters and were roughly handled by the police. The detectives were arraigned before Commissioner Hitchcock, and gave the names of Angelo and Jackson. They were sent to the Tombs in default of $10,000 bail. There they had many opportunities to talk with their fellow-prisoners, and kept the department informed of all they learned. The imprisoned counterfeiters talked freely of their confederates, and from them the Secret Service men obtained the information which led to the arrest of Schetino and Esposito.

DEFENDS RENT CHARGE TO VETERANS' BUREAU

Operators of Grand Central Palace Challenge Citizens' Committee to Get Lower Rate.

The Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange of New York, operators of the Grand Central Palace, yesterday made public a copy of a letter sent to Delancey Kountze, President of the Citizens' Committee of America, which recently issued a report criticising conditions in the Veterans' Bureau, located in the Grand Central Palace. W. Frederick Surrender, Treasurer of the Exchange, took issue with that part of the committee's report which asserted that space for the bureau could be found elsewhere for "a rental of 50 cents per square foot."

"The engineers," wrote Mr. Surender, "in charge of procuring suitable quarters for the Veterans' Bureau canvassed every available building in New York from October, 1921, to March, 1922, before deciding to locate in the Grand Central Palace. The present space rate is $1.41 per square foot. The next best procurable rate obtained for the space desired was $2.36 per square foot.

"We assert that it is untrue that premises equal to the Grand Central Palace can be had for 50 cents per square foot in New York City or anywhere else in the United States. We challenge your committee to publish the addresses and locations in New York or elsewhere providing the facilities of the Grand Central Palace at 50 cents per square foot per annum."

Philadelphian Hears Three Victims of Speed Car Identified.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7. — After being held by the Coroner without bail today on the charge of homicide in connection with the killing of three persons by a speeding automobile, Henry G. Brock, a banker, was released by Judge Finletter on $20,000 bail. Brock is also under $5,000 bail fixed by a magistrate, on charges of driving a motor car while intoxicated and refusing to aid injured persons.

Indictments on the three charges, it was said tonight, probably would be asked of the March Grand Jury.

The victims of the accident—Mrs. Ellen O'Donnell, her son Leo and Mary Murphy, a friend of the O'Donnells—were killed early last Friday as they alighted from a trolley car in West Philadelphia. Brock was arrested four blocks from the scene as he stood beside his wrecked car, which had crashed into an electric light pole.

Brock listened calmly to the testimony of relatives making the formal identification of the victims. He bowed his head as Miss Murphy's father, with tears in his eyes, identified a piece of fur said to have been found on the radiator of Brock's car as part of his daughter's coat.

Herman F. Bower Jr. testified that the car was traveling between fifty-five and sixty miles an hour.

WILL M. HOUGH SURRENDERS

Freed on Bond in Wife's Divorce Suit Seeking $250 Weekly Alimony.

Will M. Hough, playwright, who is being sued for divorce by Mrs. Florence Lord Hough, daughter of Daniel M. Lord, veteran advertising man, surrendered yesterday at the office of Sheriff Nagle when he learned that an order for his arrest in the divorce suit had been granted by Supreme Court Justice Guy. He was released on giving a bond of $3,000.

Mrs. Hough asked that her husband be compelled to give the bond on the ground that he might not be in the jurisdiction of the court when the court acts on her application for $250 a week alimony and $2,500 counsel fee.

Order Craig to Pay Library Salaries

Justice Faber in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday signed an order of mandamus to compel Controller Craig to audit the January payroll of the Brooklyn Public Library. The sum of $39,000 is involved. Meier Steinbrink, representing the Library trustees, told the Court of the refusal of the Controller to make payment.

2 HELD IN HOOCH MURDER.

Magistrate Remands Them Without Bail in Pecorri Killing.

In Homicide Court yesterday, Magistrate Frederick B. House held without bail for examination next Friday two men who had been arrested in connection with the murder Tuesday morning of John Pecorri, 52, of 1,122 First Avenue. Pecorri was shot to death near his home by a man who stepped from a touring car. A bootleggers' feud is believed by the police to have led to the murder.

The prisoners are Anthony Bacchi, 22, of 122 Salem Street, Boston, who, the police say, has been identified by two witnesses as the man who fired the shots, and Phillip Mangano, 30, of 74 Second Place, Brooklyn, who has been identified, according to the police, as the man who drove the murder car.

THE "MATRIX" SHOE

Moulded like your Footprint

At last, a revolutionary scientific discovery produces an absolutely new kind of Shoes.

For hundreds of years, shoes have been made with soles that are flat inside, next the feet. The sole of the human foot is not flat. It is beautifully curved and modeled by Nature.

So,—your feet not only have had to carry your weight, and bear the strain of walking—they have had to gradually and painfully pound those flat soles into shapes that somewhat resemble their own.

After eight years of scientific research and mechanical experiment the new "Matrix" shoe, for women, is ready.

Its sole—inside—where your foot rests, is moulded like your footprint in the sand.

Your foot fits into the "Matrix" shoe with instant comfort and relief—yet the style-lines of Matrix shoes are as smart and modish as those of any other stylish shoe.

Every delicate joint in your foot finds a depression shaped exactly like itself in which to operate as easily as if you were not wearing shoes.

Every up-springing curve of your foot is gently touched by an upward curve of the shoe sole, preserving the springiness and beauty of the shape of the foot.

In all the world there is no other shoe like the wonderful "Matrix"—with its sole permanently and perfectly moulded to the shape of the bottom of your foot.

This is the shoe which has been described in the news columns of magazines and newspapers of all countries during the past year.

Any of the firms whose names are given here will be glad to show and explain it to you;—and fit you.

The "Matrix" shoe is made by E. P. Reed & Co. at Rochester, N. Y. and each genuine Matrix shoe carries this trademark.

IRISH CLERGY START NEW PEACE MOVE

Despite the Destruction, He Declares, Ireland's Condition Is the Best in Europe.

CORK, March 7 (Associated Press).—Peace proposals signed by many of the Catholic clergy and addressed to the leader of the Southern Republicans, Commandant Gen. Tom Barry, by Father Duggan of Cork, were issued here this evening. The immediate cessation of hostilities is sought by halting the activities and operations of the Republican forces and the dumping of arms and munitions by the Republicans under charge of the battalion commandants, who will be responsible that they shall not be used against the Free State Government and forces.

After a general election is held the arms and munitions are to be handed over to the elected Government.

The proposals are signed by Archbishop Harty of Cashel; Canon Cohalan of Skibbereen, Canon Ryan of Thurles, Father O'Leary of Cork, Frank Daly, Chairman of the Cork Harbor Commissioners, Dr. O'Donovan and T. P. Dowdall of Cork.

General Barry has replied, undertaking to circulate the proposals for immediate consideration among the members of the executive of the Republican army.

The news has been received here joyfully and there is general hope that peace will be brought about.

Blow Up Dublin Income Tax Office.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, March 7.—A feeling gripped Dublin today at the news of the blowing up at 6 o'clock this morning of the income tax office in Beresford Place, with the awful death of a young detective, Patrick Kelly, who with another Criminal Intelligence Department man was examining the premises owing to previous incendiary attempts. It is remembered that a fortnight ago the staff suffered the hideous agony of being held in the burning building by armed men, and as a result a constable named Carney was so injured that he died. His widow gave birth to a daughter a few days later.

The five perpetrators of today's outrage escaped, having ordered the police-man on duty in the vicinity away at the peril of instant death.

A sickening sensation pervaded the city all daay. Never had so much military activity been observed, with forces of soldiers flying in all directions, the occupants armed with rifles, revolvers and machine guns. When such an event as this morning's outrage takes place the people make up their minds that something terrible if possible must follow and many resolved to go home early while many will spend a restless night fearing vengeance will be visited on them.

Then, then have been ever hot on the trail of the printers of the Republican sheet Poblacht na h Eireann, and they got them again today in a house in the Fairview district, where they found a complete printing plant. Work was proceeding when they entered. Hands went up with an appeal not to shoot, as the operators said they were unarmed. There were ten men and one woman and all were taken to I. D. headquarters in Oriel House. All the machinery and equipment, and literature leaflets with a Glasgow imprint were carried off in two large lorries.

Twelve Prisoners Are Killed.

DUBLIN, March 7 (Associated Press). Twelve irregular prisoners were killed in County Kerry today through the explosion of trigger mines.

National troops, proceeding from Tralee to Killorglin, encountered a stone barricade, and brought prisoners from Tralee to remove the obstruction. Concealed in the barricade was a trigger mine, which exploded, killing eight of the prisoners and wounding two National Army officers and soldiers.

Another barricade was found on a further road and prisoners were taken there to remove it. Here there was another trigger mine, which also exploded, killing four prisoners.

COSGRAVE DECLARES IRISH CREDIT SOUND

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, March 7.—Despite the destruction wrought by the republicans, Ireland is one of the soundest countries in Europe so far as national finances are concerned. This opinion President Cosgrave of the Free State expressed to me in a talk lasting until long after midnight in his office in the Government Building, which is also his home.

"This arrangement, although forced by the threats of republicans against his life, probably suits Mr. Cosgrave as well as any other, for even in ordinary times he is a titanic worker, thinking nothing of laboring sixteen hours at a stretch. This immense capacity for work is no surprise not only to those who meet Mr. Cosgrave casually, but also to the members of his Cabinet, for he is a slight, pale man reputed to be in delicate health. His piercing blue eyes, however, betray his great determination as well as his keen intellectual capacity.

Mr. Cosgrave is well fitted to discuss Irish finances. He is Finance Minister as well as President of the Free State and he has had long training as a leading member of the Dublin Municipal Corporation.

"We do not expect to have to go abroad for money," he said. "In the immediate future we will be able to get all we want from our banks, and when it comes to funding these floating loans we expect most of the bonds to be taken up by our own people. Irish farmers have money, and they like public investments. They ought to be able to absorb all that we need to issue, and the security is good. It is impossible at this moment to state definitely the figure of the Irish national debt, because it has not been fixed yet. Under the treaty, of course, we assume a share of the British public debt, but our share has not been fixed and we have large counterclaims for overtaxation in the past, which is admitted. Negotiations have not yet begun, but we are preparing our case and we expect fair and generous treatment from England.

Deficit Less Than Expected.

"Our income today nearly meets our expenditures. We figured on a deficit of £10,000,000 ($47,000,000) for the current year, when we had all sorts of extraordinary expenses in setting up the Government, army costs, &c. Actually the deficit we know will be less than that. This year we have got in £7,000,000 ($32,900,000). This is extraordinarily good when one thinks of the circumstances.

"These taxes were levied in boom years and collected during a slump and after the prices of cattle had fallen 50 per cent. The same applies to local rates, which also are being collected in the same proportion. Of course, conditions in this respect vary in different parts of the country, as in other respects.

"Dublin has done extraordinary well in collection, having taken in 70 per cent., while in some districts it is down to 6 or 7 per cent., but it is improving everywhere. As the irregular bands are broken up and peace is restored it will continue to improve.

"The chief item of our public debts will be compensation for damage done. This is an extremely intricate problem. First we have got to pay for the damages we did ourselves during the Anglo-Irish war, for materials, buildings, food, &c., commandeered. Then we have to pay for damages done after the truce to both persons and property of members of the British forces and to British sympathizers, which were in reality breaches of the truce. Then there is the damage done by the republican anarchists.

"Of course, it is understood that every sufferer exaggerates his own damage and every claim has to be sifted with the utmost care. General Collins made a rough estimate of £40,000,000 ($188,000,000) damages, but I think that it is too high. My estimate is that it is a little less than half that amount.

"Take for instance the burning of country houses and 'castles by agricultural anarchists. Many of these were unoccupied and many were out of date. It is obvious that a man who lost a fifty-room house does not want to rebuild a house with fifty rooms these days. But it is our duty to see that he gets a house suitable for his requirements and station in life.

Will Pay Same for Burned Homes.

"Then there are the cases of men who do not want to rebuild and who are getting out of the country. They are entitled to their money at a fair valuation. Our plan now is to pay half in cash and half in Government bonds, which should bear a rate of interest sufficient to insure their sale and to bring full value in the market."

I asked Mr. Cosgrave about the setting up of a customs barrier by the Free State, which has caused so much misunderstanding in both Ulster and Great Britain. He explained that it was simply a part of the necessary machinery for the Free State's fiscal independence and was required by the treaty. He said that in no sense does it mean a tariff war. As a matter of fact, the Free State Government has no intention at present to alter the British rates of duty and it has not even considered the matter yet. But the Free State must collect its own revenue and it must have the Ministry for doing this.

At the present the Ministry already is in existence and all that is necessary is the establishment of custom houses on the Ulster frontier. Manufactured tobacco, for instance, going from Belfast to Dublin will be taken from Belfast in bond and examined at Goragh Wood, where taxes to the Free State will be paid. Under the present arrangement the tax is paid to the British Government and the tobacco enters the Free State free. The same applies to Dublin stout and whisky going to Belfast. It now pays duty to the Free State. It will go in bond from Dublin and it will pay duty for Great Britain at Goragh Wood. Thus the Free State and Great Britain will each get a fair share of revenue on articles consumed in their territory. After the first roughness of the system is smoothed out little difficulty is expected in getting the plan to work.

Rebel Force Is Broken Up.

Mr. Cosgrave is optimistic about the present situation in Ireland and the future. The republican organization—which is not republican at all, but which is composed of some disappointed politicians, some hysterical women and girls, some criminals and many dupes—has completely broken up. The only leaders of importance, Eamon de Valera and Liam Lynch, are fugitives and are sure to be caught.

In the Dublin slums and in a few other parts of the country small bands are still at large committing outrages. But they are without any central direction, and the few real fighting men that are left are tired of fighting, and are seeking a way to save their faces in surrendering. The Free Staters are willing to go a long way to make it easy for these men to go home and resume peaceful work, but it will have no compromise with the politicians who incited them.

The morale, training and equipment of the Free State Army is improving daily, and the unreliable elements which managed to get into it in the early days have been cleared out. The improved efficiency is being shown in the steady clearing up of area after area of the rebels.

One of the brightest spots is the improved relations with the Ulster Government, resulting in peace on the frontier. The Free State Army and the Ulster police in the frontier towns are now fraternizing and working well together, resulting in the rapid elimination of undesirables of both sides who have formerly crossed the border and felt safe.

Another year ought to see Ireland as peaceful as any other country in the world.

'TENNESSEE' CLAFLIN'S HEIR

Invalid Sister of Ladv Francis Cook Lives in Brooklyn.

That one of the heirs to the estate left by Lady Francis Cook, better known as "Tennessee" Claflin, the famous advocate of women's rights, who died in England recently, lives in Brooklyn and has been an invalid for more than four years became known yesterday. She is Mrs. Mary Claflin Sparr of 341 Hancock Street, a sister of Lady Cook.

Mrs Sparr has been made so nervous by her four years spent in a wheel chair as the result of breaking a hip in a fall, that she would not be seen, but a friend who has been taking care of her said that Mrs. Sparr's son, Millard Sparr, had been in Europe with Lady Cook for several years before her death, and that he was looking after his mother's interest in the estate.

The friend said that Lady Cook died without making a will, and under the English law her estate will be divided among eight relatives, four of whom reside in England and four in this country.

In 1877, according to the friend, Mrs. Sparr provided a sum of money for "Tennessee" Claflin and Victoria Woodhull when the two went to England on a tour. In 1910 Mrs. Sparr brought suit to recover the money and a settlement was reached out of court, but Mrs. Sparr never received any money.

I.R.T. ASKS APPROVAL OF COAL CONTRACTS

Disregard Hirshfield's Objection to Labor Policy of One of Three Contractors.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company applied yesterday to the Transit Commission for approval of contracts with the Berwind-White Mining Company, the Consolidation Coal Company and the Logan Company to furnish 800,000 tons of coal during the next three years at a base price of $7.50 a gross ton at the powerhouse.

The Interborough, it was announced, made these contracts on the unanimous recommendation of a special committee of new Directors consisting of Abel E. Blackmar, ex-Justice of the Appellate Division; Thomas I. Parkinson, Vice President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and Samuel W. Reyburn, President of Lord & Taylor.

The Interborough Directors took cognizance of the official report of Commissioner Hirshfield and others representing the city, who assailed the labor policy at the Berwind-White mines, according to Colonel Grayson M.-P. Murphy, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Interborough.

"We have looked into these matters," he said, "not only in the interest of the Interborough Company, but out of courtesy to the City Administration, which has given attention to the subject. We are not able, however, to convince ourselves that these matters should be permitted to swerve our business judgment as to what is best for the public, the city and for our company. All things considered, we believe that we have taken the only prudent course open to us in the circumstances."

In making public a detailed statement regarding the coal contracts, the Interborough is pursuing a course, it is stated, which has been decided upon by the new Board of Directors.

Plan to Keep Public Informed.

"It is the policy of the new board," said Colonel Grayson, "to keep the public fully informed about such matters, and I desire to add that we shall welcome any suggestions pertaining to our fuel supply that will aid us in our further study of the subject. We shall welcome the co-operation of citizens as well as of the public authorities in our efforts to carry out our contracts to the best advantage of our patrons, the city and our company.

"In reaching our conclusions, primary consideration was given to the interest of the public in the uninterrupted operation of the Interborough subway and elevated lines, and also of the B. R. T. subway lines in Manhattan, and certain surface lines which depend upon the Interborough for their power. We did not feel that at this time we should make experiments with our fuel supply. The coal situation has been too unsettled for the last two years to warrant our taking chances. Power house shutdown through using inferior grades of coal or through failure of coal deliveries. We must maintain continuous service at all costs."

"To insure uninterrupted operation it is imperative that a constant supply of coal shall be moving all the time toward the power houses. This is so because the Interborough has no storage facilities adequate for more than a few days of operation. During the past twenty years the management has been of the opinion that its plan of depending upon reliable contractors to keep high-grade coal moving by rail and barge was better practice than to create large storage dumps which would require handling, result in shrinkage and involve risk of spontaneous combustion.

Demand Best Grade of Coal.

"It must be borne in mind that the best coal is the cheapest in the long run. Miners' wages and freight rates are the same for low-grade coal as for coal producing the highest percentage of heat units which, after all, are what make electric power. The public generally knows the difference between buying coal which produces heat and coal which produces smoke, clinkers and ashes. The coal from the mines of the companies with which we have contracted has always been of the very highest grade and their deliveries have been reliable even under most trying conditions. Their reliability is brought about largely through their superior facilities, such as, among others, the ownership of their own cars, barges and tugs, or because of long standing contracts with reliable harbor craft operators.

"The base price is $7.50 a gross ton at our power houses, with a sliding scale provision for any increase or decrease in freight rates or miners' wages. This base price is low, compared with prevailing prices. The proposed Interborough basic rate is also lower than the best price offered to the navy for the same grade of coal.

"The contractors also agree to give the Interborough company the benefit of lower prices if they make contracts for coal of the same grade at lower prices to other customers in the harbor. Or if they sell without contracts any such coal at lower prices they agree to furnish us an equal amount under our contracts at the lower prices. We believe that these provisions, which are unusual in contracts of this kind, insure a lower cost per heat unit than could be obtained by any other method, in view of existing conditions."

SUBWAY DELAY LAID TO ESTIMATE BOARD

Transit Commission Blames It for Failure to Push Fort Hamilton Line.

The Transit Commission in a statement yesterday blamed the Board of Estimate for delays which will be suffered by the citizens along the projected Fort Hamilton extension of the Fourth Avenue subway in obtaining rapid transit service for that vicinity.

A substantial money loss will be suffered by the city, according to the Transit Commission, for the reason that the inaction of the Board of Estimate caused the cancellation of the contract which had been let to the T. A. Gillespie Company at a figure said to be highly advantageous to the city. Materials have increased since then and a new contract, it is alleged, must be at a higher figure. The commission's statement continued:

"The extension of the Fourth Avenue subway, covered by the contract in question, is from the present terminus at Eighty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, down Fourth Avenue to Ninety-fifth Street, to Fort Hamilton, where connection could be made with a possible future tunnel to Staten Island. The extension of the Fourth Avenue line to Ninety-fifth Street and Fort Hamilton was early taken up by the commission as one of the projects to be pushed by it to completion.

"Bids were received on Dec. 22 last, the firm of T. A. Gillespie Company being the lowest of eight bidders, at $1,485,151. Although the contract was submitted to the board by the commission immediately afterward, no action was taken. During February the contractor addressed a letter to the Board of Estimate, calling attention that prices were advancing and that unless prompt action were taken the Gillespie Company would be unable to hold open its tender.

"The matter came before the Transit Commission yesterday upon the receipt of a letter from the Gillespie Company, requesting the cancellation of the bid and the return of its certified check for $35,000. The matter was discussed by the commission yesterday and in view of the situation no alternative other than to cancel the bid and return the company's check seemed possible."

Clean Sheets and a Fresh Bone Await Fritz; $300 for the Finder of This Police Dog

There are clean sheets on Fritz's bed, a fresh bone is ready each day in his cupboard, and three new $100 notes await the person who brings Fritz himself back to his home at 2,145 Eightieth Street, Brooklyn. By breeding, Fritz is German police (though there is a suspicion that his slightly-shorter-than-normal legs are due to some ancestral intrusion of a Siberian wolfhound strain).

"A nice-mannered gentleman" is Fritz, according to the family of Lewis C. Smith, insurance man, of 140 William Street, Manhattan, from whose home the dog disappeared a week ago.

"A kind playfellow," is the characterization of many children in Public School 128, who are scouring the neighborhood, anxious to restore Fritz to his home and to their own midst. "A fine dog," says the Borden's milk-wagon driver "on the beat," who never stops at a house now without asking if any one has seen the missing animal, and whose fellow-drivers all over Bensonhurst have joined the quest.

Men on the staff of a private detective agency are saying nothing, but showing a steady, quiet interest in police dogs all over the city, and the bereavement of the Smith family became a matter of official concern yesterday when the police of the Bath Beach Station sent out a general alarm for Fritz.

There are no children in the Smith family. Fritz has been great company, and they want him back.

DR. F. J. MONAGHAN SUCCEEDS COPELAND

Is Appointed and Sworn in by Hylan as Health Commissioner.

IN CITY'S EMPLOY 5 YEARS

Served as Sanitary Superintendent —Is Neighbor of the Mayor in Brooklyn.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan was appointed Commissioner of Health and sworn in yesterday by Mayor Hylan, succeeding United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, under whom he served as Sanitary Superintendent for the past five years. His salary will be $7,500, an increase of $1,000 a year over his salary as Sanitary Superintendent.

The new incumbent, who lives at 1,060 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, a short distance from the Mayor's home, was graduated from the Long Island College Hospital in 1894. He entered the city's employ on Jan. 17, 1918, as Secretary of the Health Department and in August the same year was advanced to the post of Sanitary Superintendent.

Dr. Monaghan was born in 1866 on White Street, near Centre, a short distance from the present office of the Health Department on Pearl Street. He is the son of the late Joseph Monaghan, one of the pioneer gold pen manufacturers of this country. Dr. Monaghan attended the public school in Mott Street and then moved with his parents to Brooklyn. In 1889 he married Miss Helen O'Neil of Oneonta, N. Y., and practiced medicine there the first year after his graduation. For many years he was connected with the Eastern District Hospital, St. Catherine's Hospital and other hospitals in Brooklyn and Manhattan.

He has written a number of pamphlets and monographs on different phases of public health work, the latest being "Facts Regarding Industrial Hygiene the Public Should Know." He is a member of the American Medical Association, the American Public Health Association, the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, the New York State Medical Association, the Kings County Medical Society, the Brooklyn Medical Society and the Associated Physicians of Long Island. He is surgeon to the Veterans' Association, Forty-seventh Regiment.

As soon as he took office yesterday he appointed Thomas J. Clougher as his secretary and Miss Frances O'Rourke as his private stenographer, both having been connected with the Health Department.

"I feel very proud at being selected by the Mayor for this position," he said. "I feel that I will have much to live up to to keep the pace set by my predecessor, Dr. Copeland. I can appreciate his success in public health work in this city I will have accomplished much indeed. I can only promise to do my best for the citizens of New York."

SENATE REPUBLICANS MAP OUT PROGRAM

To Fight Walker Primary Bill, Minimum Wage for Women— Oppose Censorship Repeal.

ALBANY, March 7.—Republican Senators will oppose the Walker direct primary measure, the eight-hour day and minimum wage for women proposals and the repeal of the Motion Picture Censorship law, Senator Clayton R. Lusk, minority leader, announced tonight at the close of a long conference at which pending legislation was discussed.

The Republican minority will support its compromise bill instead of the Walker measure, but will vote as individuals on the Lockwood bills, it was announced.

The Republican direct primary measure provides for selection of organization candidates at conventions and increases requirements under which independent candidates may enter the lists.

HYLAN SNUBS CRAIG, CRAIG SNUBS HYLAN

DISAGREE ON BOND PLAN

Third Avenue Railway Attacked by Hylan for Seeking Bus Franchise for Grand Concourse.

Mayor Hylan, back at City Hall after a month's vacation at Palm Beach, and Controller Charles L. Craig met face to face yesterday for the first time since the row between the two officials began, but nothing happened. That is, there were no fireworks. The Mayor and the Controller merely ignored each other's presence, and although they sat side by side at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate, no one could mistake the coolness between the two.

The Mayor was talking to a friend in the City Hall corridor before the meeting when the Controller came along. The Mayor went on talking to his friend and the Controller, passing within a foot of him, mounted the stairs. There was no sign of recognition. Later when they took their seats there was no greeting.

After action upon a few routine motions, the Mayor expressed the hope that the Legislature would pass the amendment to the pay-as-you-go law which would permit the city to issue $15,000,000 long-term bonds annually for financing non-revenue producing improvements. Here the Controller showed his first interest in the proceedings. He said that such an act would destroy the city's subway program, and pointed out that the bonds would have to be charged against the city's debt limit.

"There is no necessity for this amendment," said the Controller. "If legislative leaders are prepared to affix an additional mill to the State school tax to meet teachers' salaries in this city. Under this plan the city will get an additional $12,000,000, or, in other words, the city's State tax, which usually runs to about $12,000,000, will be returned. Any issue of long term bonds must be charged against the city's debt limit and to do this would destroy the entire subway program."

The Mayor said that the city could enjoy both the amendment and the additional school tax legislation, as the city would not necessarily have to take advantage of the amendment just because it was on the statute books. "We must be ready for any eventualities," he said.

The Controller objected to giving Commissioner Grover A. Whalen of the Department of Plant and Structures, $75,000 for trackless trolleys, but was outvoted. The money, it was explained, was needed for the completion of the fifty trackless cars now in operation. The Controller wanted action delayed until the city's new Transportation Commission is named, which he said would be within the next few weeks, but the Mayor opposed postponement.

The Mayor opposed the purchase of the Bergen Building in the Bronx on the ground that the city would have to curtail its tax notes, redemption of which must be provided for in next year's budget. The building would cost $800,000 and would be used for a Bronx borough hall and county office building.

A petition for the operation of a bus line on the Grand Concourse, the Bronx, was made by Emil Leindorf of 31 East 136th Street, who had operated a bus line there until he was enjoined by the courts in an action brought by a taxpayer backed by the Third Avenue Railway system. The latter is also trying to obtain a franchise for a similar line. The Mayor was angry when he learned that the Third Avenue Railway had been behind the action against Leindorf.

"Why do you and your company resort of this sort of thing?" the Mayor asked of Edward A. Maher Jr., general counsel for the line. "You people ought to be ashamed of yourselves. I would not grant a franchise now to your company if it were the last act of my life."

Mr. Maher, however, asked for the franchise, and the Mayor shouted:

"I will have nothing to do with the Third Avenue Company."

"We have been trying for a year and a half to get a franchise," persisted Maher.

"We throw your application out of the window," shouted the Mayor. "You can't bulldoze me."

"I'm not trying to bulldoze you," said Maher.

"You won't be blackjacked," retorted the Mayor.

"Well," said Maher, "our suit was nothing more nor less than the proper assertion of a legal right. You have never considered our application. We contended that the Concourse Bus Company was not operated legally, and the Appellate Division sustained us."

HOPES TO PADLOCK 25 RUM CABARETS

Prohibition Attorney Canfield Has 500 Affidavits to Use in Suits for Injunction.

Owner Is William H. Anderson, but Is Not the Agent of the Anti-Saloon League.

Palmer Canfield, head of the legal division of the local prohibition office, said yesterday that action would be taken next month to close about twenty-five large cabarets and restaurants along Broadway for a period of one year under the injunction clause of the Volstead act. The cases are scheduled to come up for trial in Federal court next month. He said that there was evidence of at least one violation against each place and that some are known to have violated the law six or seven times. Affidavits have been procured, he said, both from Federal agents and policemen stationed in the premises. Prohibition agents have submitted 300 affidavits and 200 have been made by policemen.

According to Mr. Canfield, the prohibition agents have evidence against 2,000 places in the city to justify the institution of injunction proceedings, but the twenty-five most important will be handled first.

He said that he believed there would be no doubt of the result, using as a basis the ruling in the Reisenweber case. The old Reisenweber restaurant, more recently known as Paradise, at 981 Eighth Avenue, was recently closed for one year under the Volstead act. It was pointed out by Mr. Canfield that in the opinion of Judge Rogers of the Circuit Court of Appeals it was held that one violation was sufficient. He also remarked that three applications for the repeal or modification of the injunction order had been made, but each time refused by the court.

Izzy and Moe Raid Garage.

After yielding the limelight temporarily to others, Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith broke forth again yesterday and raided what is known as the William H. Anderson Garage, a two-story building at 528 East Twentieth Street, and seized a quantity of liquors. The owner of the garage, although having the same name, is not the William H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League of New York.

When Federal Prohibition Agents William McCay, Daniel Kenneally and John Mannix raided a candy store at 428 West Fifty-fourth Street yesterday, three young women fainted. They thought, they would be arrested, the agents said. McCay said that they bought a half pint of whisky in the place for $1. He said that three gallons of whisky were found in a back room. The owner, John Pike, and his clerk, Louis Bresiln, were arrested.

The same agents arrested Joseph Dunn, bartender, and Frank Greenberger, owner of a café at 1,483 Avenue A; Timothy Crowley, owner of a café at 1,807 Lexington Avenue; Max Smelinsky, owner of a candy store at 1,413 Second Avenue, and Frank Puma, owner, and Vito Valente, bartender, at 417 West Street.

Agents Kurzman, Simonson and Kanter yesterday arrested Annie Daubert, owner, and John Miller, bartender, of a café and restaurant at 2,500 Grand Concourse, the Bronx. They said they found twelve quarts of whisky, wine and gin on the premises.

Owing to the illness of Thomas B. Felder, chief counsel for the defendants, the trial of ex-Judge Harold L. Hart, formerly Federal Prohibition Director; William Orr, once secretary to ex-Governor Whitman, and others charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government and violate the Volstead act, did not go on yesterday. It is likely to resume this morning.

NEW YORK BEER PLEA SENT TO CONGRESSMEN

Letters From Gov. Smith, Calling Attention to Legislative Action, Reach Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Copies of the beer and wine resolution adopted by the New York Legislature were received by members of Congress today.

Previous reports had indicated that Governor Smith intended to withhold the resolution until the next session of Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 7.—It was learned tonight that Governor Smith, anticipating an attack in the Assembly for failure to forward the Walker-Donohue resolution, calling on Congress to legalize light wines and beer, had already affixed his signature to the resolution, and had copies sent to all members of the new Senate and House of Representatives, as well as to President Harding, and some members of the President's official household.

The resolution was signed by Governor Smith on Monday afternoon when the life of the old Congress had expired. Its adoption was in pursuance of the only pledge contained in the Democratic State platform in relation to prohibition.

Right Upheld to Rob Wife Of Cash She Took as He Slept

Because he maintained he could not legally be said to have stolen from his wife money which she had first taken from his trousers pockets while he slept, Tony Alessio of 723 Glenmore Avenue, Brooklyn, was discharged from custody yesterday by Magistrate O'Neill in the New Jersey Avenue Court, Brooklyn. A charge of disorderly conduct brought against Alessio by his wife, Serafina, was dismissed.

She had alleged that two weeks ago he struck her and snatched from her hand a purse containing $18, her wedding ring and another ring, as she was about to board a Fulton Street elevated train at Linwood Street, Brooklyn. The husband asserted that the money was his own. After this incident the couple separated.

FIVE STATES FIGHT POISONOUS LIQUOR

DRIVE FOR ENFORCEMENT

More Than a Dozen Mid-Western States Considering Steps to Strengthen Prohibition Laws.

CHICAGO, March 7 (Associated Press).—Five mid-western State Legislatures have passed or are considering bills to punish sale of intoxicants that cause death. The penalty imposed is either a murder or a manslaughter sentence, and in some cases applies equally to liquor given away.

The drive against poisonous liquor is the common denominator of all the legislation proposed to strengthen prohibition laws in more than a dozen mid-western States, most of which are entering important active sessions this week.

In Kansas a bill is pending to make it murder to sell or to give away intoxicants that cause death. In Oklahoma a similar measure, with the murder penalty for selling or giving away, already is a law. In Iowa the Senate has passed a bill making the sale of such liquor manslaughter. In Ohio a bill has been passed and signed making the furnishing of such liquor second degree murder.

Michigan has pending a bill making sale of liquor that causes death manslaughter, while in Indiana a bill making the penalty murder for selling or giving away fatal liquor has been indefinitely postponed.

Other legislation embraces a variety of proposed enforcement laws, with few instances of wet activity. In Wisconsin wets have announced that they propose to try to make it illegal to search for liquor, except upon absolute knowledge of manufacture for sale, and they have considered memorializing Congress to modify the Volstead act.

Minnesota has pending a joint resolution to ask Congress not to modify the Volstead law.

North Dakota has adopted laws to aid in State enforcement similar to Volstead measures. Physicians have been limited to a total of five gallons of liquor each year for prescription.

The Missouri Legislature has on hand several proposed enforcement measures, one to make it a felony to possess a weapon that might inflict bodily injury while transporting liquor unlawfully.

Possession, in Oklahoma, of any apparatus for manufacture of liquor, except by proper license, is a felony under a bill enacted at the present session.

Texas has several measures pending, including one for removal of State officers if intoxicated on or off duty. Nebraska has pending a bill to prohibit possession of intoxicants, and another making the destruction of bottles or other containers during arrest prima facie evidence of violation of liquor laws.

A proposed law in Iowa making the purchaser equally guilty with the seller was killed by the Senate, which has adopted a bill to seize vehicles transporting liquor.

The Illinois wets have pending a proposal to repeal State prohibition regulation acts.

GOV. HARDWICK ACCEPTS WAR FRAUD BOARD POST

Georgia Executive Will Take Office at the Close of His Term in June.

ATLANTA, March 7.—Governor Thomas W. Hardwick announced here today that he would accept an appointment as special United States Attorney General at the expiration of his terms as Governor of Georgia in June.

In a statement today announcing his acceptance of the appointment the Governor said:

"The position in question is special assistant to the Attorney General on the Advisory Board of the War Transaction Section of the Department of Justice for the investigation and prosecution of fraud cases growing out of the war.

"The appointment is strictly and purely a professional one, and the board is bi-partisan and non-political, my immediate predecessor being former Senator Thomas of Colorado, a Democrat.

"At an early date I shall go to Washington for a consultation with my colleagues, and I hope to be able to begin my service there on July 1."

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Thomas S. Crago, Republican, retiring Representative-at-Large from Pennsylvania, has been appointed as one of the Special Assistants to the Attorney General assigned to the handling of war fraud cases.

Mr. Crago and Governor Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia are expected to take important places on the corps of war fraud prosecutors recently vacated by resignations. Ex-Senator Charles Thomas of Colorado and several others assigned to this work have severed their connection with the Department of Justice within the last few months, but the appointments announced today were taken as indicating that Attorney General Daugherty planned to permit of no let-down in the department's inquiry into war contracts.

In all about 250 attorneys, all with the rank of Special Assistant Attorney General, now are in the corps assigned to the investigation and prosecution of war frauds.

Alberta Prohibits Liquor Exports.

EXPECTS AIRSHIPS TO MAP THE WORLD

Stefansson Says Exploration of the Future Will Be by Aviation.

WRANGELL ISLAND A KEY

Explorer Says It Will Be Vital to Great Britain and Canada.

FINDS POLAR TRIP FEASIBLE

Big Navy Dirigible Is Three-Fourths Finished and Will Be Ready on Time.

The 680-foot dirigible ZR-1, which is to carry American naval officers and crews over the North and South Poles, according to Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, is more than three-fourths built and will be ready for service on July 1, it was learned yesterday at Lakehurst, N. J. where the giant flyer is under construction.

The engines are now being tested by the Packard Company in Detroit. Its 2,000,000 cubic feet of helium will be carried in eighteen gas bags.

The dirigible trip over the North and South Poles is perfectly feasible and is bound to be made in the near future, according to Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer and author of "The Friendly Arctic" and other books on the Far North.

It was the certainty that such trips were soon to be made and were to continue that caused Mr. Stefansson to retire from his life-work of exploring and pioneering in the Arctic. The remaining work of writing in the detail on the blank spaces on the map of the world will be accomplished by photography from dirigibles and the explorer's occupation is gone, according to Mr. Stefansson. Scientists will continue to make intensive surveys of little-known localities. But discoveries in the few remaining unexplored regions are all to be accomplished incidentally as a by-product of air travel, according to Mr. Stefansson.

Wrangell Island a Key Point.

The explorer, who is a Canadian and who two years ago sent a party to Wrangell Island in the Arctic north of Siberia to occupy it as a British air base, discussed its strategic value yesterday. With further development of flying, Mr. Stefansson asserted that Wrangell would become the key point of air strategy in the Arctic. On the question of transpolar air commerce, Mr. Stefansson said:

"In crossing the Atlantic the dirigible or any flying craft has to compete with ocean liners, but in crossing the polar area there is no competition with ships of any form of transport except for the possible development of the submarine which has been suggested by various writers, including Simon Lake and myself.

"If you look on a globe you will see that the shortest route between Great Britain and Japan lies across the North Polar area. The difference in distance between that route and the shortest railway and steamer route by the Transsiberian railway is about 3,000 miles.

"Then, in the Summer, there are other advantages. Perhaps the most important is continued daylight. If you leave England in the early morning, going north, you will reach the region of the midnight sun before your first sunset. You will not leave the continual daylight until you approach Japan, so that even at the speed no greater than that of the R-34 there will be only one night's darkness in the whole journey, and by careful manoeuvring you would probably avoid even that.

Engine Tests a Success.

"This will have a practical advantage in any kind of traffic including tourist. The second point is that the jumps are all short, the longest being less than 400 miles between possible supply stations, incidentally, an important advantage of continuous daylight is the prevention of loss of gas.

"Years from now, when Siberia and Canada are combined to a great extent, the air communication will be much more important. The development will be of immediate importance to Alaska, Canada and Northern Europe and Japan."

Commander R. Weyerbacher, who is in charge of the construction of the dirigible at Lakehurst, said yesterday that part of the gasoline system had already been installed and that the tests of the engines so far had been highly satisfactory.

Each of the six engines will have six cylinders. The gasoline supply tanks will be detachable, and additional tanks may be placed on the dirigible for long trips. A special composition will be sprayed to the gas bag, structure, engines and gas tanks to offset air frictional resistance.

The gas bag will be made of goldbeaters' skin, made from the intestines of cattle, and will be especially treated to resist weather conditions. The structure of the airship will be duraluminum, which also will be treated in the same manner as the gas bag to resist the weather. Work was started on the dirigible April 6 last. When completed the ZR-1 will be piloted on preliminary tests by Commander F. R. McCrary, who will in all probability also pilot the airship on the proposed polar expeditions.

The hangar in which the dirigible is being built was constructed especially for this purpose. A German dirigible, of approximately the same size as the ZR-1, is expected to arrive here from Germany, as part of the reparations payment, on July 1, and both airships will be housed in this one big hangar.

Officials at the Naval Air Station said they were not surprised at Rear Admiral Moffett's statement that the navy would attempt a conquest of the Poles by air. They said such an intimation had already been made by naval officials in Washington, and expressed the belief that the ZR-1 would be fully capable of such expeditions.

HER RECORD FEVER PERSISTS

Miss Lyons's Temperature Is Still Above 114 After Two Weeks.

ESCANABA, Mich., March 7.—Dr. Harry D. Defnet, in charge of the case of Miss Evelyn Lyons, whose temperature of more than 114 degrees for more than two weeks has attracted the attention of the medical profession, gave her temperature tonight as 114.5. The young woman's pulse was given as 120, blood pressure, 122; respiration, 36; appetite, fair; mentality, normal.

Dr. Defnet stated that reports given out last night that Miss Lyons's temperature has reached 118, when the special thermometer was broken, were not authentic and were not given out by him. The clinical thermometer used by him was broken, but that was not unusual through rapid expansion, he said.

"The highest absolute record that may be taken as authentic was reached last night, when the temperature registered 115 by a special thermometer loaned to me by the local weather bureau," the doctor said.

Raw Silk Spot Stocks Less.

Stocks of raw silk on hand in the principal local warehouses on March 1 totaled 44,615 bales, according to figures issued yesterday by the Statistical Bureau of the Silk Association of America. This was made up of 34,825 bales of Japanese silk, 980 of European and 8,990 of the "all other" category. It compares with 47,697 bales on hand Feb. 1. Approximate deliveries to domestic mills for the past month were 36,231 bales, comprising 24,523 of Japanese, 1,176 of European and 10,218 of "all others." Imports during the month were 33,776 bales, of which 32,302 were of Japanese origin, 1,234 of European and 10,474 of "all others."

Demand for Scottish Woolens.

A substantial increase in American demand for Scottish woolens is reported in the first annual review of the Scottish Woolen Trade Mark Association, made public yesterday. In addition to the clothing manufacturers who used these fabrics in their lines in the past twenty more have purchased the goods for their Fall men's and women's wear lines. It is said to be safe to say that a Scottish mill sold $40,000 worth of one range alone to be used for garments for the next season. The demand is said to have increased substantially since September advertising began, and many of the large manufacturers of general clothing lines as well as sports garments have adopted the association's label.

The Newest in Millinery.

A number of things have come to light in the millinery trade in the last few days. One of these is the fact that it now no doubt that almond green will be the color supreme for Spring. In the way of trimmings the newest things include the veiling of flower trims with lace, the appearance of the Egyptian note in stone-effect decorations and the use of colored facings on navy blue tailored hats, the employment of elaborate imported ribbon garnitures and the use of tortoise curves in place of tulip pin trims. In the materials layers of shirred maline are now used to make entire hats, but the "best buys" of the moment are milan straw or transparent hair models. The basic silhouette is supplied by the so-called Watteau line.

Gray Goods Still Drag.

There was little, if any, more snap visible to trading in the local gray goods market yesterday than on Tuesday. In the printcloth sales were included spot lots of 39-inch 48-72s at 12¾ cents, spot second-hand lots of 39½ inch 64-60s at 11¾ cents, and some "quick" Southern 38½-inch 60-48s at 11¾ cents. First hands were asking 11¾ cents for their 64-60s. Other printcloth business of the day included some spot 39-inch 72-76s at 13½ cents. Sheetings were featureless at unchanged prices, with contracts of 40-inch 2.85-yard cloths sold at 17¼ cents. The best that could be done on 72-80 pajama checks was 12¼ cents, and spot business in good makes of 39-inch 4.20-yard sateens was reported at 19 cents.

Shoe Men Marking Time.

Pending the coming and going of Easter, there are few signs of activity in the local shoe trade. In both the men's and women's branches, buyers are marking time as such, and are giving over the great bulk of their energies to selling. The manufacturing end of the trade is engaged in rushing through belated deliveries in time for the pre-Easter consumer buying. Indications point to good business for the retailers despite the earliness with which Easter comes this year, and it is expected that the producing end of the trade will be kept busy for some time filling the stocks that will be broken by consumer purchasers. The outlook for Fall business is said to be bright by manufacturers who have cast an eye that far ahead.

Vogue of Deauville Kerchief.

Much interest is in the question of whether the current popularity of the bandanna or Deauville kerchief has lasting qualities. There are some who say the vogue is a fad that will not last into the Fall. Others are more hopeful and claim to see that the bandanna has possibilities of becoming a smart requisite in women's apparel. They say the gaiety of the colors and patterns will favor it for a long time and that in its newer forms it should find similar lasting favor here. In any event, wholesalers are busy bringing out new patterns in the kerchiefs. The latest are the high color effects worked in with gold threads, and in itself an indication of good business. Flexible platinum bracelets set with diamonds and other precious stones continue to move well, the sales including many pieces ranging in value from $200 to wholesale to more than ten times that amount. Reports from the East also tell of good business, and sales and prospects in the South are said to be very good.

Says Egyptian Vogue Will Last.

The view that the vogue of things Egyptian in the garment trades will not last very long is not subscribed to by M. Mossessohn, Executive Chairman of the United Women's Wear League of America. "While the opposite opinion naturally bears some weight," he said yesterday, "there are many reasons why the Egyptian mode should continue in popularity for at least a full season. In the first place, it was well established some time before the Tut-ankh-Amen discoveries. The opening of the present Spring season among the manufacturers, before the end of 1922, brought out strong Egyptian tendencies. In the waist trade these types of blouses had met with much popularity from the time of their introduction, but the publicity attending the discoveries gave their sale considerable impetus. The second opening of the tomb several months hence will no doubt do much to keep the vogue alive, as well as to preserve the advertising value of the name of Tut-ankh-Amen."

Retail Credit Men Meet.

The talk at the tables, which was led by Alexander Hamilton, of New York City, was followed by a general discussion. Among the speakers were Walter A. Staub, of Staub's, Inc., and Harry Gordon, of Gordon & Ferguson.

Prices of Woolens and Worsteds.

The matter of further price advances on the heavyweight lines is shelved for the time being. Hints were frequently encountered when the lines were opened that it would only be a question of a short time before they were withdrawn and replaced at higher prices. Actually, however, there have been comparatively few announcements of withdrawals by the independents, although they have booked a large business. Some concerns are still holding their lines open for all of the customers they sold to during the last season. No important lines have been offered at higher prices yet, and the sales agent of a prominent mill said yesterday his present plans did not contemplate such action until possibly May or June. A few questioning spirits seem dubious as to whether the present levels will hold, but they are very much in the minority.

Jewelry Sales Show Up Well.

Little fault is to be found with the condition of business in the jewelry trade at the present time. Sales since Jan. 1 continue to run substantially ahead of those made in the same period a year ago, and in some instances the increase approximates at least a third. The demand is especially active in the Pacific Coast region, and as luxury has the retailers for merchandise there that they are again asking deliveries from the salesmen's sample cases. This is particularly true of platinum ring mountings and similar mountings partly set with diamonds, and is itself an indication of good business. Flexible platinum bracelets set with diamonds and other precious stones continue to move well, the sales including many pieces ranging in value from $200 at wholesale to more than ten times that amount. Reports from the East also tell of good business, and sales and prospects in the South are said to be very good.

UNION'S SOVIET AIMS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Officers of Amalgamated Clothing Workers Will Be Examined Before Trial.

The revolutionary aims of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and aspirations toward sovietizing the clothing industry in the United States will be among the subjects touched upon at the examination before trial of the officers of the union, it was learned yesterday. The examination will be conducted by Maurice Deiches, counsel to Marks Arnheim, Inc., clothiers. The date of the examination has not been fixed, but it will take place in a week or ten days in the office of Deiches & Goldwater, 63 Wall Street.

The examination is part of a controversy between the clothing firm and the union which goes back to the strike and lock-out of 1921. Examination of the officers of Marks Arnheim will precede the examination of the union officials. Among the officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to be questioned are Sidney Hillman, President; Joseph Schlossberg, Secretary; Peter Monat, Treasurer of the New York Joint Board of the Amalgamated, and a group of other officers, including former Assemblyman A. I. Shipiscoff and Jacob S. Potofsky.

Marks Arnheim is attempting to have the union and the New York Joint Board dissolved as "unlawful combinations and conspiracies."

Among the points on which the union officers are to be examined are the following:

The conditions surrounding the organization of the union, its constitution and fundamental purposes.

The collection of a $1,000,000 strike fund for the purpose of "destroying plaintiff's business."

The "conspiracy and unlawful combination * * * with the intent and purpose generally of destroying the present industrial system of ownership by private persons, firms and corporations of the businesses, factories and all other means for production of clothing in the United States of America, and particularly in the City of New York, and particularly with the intent and for the purpose of destroying the ownership by the plaintiff of its clothing business, the good-will and trade name thereof."

TO EXTEND ELECTRIFICATION

Baldwin and Westinghouse Companies to Revise Agreement.

The several-years-old agreement between the Baldwin Locomotive Company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, which called for co-operation in the manufacture of electric locomotives, will be extended along revised lines, according to officials of these companies, because of the greatly increased demand for electric locomotives. The business has not kept pace with this demand.

It is predicted that orders for electric locomotives will be especially large in foreign countries where hydro-electric development is in progress. The movement is expected to expand for the purpose of economy of operation as well.

The American Locomotive Company recently entered into a similar agreement with the General Electric Company.

BUILDERS FORESEE BUYERS' BOYCOTT

A "buyers' strike" in the building material business is inevitable if the trend to higher prices continues, says the Associated General Contractors of America, in a statement yesterday to the Federated American Engineering Societies asking the aid of the engineering profession in meeting what the building contractors described as "an alarming situation." The entire list that has to do with construction throughout the country is affected by climbing costs, it is asserted in the statement, which is signed by Richard C. Marshall Jr., who, as Brigadier General, was in charge of the Construction Division of the War Department during the war.

The problem of seasonal demand is also assuming "serious proportions," according to the contractors, who seek the appointment of an engineering committee to set in motion a nation-wide co-operative movement to overcome the difficulty.

Responding to the contractors' appeals, the Federated American Engineering Societies yesterday adopted a resolution to study the problems. Dean Mortimer E. Cooley of the University of Michigan, President of the Federation, was authorized to appoint a committee if he thought it was necessary "to co-operate with some authoritative agency such as the American Construction Council or the Associated General Contractors of America." The American Construction Council was recently organized to take over the general problems of the industry, with Franklin D. Roosevelt at its head.

The seasonal demand of construction for labor, materials and transportation, which reaches its peak in late Summer coincident with the seasonal peak of many other industries, has created a shortage of all of these items each year," said the statement of the contractors. "In the construction field we believe that the only effective remedy for the situation lies in lengthening the construction season as much as possible and in performing all work possible during the Winter season."

MAY COTTON SELLS ABOVE 31 1-4 CENTS

New High Prices Are Recorded for the Second Time in One Week.

For the second time this week new high prices were recorded in cotton. Yesterday's rise came as a direct result of aggressive buying in the May position, which advanced the level half a cent amid considerable excitement. An extensive hedge is outstanding, some of it against higher grade cotton for which the demand is less active than for cheaper varieties. The higher prices advance, the more mills would prefer to secure cotton selling at a discount under middling than pay premiums. While May rose steadily, later months came under selling pressure, so that both October and December ended at a net loss. Further rains in the cotton belt make one of the best seasons in the ground in some years. Spot quotations were advanced 25 to 40 points at various Southern markets but sales were light. Final prices showed a gain of 40 points on May compared with a loss of 19 on December.

The usual trade calling which occurs at the opening each day not only advanced March to 30.88 but pushed May above 31 cents. An active demand for July prevailed during the call with 30.39 paid before all buying orders were executed. But new crop months again came under pressure on a basis of 27 cents for October and immediately after the opening so many contracts for Fall delivery appeared in the ring that prices declined steadily for two hours. This selling was accompanied by extensive profit taking in July, bringing a reaction of 30 points before cotton was all absorbed. Several times during the morning lines of May contracts came on the market but without weakening that position. Spot interests, that began the purchase of May and sale of July on Tuesday at less than 60 points, increased the scale of operations.

With spot cotton reported difficult to buy at advanced prices and levels considerably above a deliverable basis in New York, the scarcity of May contracts became more evident during the afternoon. Interests with hedges in that month were inclined to cover obligations and put them forward into July. This demand for May started a sharp upturn after midday, bringing levels to the highest figures of the season.

The last hour brought some of the heaviest trading of the past few weeks. With May in new high territory, large speculative buying orders made their appearance. May had risen over 31.15 when one broker started the purchase of between 10,000 and 20,000 bales. Before the order was completed May touched 31.35, half a cent up on the day, though October was 15 points under the previous close. This late buying seemed to be centred in one or two quarters, without attracting general outside following. New Orleans advanced with New York; March there selling at the same price as New York, while July rose within 10 points of the same position here compared with a 25-point difference earlier in the day.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous day.
March	30.89	31.00	30.81	31.00	30.75
May	31.03	31.35	30.77	31.27-30	30.87
July	30.58	30.88	30.04	30.34-35	30.16
October	27.15	27.35	26.85	27.00	27.00
December	26.50	26.61	26.16	26.35	26.54

The local market for spot cotton was steady, 20 points advance, to 31.20c for middling upland.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston 31.40c, 30 points advance; New Orleans 31c, 25 points advance; Savannah 31c, 49 points advance; Norfolk 31c, 37 points advance; Memphis 31c, 25 points advance; Houston 31.30c, 30 points advance; Little Rock 30.25c, 25 points advance.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

On the Stock Exchange the collision of professional speculators for the advance and the decline continued, with alternating reaction and recovery in the general market and with net gains and losses for the day pretty evenly distributed. The extent to which it was manifestly what might be called a "personally conducted" market deprived it of any great significance. Many of the day's changes were of considerable scope, but even these were as often declines as advances. Practically all of the movement was in the more speculative industrial shares.

Among the other incidents of the day was a further rise in spot cotton to 31.26 cents a pound; a week ago it had barely crossed 30. Since the time is now probably near at hand when the Government's stations will be reporting on the indications for or against another season of destructive insect pests, the cotton market's present prices are evidently doing some bold "discounting." It is by no means a certainty that the alarming forecast of a year ago will be repeated. If it is not, then calculations of the next crop will cut a far more important figure in the market.

No response to the German Chancellor's brushing aside of the idea of negotiation with France was visible in the markets. The German mark advanced to the highest rate since Feb. 19; but movements of the mark just now reflect nothing but the Reichsbank's momentary whim or policy in use of its foreign exchange bills to manipulate the price. Paris exchange was a trifle lower, yet the French Republic 8 per cents got back again to the highest price reached since the march into the Ruhr.

In view of the recent somewhat exaggerated talk of Federal Reserve rediscount rates and immediate tightening in the money market, the terms named yesterday by the Treasury for its new short-term borrowing have particular interest. Since 1919 these six-months or one-year loans have given extremely accurate indication of the real state of the credit market; ranging as they did from a twelve-months loan at 6 per cent. in December, 1920, down to a similar loan at 4½ exactly a year later and to others at 3¾ per cent. last June and September. That was the low mark. The one-year borrowing of last December carried 4 per cent.; yesterday's tender with a similar maturity carried 4½.

Some allowance must naturally be made for the scope of the Government's impending operations. But this very consideration adds force to the inferences which will be drawn from the fact that, with all the magnitude of approaching maturities, Secretary Mellon's new offer should have raised the rate only to 4½ per cent. on the full year's borrowing, and no higher than 4¼ on a six-months loan. No lower rates than these were fixed in the whole of 1921.

Since increase or decrease in a country's rate of iron production is traditionally taken as evidence of the state of trade, yesterday's report of The Iron Age, that the average daily output in the United States was the largest ever reached in a February, is striking. Probably it sounds more impressive than just that comparison would warrant. But the achievement of a "February record" is at least significant and so is the other comparison, showing that no month has reached as high a pace of iron production since March, 1920. It is true, also, that in six out of the eight past years since the war began, increase in iron output at the beginning of a year meant continuing expansion. That last month's rate of production should have been greater by 85 per cent. than in February, 1922, and nearly four times the output of July, 1921, is witness to the rapidity of the recent American trade recovery.

MAKES A RECORD GAIN.

General Gas and Electric Income Totals $13,450,988.

Operating revenues and other income of the General Gas and Electric Corporation and its subsidiaries for 1922 amounted to $16,600,806, a record. Consolidated earnings for the subsidiary companies, after payment of interest and dividends on the securities not held by the corporation, were $1,223,851. During the period $2,930,853 was set aside out of earnings for maintenance and depreciation, while operating expenses and taxes were $6,026,676 of the gross and rentals were $998,000. After allowance for all expenses and taxes and interest on $7,500,000 bonds retained, there is approximately six times the annual dividend requirements for the Class A numerative participating preferred stock, now on an $8 basis. Consolidated earnings for last January show a considerable increase over the same period in 1922. The gross was $1,600,767, an increase of $198,925 over the corresponding month in 1922. Net operating income was $356,-000, a gain of $114,400 over January, 1922.

PLAN TO SEPARATE UTILITY PROPERTIES

CONTROLS PHILADELPHIA CO.

Program Involves Exchange of Stock and New Bond Issue of $10,000,000.

The First National Bank and the Chase National Bank, with associates, yesterday concluded the final step in the recapitalization of the United Railways Investment Company, which controls the Philadelphia Company, for the purpose of segregating different public utility properties in San Francisco and Pittsburgh owned variously between the two companies. The recapitalization plan involves a new issue of bonds amounting to approximately $10,000,000, which will be put out on a 6 to 7 per cent. basis, as well as an issue of new preferred stock.

The United Railways Investment Company controls the Philadelphia Company through ownership of 57 per cent., or $24,475,000 of its outstanding common stock. The properties of the former company include the California Railway and Power Company, the Railroads and Power Development Company, a substantial amount of the preferred, second preferred and common stock of the Market Street Railway Company of San Francisco, as well as extensive holdings of other tractions and public utilities in San Francisco. In addition, through the Philadelphia Company, it controls public utilities in and around Pittsburgh, chief among which is the Duquesne Power Company.

It is the purpose of the bankers, in working out the recapitalization plan, to separate the properties in San Francisco and Pittsburgh into individual corporate entities and to accomplish this it is proposed that the United Railways Investment Company shall sell its $24,475,000 of common stock of the Philadelphia Company to a new company which is being organized, taking in payment common and preferred stocks held by the Philadelphia Company.

As an additional part of this program the bankers are planning to issue about $10,000,000 of new bonds and a block of preferred stock for the purpose of taking care of $14,000,000 of United Railways Investment Company (Pittsburgh issue), first lien collateral trust 5 per cent. bonds, which are due May 1, 1928. Officials of the two banks explained that final details of the new financing have not yet been arranged.

Everett B. Sweezy, Vice President of the First National Bank, who was recently appointed Chairman of the Bondholders' Committee of the United Railways Investment Company, is handling the negotiations for his bank, while Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank, is acting for that institution. B. S. Guinness of Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., and a director of both the Philadelphia Company and the United Railways Investment Company, also is one of the principals in the plan. It is expected that several other banking institutions in New York and other cities will be associated in the final work of handling the new financing.

Mr. Sweezy will present to the bondholders' committee today a report of the findings of the bankers. It is expected the final draft of the recapitalization plan will soon be made public.

Business

The Company does the greater part of the commercial electric light and power business in the Puget Sound district and through subsidiaries a part of the electric railway business, serving a population exceeding 670,000.

Property

The system includes hydro-electric plants with an installed generating capacity of 121,000 Hp. reserve steam plants of 51,500 Hp. and an extensive transmission and distribution system. The street and interurban railways aggregate 295 miles of equivalent single track.

Balance for Reserves, Replacements and Dividends	2,641,951

Purpose of Issue

The proceeds from the sale of this issue of $2,000,000 prior preference stock will be applied against the recent purchase of Washington Coast Utilities and North Coast Power Company, and for the construction of transmission lines connecting with these properties. These Companies extend the territory tributary to the Puget Sound Power & Light Company's system East to the Columbia River and on the coast South to the State line.

The balance after interest charges is over five times the dividend requirements on the outstanding 7% Prior Preference stock including this issue. The above figures do not cover operation of the new properties, which had gross earnings of about $1,200,000 and net earnings of over $450,000 in 1922. The market value of the securities junior to the Prior Preference stock is about $23,000,000.

All legal matters in connection with Puget Sound Power & Light Company and the validity of its issues of securities have been examined and passed upon by Messrs. Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt of Boston.

The properties have been under Stone & Webster management for over twenty years.

These Bonds are the direct obligation of the San Antonio Joint Stock Land Bank. They are collaterally secured by deposit with the registrar of the Federal Farm Loan Bureau of the United States Treasury Department, of either United States Government Bonds or Certificates of Indebtedness, or of Federally approved first mortgages on productive farms appraised by Federal appraisers at values at least 100% in excess of the mortgages thereon, which equity is steadily increased by semi-annual amortization of the mortgages.

These Bonds are issued under the provisions of the Federal Farm Loan Act on the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board; are engraved by the Treasury Department, and bear upon their face the provisions of the act whereby: "Farm Loan Bonds, issued under the provisions of this act, shall be deemed and held to be instrumentalities of the Government of the United States, and as such they and the income derived therefrom shall be exempt from all Federal, State, Municipal and Local Taxation."

The Supreme Court of the United States, by decision rendered February 28, 1921, fully sustained the constitutionality of this Act, and the tax exemption features of these bonds.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sharp Advance in German Marks Features a Dull and Irregular Market.

The outstanding feature of the foreign exchange market yesterday was the advance in German marks from .0046 cent on the previous day to .0049¾ cent. In other directions the market was irregular, hesitant and generally receded to lower prices than were current on the previous day. The movement in German marks was again engineered from Berlin, but this time through London. London was a particularly heavy buyer of mark exchange, wherever offered for sale yesterday, and it had the effect of bringing about a quick upturn in the exchange. Francs and sterling were irregular, but renewed offering brought them down a bit and about the best that could be said for the whole market was that it was irregular and more or less featureless. The pressure of commercial bills is not heavy at the moment and dealers do not anticipate that it will be heavy within the next fortnight. Some of the Scandinavian exchanges exhibited a tendency to rally yesterday, after their recent decline.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

STOCK PROFITS

Why do people invest, or rather speculate, in "fly-by-nights", oil stocks, mining shares, industrial plants, which the original owners have milked dry, and various other questionable corporate stocks with the almost vain hopes of large profits, when an investment is open to them in shares of corporations upon which they can realize from 25 to 50 per cent. per annum, and be as near certain of the safety of their principal as human probability can provide for?

On another page of this issue will be found a tabulation of the prices of 25 bank and trust company stocks in the City of New York, along with a computation of the profits for one year on an investment in each of them.

It may sound ridiculous to the casual investor who is receiving 4½ or 5 per cent. on his investments or on his savings, to assert that on a bank stock trade completed in one year he could net a profit up to 54 per cent., but such is a proven fact in two of the instances cited in the tabulation.

Furthermore, it must be remembered that these banking corporations are all under either Federal or State supervision and are rigidly examined as to their constant solvency. They must make public at stated intervals their true condition, so that an investor in the stock may know the exact book value of his investment, and the marketability of these shares will compare favorably with any Stock Exchange security.

The unusual losses concomitant with the war and its aftermath have probably all been provided for by this time, and a period has arrived when banks can be conducted in a more normal and a more profitable manner.

It therefore seems reasonable to presume that in 1923 the prices of these shares will advance at least as much as they did in 1922, and a wise choice in the purchase of some of these shares at present prices should net the investor handsome profits.

PIG IRON AND STEEL ADVANCE IN PRICE

MATERIAL SCARCITY FELT

Expansion in Automobile Production and Building Is Approaching a Barrier, Says Iron Age.

Pig iron, semi-finished steel and finished steel products prices advanced to new levels during last week, according to the summaries of business conditions published by the leading trade publications. The Iron Age reports the finished steel composite price has advanced to 2.674 cents a pound, against 2.631 cents in the previous week. The pig iron composite price is now $28.77 a ton, against $27.79 last week, which was the same level reported since last November. The demand for the various products continues on a tremendous scale, and the new business accepted by the various companies is limited to their ability to produce the goods.

"Expansion in automobile production and in building work is approaching the barrier of material scarcity," says the journal. "High prices are given as the reason for the postponement of a 16,000-ton hotel project in Chicago, but inability to get deliveries is the chief difficulty in most cases of the kind. Other than primary producers are numbered among those withdrawing from the market pending a reduction of obligations and the return of more normal conditions. The long-continued pressure of buying in the Central West, extending to the East, has unmistakably accelerated price advances."

The paper points out that an order for 50,000 tons of steel billets was placed at $45 a ton, an advance of $5 a ton. Bars, plates and shapes are now more difficult to get at a 2.35-cent price Pittsburgh base. A leading maker of pipe will accept oil and line pipe orders only on a basis of prices in effect at the time of shipment. Farm machinery makers are now operating close to 70 per cent. of capacity, the best rate reported since 1920.

The Iron Trade Review says, in part: "Due to the Ruhr situation, the export market has completely reversed itself, to the benefit of American producers. The demand for American iron and steel at higher prices from all parts of the world is heavy.

"February further extended the steady gain in pig iron production, with an average daily output of 106,779 tons, compared with 104,136 tons in January. This is the highest daily rate since March, 1920. The total output, because of the shorter month, was less, with 2,989,819 tons, against 3,228,226 tons in January. Furnaces in blast at the end of February increased to 278, a gain of 17."

ALL FEBRUARY RECORDS BROKEN IN IRON OUTPUT

Last Month's Production Largest of Any Month Since March, 1920.

The Iron Age reports production of iron in the United States during February to have reached the highest figure on record for that month. Daily production last month averaged 106,935 tons, as compared with 104,181 tons in January and 88,214 tons in February, 1922. The last time the average of February was reached was in March, 1920, when the daily output averaged 106,900 tons.

From that figure the daily average fell to 87,222 tons in December of the same year and to 77,889 in July, 1921. That was the low point of the business reaction following the war, and was the lowest of any month in more than eighteen years. No lower average output had been reported between that date and December, 1903, when the daily average reached 27,312 tons.

From a letter of Mr. John G. Hayes, President of the Company, we summarize as follows:

Business: The Superior Anthracite Coal Company, organized under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania, has acquired the property and assets of the Nay Aug No. 2, Frisbie and Slope Mountain Coal Mines, consisting of a total of 1,063 acres of anthracite coal lands, a part of which is owned in fee and the balance under a perpetual lease on a very advantageous royalty. The Nay Aug No. 2 and Frisbie properties form a continuous body of coal land comprising 1,040 acres located near Carbondale, County of Lackawanna, Pa., in the northern anthracite coal fields, and are reached by the Erie, Delaware & Hudson and New York, Ontario and Western railroads. The Slope Mountain Colliery is located at Shamokin, Northumberland County, Pa., on the Philadelphia and Reading R. R. The properties owned and controlled by this company are all in virgin territory and contain proven coal of excellent quality. The Collieries, which are modern in every respect, being completed within the past year, are electrically equipped and comprise breakers, separators, washeries, powerhouse, machine shops, electrical and steam locomotives, cars, narrow gauge railway lines, pumps, compressors and all appurtenances necessary for the successful operation of the mine.

This equipment is sufficient for an annual output of 300,000 tons of coal, and through improvements to be made from the proceeds of this financing, the capacity will be greatly enlarged.

Security: These bonds will be a direct, first mortgage on all the property of this company now owned or hereafter acquired. According to the report of Messrs. Stevenson & Knight, mining engineers of Scranton, Pa., who have examined and appraised the properties of the company, the coal lands alone have a sound value of $2,291,350 or more than 4½ times the amount of the bonds presently being issued and approximately three times the total amount of bonds authorized. This figure does not include any value for equipment or other assets of the company.

The Engineers estimate that the properties contain over 7,612,000 tons of recoverable coal, exclusive of the property not developed, which, on the basis of an output of 300,000 tons of coal annually, would give the property a life of over twenty-five years.

Sinking Fund: The sinking fund provisions provide for the monthly payment to the Trustee of a sum of money equivalent to 50c. per ton on all prepared sizes of coal shipped, to be used for the retirement of the bonds at a price not exceeding 110 and accrued interest. On the basis of an output of 300,000 tons of coal annually (equivalent to 200,000 tons of prepared sizes), the estimated production, these payments would amount to $100,000 yearly or an aggregate of $1,000,000 over the period of ten years which would be more than sufficient to retire the total authorized issue of bonds before maturity. A minimum sinking fund sufficient to retire all bonds issued and outstanding on or before their maturity date is provided irrespective of output.

Earnings: Based upon production of 300,000 tons annually, an average selling price of $6 per ton of coal at the mines (which is considerably below prevailing prices) and a production cost of $4.62 per ton, the net annual earnings are conservatively estimated as follows:

Deduct sinking fund charges	100,000
Balance for interest	$314,000
Interest on $500,000 7% bonds	35,000

Estimated profits as shown above after deducting Operating and Sinking Fund charges are at the rate of approximately 9 times the interest requirements on the bonds to be presently outstanding.

General: The mining conditions on these properties are very favorable as nearly all the seams of coal are above the water line and easily accessible by drifts, thus making for low cost production. Labor supply is adequate. A large proportion of the output is sold ahead under contract, and the company has a ready market for its remaining production.

Legal matters in connection with this issue will be subject to the approval of Frank M. Swacker, Esq., of New York, for the Bankers, and Ralph W. Rymer, Esq., of Scranton, Pa., for the company. Appraisals by Stevenson & Knight, Scranton, Pa.

We offer these bonds, when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of counsel.

PRICE 96½ and accrued interest to yield about 7.50%

PRICES OF WHEAT SHOW LITTLE CHANGE

All Deliveries Close the Same as the Day Before After an Early Rise.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Eastern interests have sufficient wheat bought to congest the market, and, while bearish news from abroad induces the pit element to sell rather freely at times, the breaks do not extend very far and rallies quickly follow when shorts try to cover.

With the surplus in strong hands, the market is not expected to do much. For several weeks, values have held within a range of around 4 cents, running into free selling when May gets up to around $1.20 and getting support as it nears $1.16.

May today had a range of 1½ cents and all deliveries closed the same as the previous day, resisting after an early bulge, due to pressure from local professionals.

The Government report on farm reserves will be given to the trade tomorrow at 1:15 P. M., Chicago time. The private estimates given out so far, range from 153,000,000 to 171,000,000 bushels with some of the Northwestern people predicting as high as 200,000,000 bushels, last year they were 134,000,000 bushels.

Canadian farm reserves, including seed, are estimated at 111,000,000 bushels, with figures suggesting total holdings in all positions in that country of 327,000,000 bushels, which includes the amount east of the Lakes.

An estimate on the Kansas wheat situation, made by Allan Logan, figures total supplies there, including mill and elevator stocks, at 29,000,000 bushels, while mills have oversold equal to 15,000,000 bushels and will require 8,000,000 more from March 1 to June 30, leaving only 6,000,000 bushels available for mills outside that State for export and for carryover.

Evening up for the Government farm reserve report, due after the close tomorrow, had a depressing effect on May corn, which closed ¼ cent lower and 1⅛ cent under the July. The deferred deliveries were unchanged, while oats showed strength and gained 1@1¼ cent.

Private estimates on farm reserves of corn range from 855,000,000 to 1,160,000,000 bushels and on an average are 445,000,000 bushels. Last year's official returns were 1,306,000,000 bushels of corn and 412,000,000 of oats.

Bartlett, Frazier are out with a report showing that more ats have been fed on farms this year than ever before in Illinois and Iowa.

Export sales of wheat in all positions today were estimated at 300,000 to 400,000 bushels, with 800,000 bushels of corn.

Cash corn was up ¼@⅝ cent and oats ¼ cent, as compared with the May today.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 957,000 bushels; week ago, 781,000; last year, 669,000. Shipments were 614,000 bushels; week ago, 630,000; last year, 610,000.

Corn receipts were 1,854,000 bushels; week ago, 2,397,000; last year, 1,931,000, and shipments, 712,000 bushels; week ago, 2020000; last year, 1,078,000.

RAILWAY EQUIPMENT RECORD PREDICTED

Purchases of Cars and Locomotives Expected to Exceed Any Previous Year.

CENTRALIZATION ON WANE

Demands of Local Shippers Responsible for Change From Prewar Trend.

Business of the railroad equipment companies during 1923 will probably exceed that of any other year in the history of the country, according to Donald D. Conn, manager of the public relations department of the car service division of the American Railway Association, who arrived yesterday in New York from Washington, on his way to the Northwest. Buying of freight cars of all kinds, he said, would continue heavy, but most of the railroads are going to continue in the market for locomotives.

"Our car equipment is now fairly adequate," Mr. Conn said, "but the problem is to get enough motive power to move it. That is the problem the railroads are concentrating on—to speed up shipments, make quick deliveries for shippers and to get their cars unloaded as quickly as possible. In this way the transportation arteries of the country will be kept cleared and traffic will continue moving with comparative ease. This does not mean, however, that buying of cars will not hold at the present pace; on the contrary, is altogether likely that in car buying as well as locomotive buying a new record year will be established.

"Last year 136,718 freight cars were ordered by the railroads of America and 77,221 were installed. These additions last year exceeded any period since 1916. Also is this true of locomotives—2,709 were ordered during 1922. And during January, as of Feb. 1, there were on order 91,354 freight cars and 1,507 locomotives, the largest number for both as of that date in our history. Only last week one railroad company alone placed an order for 600 locomotives.

"A new development in railroad administration I see now is apparent, Mr. Conn stated, and indicates that authority will gradually be decentralized from Washington to district headquarters throughout the country. This gradual change has been made necessary through the need of studying the demands of local shippers and is directly opposite to the trend before the World War, which was toward centralising authority in one place and eventually led to Government ownership and control vested in Washington.

In reference to the car pooling plan recently put forward by a committee of railroad security owners and which precipitated one of the hottest arguments in railroad quarters since the return of those lines to private ownership, Mr. Conn said it was impracticable. He denied that the railroads had in any way fallen down in handling freight during 1922, asserting that the carriers handled virtually the same amount of coal in 1922 as in 1921 despite the interference of a coal strike lasting five months and of a shopmen's strike of about the same duration, and at the same time they greatly exceeded records of the previous year in handling other commodities such as manufactured and miscellaneous products, building materials and ores and their finished products.

Orders for freight cars of every description as of Feb. 15 totaled 97,932, according to announcement yesterday by the American Railway Association. This was an increase of 29,600 over the number on order Jan. 1 last and an increase of 6,078 over the number on order Feb. 1 last. Locomotives ordered as of Feb. 15 totaled 1,015, an increase of 410 over the number on order Jan. 1 and 87 more than the number ordered last Feb. 1. The Association also reported that a temporary increase in the car shortage had occurred during the week ended last Feb. 15, due to the interference of snow, which retarded shipments. Requests for cars on that date were for 76,900 more than the supply.

Bankers Point Out That Finances Are Getting More Involved.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, March 7.—The Chinese Cabinet has ordered Ministers Alfred Sze and Wellington Koo to return to Washington and London, respectively, hoping that these eminent diplomats may help China during the crucial period which is now appearing.

While the big military chiefs are preparing for war, and also while Premier Chang Shao-tseng is vainly endeavoring to convene the war lords for a disbandment conference, the business men are demanding that China set its house in order. A stirring indictment of conditions was handed the Government by the Peking Bankers' Association which addressed a note to the Minister of Finance pointing out among other things that internal loans exceeding $900,000,000 are mostly in default; that the customs, railway and salt surpluses are being dispatched and that Treasury notes are being issued heedlessly, while additional loans are contemplated without providing funds for the redemption of the outstanding obligations.

Maxwell Motor Announces 1923 Schedule—Reduces Liabilities.

Announcement was made yesterday by officials of the Maxwell Motor Car Corporation that its schedule for 1923 has been placed at 60,000 cars. This compares with 50,000 cars manufactured and sold in 1922. In addition, Chalmers, which is controlled by Maxwell Motor, is scheduled to turn out 13,000 cars.

Under the management of W. P. Chrysler, Chairman of the board of the Maxwell Motor Corporation, preferred liabilities of $14,797,000 have been reduced to $6,600,000. When the new management took hold Maxwell had its Series "A," "B" and "C" notes and approximately $3,250,000 Chalmers bonds. The total issue of $4,000,000 "A" notes and $1,750,000 of the "B" notes have been paid off, leaving $2,300,000 of the "B" notes outstanding. The corporation, according to its officials, plans to pay off the entire series of Series "C" notes, which mature in June, 1924, out of 1923 earnings.

REPORT IS REVIVED OF COSDEN OIL SALE

Standard of Indiana Is Understood to Be Conducting Negotiations for Merger.

VALUE SET AT $70,000,000

Independent Company's Refinery at Tulsa Is One of Most Modern and Complete in Country.

Reports were again current in the financial district yesterday that negotiations were again under way between officials of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and Cosden & Co. whereby the former will take over the latter. Rumors to this effect have been circulated from time to time, and the presence in this city yesterday of R. W. Stewart, Chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, led to a revival of the report.

According to a statement published in Wall Street yesterday, Colonel Stewart is credited with declaring that negotiations are under way, but that nothing had been concluded regarding terms. This report could not be confirmed through Mr. Stewart, as he left town yesterday for Chicago, but at the offices of oCsden & Co., 120 Fifth Avenue, J. S. Cosden, Secretary, said that the report as appearing in the financial district was true so far as his information was concerned.

If the transaction is consummated it will be the first large oil merger this year. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana is the dominating factor in the refining and distributing industry in the Middle West. From a capitalization of $1,000,000 reported in 1912, shortly after the dissolution of the old Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, its capital has been increased to $250,000,000 at the close of 1922. Its largest acquisition within recent years has been the taking over of the Midwest Refining Company, one of the largest refiners of gasoline in the country and the largest west of the Mississippi River.

Cosden & Co. are one of the independent companies which have reported remarkable strides since the war. It has outstanding 1,160,000 shares of common stock of no par value, but at the current prices of approximately $60 a share, this is valued at approximately $70,000,000.

The Cosden & Co. refinery at Tulsa, Okla., is one of the most modern plants in the country and is the largest in the Mid-continent field. It covers an area of approximately 1,200 acres and has a capacity of refining 12,000 barrels daily, a complete by-products plant with a capacity of filtering 1,500 barrels daily, and in addition 100 pressure stills for the cracking of gas oil to increase the gasoline yield.

The company has a total production of between 12,000 and 14,000 barrels daily in the Mid-continent field, of which about 6,000 barrels is settled production. Its total holdings in that field consists of more than 200,000 acres.

Report Orders for 373 Tank Cars.

New car orders reported in Wall Street yesterday included an order for 248 tank cars by the Standard Tank Car Company at a cost of approximately $1,000,000 and 125 tank cars by the Great Northern Railway Company, costing $300,000.

TREASURY TO RAISE $400,000,000 AT ONCE

Will Issue Certificates in Two Series, With Interest at 4¼ and 4½ Per Cent.

PROVIDES FOR EXCHANGES

March Obligations Exceed $680,000,000, but Taxes Are Expected to Yield $400,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Announcement of the March financing of the Treasury was made this afternoon by Secretary Mellon. It will take the form of an offering of Treasury certificates of indebtedness in two series, both dated March 15, one bearing 4¼ per cent. interest and maturing Sept 15, 1923, and the other bearing 4½ per cent. interest and maturing March 15, 1924. The combined offering is for $400,000,000, or thereabout, and the Treasury will accept in exchange for the new certificates at par and accrued interests as of March 15 any Treasury certificates maturing March 15 or any uncalled Victory notes maturing May 20, 1923. Called Victory notes will also be accepted at par.

A statement from the Treasury said:

"About $366,000,000 of Treasury certificates became payable on March 15, 1923, together with interest on the public debt in the amount of about $135,000,000. Called Victory notes to the amount of nearly $90,000,000 and matured War Savings certificates to the amount of about $15,000,000 are also outstanding, and both are coming in steadily for redemption. On the other hand, the Treasury expects to receive during March about $400,000,000 in income and profits taxes, though this estimate is naturally subject to some uncertainty, since the March payments are the first to be made on the basis of the new revenue act and the business of the calendar year 1922.

"The present offering of certificates is intended with the balances already on hand, to provide for the payments coming due in March over and above tax receipts, and at the same time to cover the Treasury's further cash requirements between now and the middle of May, when the uncalled Victory notes mature. There will have to be further financing at that time, of course, to refund maturing notes, but the amount involved has already been reduced to manageable proportions, and it will be still further reduced between now and then by exchanges and advance redemptions out of the proceeds of the current offering.

"This offering of certificates, therefore, will contribute materially to the successful refinancing of the Victory Liberty loans, and when the March operations are completed will still leave outstanding but little more than $1,000,000,000 of Treasury certificates, a remarkably low total for this stage of the Government's post-war financing."

The announcement by the Treasury of new financing amounting to $400,000,000 was in general accord with expectations in the financial district. The last issue of Treasury certificates was on Jan. 15, 1923, when $377,000,000 of 4½ per cent. four and a half year securities were put out. On Dec. 15, 1922, new financing amounting to $780,164,100 was announced, according to recapitulations of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. These new issues consisted of $113,743,000 of three months 3½ per cent. certificates; $197,233,000 of twelve months 4 per cent. certificates and $469,188,000 two and a half year 4½ per cent. certificates.

Officials of discount houses pointed out that the rates of interest which the new Treasury certificates of March 15 would bear, namely, 4¼ per cent. and 4½ per cent., were slightly in excess of the present market quotations for this class of securities. It was stated that the one-year 4 per cent. certificates, for example, which mature Dec. 15, 1923, were now selling on approximately a 4.07 per cent. basis.

SHOPS EFFICIENT, SAYS RAILROADHEAD

BAD ORDER CARS REDUCED

From Sept. 15 to Feb. 15, He Declares, Locomotives Awaiting Repairs Have Dropped Nearly 5,000.

William G. Besler, President of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, said yesterday that the efficiency of shop forces of that railroad and others which refused to accept a compromise in settlement of the recent railroad shopmen's strike had shown steady improvement, and in most cases was better than it was before July 1, when the strike began. He made this statement in answer to questions following the publication yesterday of the letter of President Harding to Stephen E. Connor, Secretary of the Federated Shop Crafts of the Central of New Jersey, in which the President intimated that the refusal of some railroad executives to come to terms with striking shopmen was responsible for the coal shortage in certain localities.

As proof of his contention, Mr. Besler said that on Aug. 1 the total of bad order cars had reached 345,000, and by Feb. 15 had been reduced to 206,000, while from Sept. 15 to Feb. 15 the number of locomotives awaiting repairs had been reduced from 20,187 to 15,581, and during the second half of December and the first half of January the shop forces had exceeded all past records in the repair of locomotive equipment. The great bulk of this work, he said, had been conducted in the shops of railroads which had refused to settle with the strikers.

Mr. Besler said that a careful examination of the company's records had failed to disclose the name of Stephen E. Connor on the payrolls or as an employe in any capacity of the Jersey Central.

STARTS GREAT POWER PLAN.

Pinchot to Name Board to Inventory Pennsylvania's Resources.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 7.—Governor Pinchot, who recently suggested the possibilities of a giant power system that would embrace power generation and transmission throughout the entire northeastern part of the United States, today launched preliminary plans for the work so far as Pennsylvania is concerned

A commission will probably be appointed to make a complete inventory of the water, power and fuel resources of the Commonwealth, the Pinchot plans involving not only water power, but power from steam transferred into electricity.

"The distribution of electricity over wires is more economical than the transportation of coal from the mines in cars," said the Governor, "and by generating electricity by steam from coal at or near the mines not only can the ultimate heat be derived from the coal by use of modern stoking methods, but the by-products of the coal can be salvaged. These by-products at present, except in the bituminous regions where coke is made, are lost."

The Governor has asked the Legislature for $35,000 with which to finance the work of the commission.

The Governor's plan as he has outlined it embraces an interlocking power transmission system covering the area from the Potomac to Maine along the eastern seaboard and westward to Niagara. Electrification of railroads and street railway systems and industries throughout the area would follow and power would be made accessible to the smallest factories and farms.

This leasehold covers a five-story-and-basement altered building 20 feet front by 80 feet deep, located 25 feet south of the southeast corner of Sixty-seventh Street and Madison Avenue.

The ground floor is occupied as a drug store by the purchaser, Julius Mendel. The first floor is occupied for business purposes and the three upper floors are subdivided into small apartments of two and three rooms each.

Mr. Abramson acquired this leasehold from the Holman-Denley Company, the owner of the property, in October last for twenty-one years at a rental of $4,500 net. The lease was sold to the tenant for $10,000 in cash. William Wolff Sons, acting through George Meyer, were the brokers in the transaction.

The store at 200 East Fordham Road was leased for ten years by Brown-Wheelock, Harris Vought & Co. to the Regal Shoe Company.

Beth Kern, representing William H. Peckham, leased for Mary B. Dooley the southeast corner of Sixty-second Street and Lexington Avenue to the Sheffield Farms Company for a term of five years; for James McKee the northeast corner of Sixty-second Street and Lexington Avenue to M. Nettler for a term of ten years.

Investors Buy Brooklyn House.

Dorchester Investing Company, Inc. (Samuel Marion and M. A. Vogel) have sold to investors the three sixteen-family brick and stone apartment houses 1,600 to 1,610 Bedford Avenue. The price was close to $200,000.

Realty Associates sold to James T. Dolan a new detached one-family stucco dwelling at 1,727 Fifty-sixth Street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth Avenues, in the Mapleton section.

Oliver E. Allard as broker sold for Joseph J. Vetter a seven-room bungalow, on a plot 40 by 100, at 1,116 Ditmas Avenue, to John B. Harper for occupancy.

The plot, 60 by 100, on the north side of Eighty-second Street, 160 feet west of Tenth Avenue, was sold to H. A. Nelson for immediate improvement. Frank A. Seaver & Co. were the brokers.

Operator Buys and Sells.

G. A. and H. Boehm, architects, have purchased from Frederick Brown, operator, the two altered four-story dwellings on a plot 40 by 80, at 665 and 667 Lexington Avenue. The same buyers recently purchased the Browne house at 35 West Fifty-seventh Street, from Mr. Brown. L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co. negotiated the resale.

Mr. Brown has also purchased the four-story dwelling covering a lot 20 by 100 at 136 West Eighty-sixth Street.

Tenant Buys Building.

Wm. H. Whiting & Co. have sold for Alexander P. Jones, to the Frederick H. Levey Company, printing ink manufacturers, the five-story building at 59 Beekman Street, running through to Ann Street, covering plot 23 by 106. The Frederick H. Levey Company have occupied the premises for the past thirty-two years.

"The increasing value of a garden apartment at Jackson Heights"

A prominent attorney, who has been a resident at Jackson Heights for years has this to say in regard to the desirability of investment in a garden apartment in the finer residential section of New York as demonstrated in the experience of others, who, through circumstance, have been compelled to move away.

"Friends of mine at Jackson Heights who for various unforseen reasons have been compelled to dispose of their apartments have been able to do so on a profitable basis. The garden apartment held today, it has been the experience of all of us, will be worth more money a year from now, by that I mean that a person going there now can do so with the assurance he is making a good investment that will pay him back more money than he puts in."

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes of 5 to 7 rooms, 2 and 3 bathrooms, are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life and yet live in New York City.

Instruction.

WHAT IS AN ACCOUNTANT?

He's the man who tells how fast and how far a business can run. He keeps his eye on the earnings and outgo. He knows whether money is being made or lost—and how much—and why and where.

THAT'S WHY HE GETS A BIG SALARY.

You can be an accountant if you have a good head for figures. It is not absolutely necessary to know bookkeeping. All you have to do is to set aside a few hours' spare time every week in preparation. When you take up LaSalle training you virtually take a job in an accounting department where it is the business of experts to see that you learn the business.

Call at our office and ask all the questions you can think of about this well-paid profession, or write or telephone Bryant 8920. We're open until 8 P. M.

LaSalle Extension University,
112 West 42d St.

TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT.

Traffic management offers you the opportunity to earn large salaries; our course of training enables you to obtain quick and substantial advancement and commensurate salaries; you are trained by experienced traffic managers personally; in resident evening classes if you are anxious to succeed and wish to become proficient in this profession, write, call or phone for particulars.
THE INDUSTRIAL TRAFFIC MANAGERS COLLEGE OF NEW YORK,

THIS UNCERTAINTY?

You can achieve greater success and earn more by getting into the work you are best fitted for by natural talents; our accurate analysis of your natural abilities will put you into the right position to earn more; capable, successful business analysts who have directed many forward-looking men to business success. Call or phone Bryant 4563 for facts. Booklet "Getting Measured for Greater Success" free. Millard Farr & Associates, 114 West 42d St.

ACCOUNTANCY.

Are you interested in training for the C. P. A. degree or for an executive position as Controller, Treasurer or Office Manager? If so, investigate the professional courses of Pace Institute. Write for helpful booklet, "Making Good," and Bulletin 25. Pace & Pace, 30 Church St., New York.

HOTELS NEED TRAINED MEN—Nation-wide demand for high salaried executives; past experience unnecessary; we train you by mail and put you in touch with big opportunities everywhere. Write at once for particulars. Lewis Hotel Training Schools, Desk 118, Washington, D. C.

Public School Notes.

Dr. Tildsley, of the High School Division, gives out figures yesterday showing that of 1,000 boys graduated in January from the twenty-five high schools of the city, 1,529, or over half, elected to go to college. Of 1,400 girl graduates, 304 chose to continue their education in college. For a mid-year record, said Dr. Tildsley, these statistics were most gratifying.

Dr. Ettinger wrote to the Federation of Teachers' Association yesterday criticising their campaign for funds through the public schools, on the ground that the Teachers' Council was the proper body to issue such appeals for money in public school organizations. He asked for exact information as to just what bills in the State Legislature were being "pushed" by the Federation, and what expenses had been incurred in forwarding school legislation and educating the public therein.

A teacher in training with a license in English is needed at the Textile High School, 124 West Thirtieth Street. Application should be made to the principal.

A meeting of the Parents and Neighbors Association of Public School 1, the Bronx, will be held this evening in the school, 146th Street and College Avenue. Justice John J. Freschi, of the Court of Special Sessions, will preside.

The Fire Department's annual school essay contest on the subject, "Safeguarding the Home Against Fire," was announced yesterday through Dr. Tildsley. With the co-operation of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, 254 gold medals will be awarded next October in the various classes of elementary, intermediate and high schools. The essays must contain between 500 and 800 words for the high school and junior high school pupils, and between 200 and 500 words for grades 5A to 8B in the elementary schools. In the final ratings subject matter will count 60 per cent.; English, correct grammar, &c., 20 per cent.; spelling, 10 per cent., and penmanship, 10 per cent. Essays must be forwarded by District Superintendents and high school principals to the Bureau of Fire Prevention not later than June 30, 1923. The medals will be given out on the steps of City Hall during Fire Prevention Week in October.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 7.—The storm that was central over the Upper Ohio Valley Tuesday night has moved rapidly northeastward with a marked increase in intensity and it was over the Canadian Maritime Provinces Wednesday night. It has been attended by precipitation since Tuesday in the lake region, the Upper Ohio Valley, the Appalachian region and the Atlantic States. Heavy snow fell in the North Atlantic States. There were shifting gales along the entire Atlantic Seaboard, several stations reporting a maximum velocity of fifty miles an hour or over. The highest velocity was sixty-four miles from the northwest Wednesday night, and it was at New York City. One other disturbance was over the Far Northwest Wednesday night and it was attended by light precipitation from the North Pacific Coast eastward to the Upper Missouri Valley. The temperature was lower Wednesday in the North Atlantic and East Gulf States, the Upper Lake region and the Upper Mississippi Valley, and it was somewhat higher in the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain and Plateau regions.

Fair weather will prevail almost generally Thursday and Friday in the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the Atlantic and East Gulf States. The temperature will not change materially during the next two days.

Southern New England, Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey—Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday; little change in temperature.

MRS. BUZZI'S STORY DEVELOPS A FLAW

Examination of Stomach Shows That Schneider Had No Cake and Coffee With Her.

GIRL KNEW OF JEALOUSY

Contractor Told Dorothea Hein of a Quarrel With His Housekeeper.

The authorities investigating the murder of Frederick Schneider, wealthy Bronx contractor, got further evidence yesterday that materially conflicts with the story told by Mrs. Anna Buzzi, Schneider's "housekeeper," about his movements in the hour before his death. Although Mrs. Buzzi declares that Schneider came to their apartment at 1,153 Grand Concourse about 5 o'clock in the afternoon a week ago Monday—the day of the murder—and had coffee and cake with her, the Medical Examiner's office has discovered that the dead man's stomach did not contain any coffee or coffee cake.

This discovery was made by an examination of the stomach contents by Dr. Gettler of Believe Hospital. A report concerning it was made by the Medical Examiner's office yesterday to the office of District Attorney Edward Glennon of the Bronx.

Dr. Gettler's report says that particles of food found in the stomach had been digested too long to have been eaten at the time Mrs. Buzzi says Schneider had the coffee cake. If he had eaten the cake at the time she said he did, according to Dr. Gettler, pieces of the cake would have remained in the stomach in such a form as to be easily identified. Schneider was killed not later than 5:26 P. M., according to the District Attorney's office, or about 20 minutes after the time Mrs. Buzzi says he ate the cake.

Mr. Glennon again questioned Henry Shidrowitz, a Westchester Avenue stationer, in his investigation yesterday of the murder of Frederick Schneider on Sound View Road a week ago Monday afternoon. Shidrowitz insisted that he could not be mistaken in his statement that he saw Mrs. Anna Buzzi driving past his store in an automobile about 4:30 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder. His testimony conflicts with the alibi of Mrs. Buzzi, who says that she spent the entire day in the apartment which she and Schneider occupied at 1,153 Grand Concourse.

Reports that Schneider was planning to leave Mrs. Buzzi were verified by Dorothea Hein of 643 St. Ann's Avenue, who was Schneider's confidential secretary in his contracting business. Miss Hein said that her employer had told her that he realized that it was bad for his business for a married man, separated from his wife, to be living with another woman.

Showed Her Torn Book.

According to Miss Hein, Schneider was willing to settle a large amount of money on Mrs. Buzzi, who, however, was determined to hold him. Schneider drove Miss Hein to the office on the morning of the murder and told her of a quarrel he had had with Mrs. Buzzi the day before. According to Miss Hein, Schneider was almost desperate when he handed her a memorandum book that he said Mrs. Buzzi had torn up in a jealous rage.

Miss Hein said that at luncheon time on Monday Schneider apparently had no premonition of death. He told her that he was going to a doctor for treatment for a boil on his neck, and to the Pierce-Arrow motor truck agency during the afternoon. The last she saw of him was about noon.

It was learned yesterday that Miss Hein had been married for eleven years and was the wife of David Silvernail, who deserted her a year and a half after the wedding. She is now suing for a divorce under the new Enoch Arden law. Her attorney got an order last Monday from Supreme Court Justice Lydon permitting him to serve notice of the action by publication.

Silvernail is the son of Judson P. Silvernail of the Bronx. His wife has appealed to his father to help find him, but without success. In 1915 she saw an advertisement in the personal column of a newspaper as follows: "Dorothy Hein—Will you kindly communicate with Captain Otto Piper, German ship Passap, at Iquique, Chile?" She wrote, but received no answer. Two years later she heard her husband was in the United States Navy, serving as a fireman on the U. S. S. Washington at Honolulu, but was unable to trace him.

The re-enactment of the murder scene, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed until 5 o'clock this afternoon. District Attorney Glennon, Assistant District Attorney Albert Cohn and some police detectives visited the scene of the crime yesterday afternoon and made observations. They also inspected the automobile, which is being held by the property clerk at the Morrisania police station.

GOOD PLANTING WEATHER.

Conditions of the Week Favorable, Too, for Wheat in the West.

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued in Washington yesterday in part follows:

"Favorable weather for the preparation of the ground for the planting of corn and cotton crops prevailed in the Southern States during much of the week.

"Planting corn was under way in Southern Georgia, and in Central and Southern Louisiana. Planting continued in Florida, where much was up and doing well. Wet soil delayed the planting of corn and cotton in Texas, although the soil for these crops was well prepared.

"The week was warmer than normal throughout the Winter wheat States, with considerable precipitation in all except the extreme western portion of the belt. Considerable progress was made in planting potatoes and cut crops in all the Southern States, and in replanting in the districts damaged by the freeze during the middle of February.

"The temperature was above normal in the gulf States and there was sufficient moisture for proper growth of truck crops, except in the Florida peninsula where dry weather prevailed. The weather was favorable for sugar cane in the lower Mississippi Valley."

Can You Resell Your Garage at a Profit?

One man bought a KOLB sectional garage in 1913 for $150—and sold it recently for $200. It's well to think of resale value even in building a garage.

See Their Hair, Boys!

Learn How They Make it Stay Combed

If you want your hair to stay back and stay down like other boys, use Stacomb, as they do.

Just ask your drug store man for a jar of Stacomb, then you can comb your hair in any style you like—pompadour, or parted in the middle and brushed straight back, or any other way.

No matter how stiff your hair is you won't have to wear a cap to keep it in place. Stacomb makes it stay combed, slick and shiny if you use enough to get it that way or just natural if you use less.

Ask Mother or Dad

Ask Mother or Dad to get Stacomb for you. Your drug store man will tell you it's what all the boys use now.

Stacomb is made with natural oils which are good for the hair and scalp. Dry and brittle hair is unknown to users of Stacomb.

It isn't sticky or greasy and doesn't stain caps or pillows.

Everybody's hair looks better all day when Stacomb is used.

Dad will want to try Stacomb, and so will Mother, especially after they've washed their hair, for even then they will find it effective.

Ask your friends what they use. They'll all say Stacomb. Just ask and see.

At all druggists. (Not a liquid.)

These illustrations taken from Swift & Company's 1923 Year Book tell an interesting story of the growth of a great business.

The first shows the original plant of Gustavus F. Swift at Barnstable, Massachusetts, in 1867, barely more than half a century ago.

The second shows the Chicago plant of Swift & Company today — one of 23 located throughout the country at strategic points in producing territory.

Swift & Company has grown to its present size in response to the growing, changing needs of the country for more meat efficiently and economically supplied.

It has grown also because it has known how to give the people what they like in such famous foods as Premium Ham and Bacon, Brookfield Sausage, and many other branded specialties.
